Soviet Bloc Outvoted on Vital Issues In Assembly

Proposals Vetoed In Security Council Go on Work Sheet Of U. N. Session

Paris, Sept. 24 (AP).—Western-led majorities today smothered Russia's repeated attempts to throw the veto fight and six other explosive issues out of the United Nations Assembly.

Informed delegates predicted the rebuffs would provoke an unusually bitter attack on the majority when Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Andrei Y. Vishinsky makes his nation's policy statement Saturday morning. He had planned to speak today but was delayed because of illness.

Issues Put on Work Sheet

Except for two items, the six-nation Slav bloc voted alone against majorities running from 29 to 47. The 58-nation Assembly thus decided over Russian protests to put the following items on the work sheet for full debate in the coming weeks:

1. Argentina's call for consideration of the membership applications of Italy, Austria, Finland, Ireland, Portugal and Trans-Jordan. All have been vetoed by Russia in the Security Council. The vote on this item was 29 to 16 with 10 abstentions and three countries absent.

2. The Balkan commission report accusing Greece's northern neighbors (Albania, Yugoslavia and Bulgaria) of helping Greek guerillas. The vote was 44 to 6.

3. The report of the Korean commission which Russia boycotted. The vote was 47 to 6.

Votes to Restrict Veto

4. The Little Assembly proposal to restrict the veto. (Under the Charter the United States, Russia, France, Britain and China hold the right to veto decisions of substance in the Security Council. Through use of the so-called double veto, Russia has been able to control decisions on which issues are of substance and which are not.) The vote was 47 to 6.

5. The proposal that the Little Assembly be given a further trial. The United States, which originally proposed the new body last year, favors another 12-month experiment. The vote was 46 to 6.

6. A Little Assembly proposal to promote international political cooperation. The vote was 47 to 6.

7. Chile's charge that Russia violated human rights by refusing

New Big 3 Approach On Berlin Issue Seen

Paris, Sept. 24 (AP).—There were signs tonight the United States, Britain, and France may be working on a new plan for handling their disputes with Russia over Berlin.

Pro-Western sources said the new plan may exclude any immediate appeal for a United Nations judgment on the Berlin impasse in event Russia replies unsatisfactorily to notes sent to the Kremlin this week. They did not elaborate.

A member of the British Foreign Secretary Bevin's delegation told a reporter "the Western powers are definitely not committed to going to the United Nations immediately" even if Russia's reply is a flat "No."

Official secrecy veiled the new plan.

Secretary of State Marshall and Bevin talked for an hour today, British sources said, about Berlin.

Their talk followed a period of American, British and French sounding of opinion among pro-Western delegations to the United Nations Assembly perhaps to learn the reaction to throwing the Berlin case before the United Nations.

Several diplomats reported a majority of delegations declared their sympathy. But a greater number of delegates than had been expected expressed fear such a step would rupture irreparably East-West relations, it was reported.

There was no explanation why

Open Hearings Canceled on Atomic Spying

Some Findings Might Endanger Security, Rep. Thomas Says

By the United Press

The House Un-American Activities Committee last night canceled public hearings on atomic espionage because it said disclosure of its "grave" findings might endanger "our national security."

But the committee promised to release a complete report which would give "all pertinent facts" and carefully selected excerpts from testimony that has been taken in secret sessions.

The announcement was made by Chairman J. Parnell Thomas (R., N. J.). He said:

"First of all, we are reluctant to reveal some of the confidential sources of our information. Secondly, we desire to protect some of the personalities involved.

"Thirdly, and most important, we have received information which is of such importance to our national security that if we had a public hearing and had some of the witnesses testify in public we would be revealing some very vital secrets which in the interest of national security should not be made public at the present time."

"Recommendations" Planned

Thomas would not comment on a proposal that the committee recommend espionage indictments against three American citizens—two atomic scientists and one Communist Party functionary. But he stressed heavily that the committee report will contain "recommendations."

The proposal came from Representative John McDowell (R., Pa.). He had declined to name the three people he wants indicted. It was learned the subject was not discussed at yesterday's meeting.

Thomas said the report will be similar to the one that was put out by the Royal Canadian commission which ended up in the conviction of several Canadian citizens accused of stealing atomic secrets for Russia.

"There is no question about the gravity of this matter," Thomas

Barrett Hopes to Add 148 Men, Change Radio To FM in Fiscal 1950

(Funds sought for fire vehicles, Page 9)

By Sam Zagoria
Post Reporter

The District Police Department, contrary to the Commissioners' economy edict, yesterday asked for almost a million-dollar increase for operations during fiscal year 1950.

Superintendent Robert J. Barrett requested a budget of $8,156,649, compared with the current year's total of $7,258,969. He was the first District official to ask for substantially more funds.

Principal factors in the jump are the requested addition of 90 uniformed policemen and 58 civilian employes, high-level promotions and conversion of the radio communications system to frequency modulation.

The request includes $7,079,000 for salaries and expenses (now $6,232,000); $10,000 for protection services during public functions; $1,059,092 from the highway fund for payment of police on traffic duties; and $8557 from the Capitol for the services of two detective lieutenants assigned there as special policemen.

Major Barrett noted that during the past year "revolutionary changes have been accomplished in the organization" of the department. He cited particularly the establishment of a central reporting section for all communication services which provides an air-tight follow up on all crime reports. This change followed a series of articles in The Washington Post exposing the pocketing of reports on crimes.

The 11 principal personnel changes recommended are:

1. Promotion of nine detectives in charge of various Headquarters squads to captains. Such promotions would be made without competitive examination on the recommendation of Major Barrett and would be effective only while the officers assigned to

Interim Agreement Completed

Gallinger's Doors Opened To Internes From Howard U.

An interim agreement under which Howard University medical school faculty members and students will serve at Gallinger Hospital was completed yesterday.

The plan, tentatively outlined in March, was approved after conference of District officials with deans of the medical schools of Georgetown, George Washington and Howard Universities.

It provides that the Howard medical school dean may nominate up to 25 per cent of the Gallinger interne complement, recommend attending physicians and a member of the hospital's executive committee.

Georgetown and George Washington medical schools will each nominate 23 per cent of the Gallinger interne staff. The Health Department will name the remaining internes from medical schools in other communities.

Howard interne appointments will be recommended on October 15. Appointees will not start serving until July 1, 1949, because the present complement of 37 was appointed before Georgetown and George Washington agreed to give up their previously exclusive right to supply internes to Gallinger.

The agreement reached yesterday will continue indefinitely until Howard personnel become available to share equally all Gallinger posts with the other two medical schools, it was said.

Bosox, N. Y., Indians in 3-Way Tie

Detroit Turns Back Cleveland, 4-3, While Yankee Batters Boston to Knot Race

The American League became top-heavy with first-place teams yesterday as Cleveland, Boston and New York shared the league lead.

The first triple tie in the league's history at this late date resulted from New York's 9-6 victory over Boston and Detroit's 4-3 triumph over the Indians.

The three leaders have identical records of 91 victories and 56 losses. Each has 7 games remaining, 4 of Boston's being with New York.

Hutchinson Beats Lemon

Freddie Hutchinson, in-and-out Detroit right-hander, pitched the fifth-place Tigers to their narrow decision over Cleveland. Although tagged for three home runs, Hutch had it when it counted most and registered his thirteenth success. Bob Lemon, ace of the Tribe staff, suffered his thirteenth setback while trying for his twenty-second triumph.

The Yankees called on Pinch-hitter Billy Johnson to bat them to victory over the Red Sox and Johnson came through in admirabl fashion, clubbing a three-run homer which marked a fifth-inning New York uprising.

After the Red Sox had battered Starting Pitcher Vic Raschi all over the premises, Joe Page, southpaw New York relief specialist, came in to halt the Bosockers for the last 5 2/3 innings.

Page was touched for eight hits, but he fanned six, striking out Johnny Pesky for the final out of the ball game to preserve his victory.

Rookie Outfielder Vic Wertz, hitless in his first three trips, put Detroit ahead to stay when he belted a two-run double in the seventh inning to snap a 2-2 deadlock.

The Yankees picked up two runs against the Bosox in the first inning, but their lead disappeared in the third when Boston rallied for three runs. The Yanks tied it in the third, lost command again in the fifth when Boston tallied two more, but the New Yorkers wrapped up the contest in the fifth with their four-run inning.

Woman Wins Suit for Breach Of Promise at 80

Boise, Idaho, Sept. 24 (AP).—Eighty-year-old Mrs. Jessie E. Simmons of Kansas City, Mo., has been awarded $8000 damages by a Federal Court jury in her breach of promise suit against Hyrum S. Lewis, also 80.

Lewis is a veteran Idaho legislator and Republican candidate for State Representative from Cassia County.

Mrs. Simmons asked $20,700 damages on grounds that Lewis had failed to marry her April 6 as promised.

A jury of 10 men and two women deliberated about three hours before returning the verdict last night.

Lewis was portrayed by his attorney yesterday as victim of the woman, who, he said, "started out with a plan and scheme to get Mr. Lewis."

Lewis denied he had promised marriage.

Truman Sets Major Talk On Red Issue

Speech Will Seek To Reply to GOP Charge of Harboring Communists Here

By Edward T. Folliard
Post Reporter

Aboard Presidential Special, Sept. 24.—President Truman will cross swords with Gov. Thomas E. Dewey on the issue of communism, it was made known today.

He plans to make a major speech on the subject when he reaches Oklahoma City next Tuesday, answering the charge that his Administration has been harboring "Reds" in Washington.

Governor Dewey, who crossed Mr. Truman's trail today on the way to Los Angeles, has been promising to drive the Communists out of the Government if he takes over the White House in January. The Republican nominee has told crowds that there would have been no need for Congress to appropriate 15 million dollars for a loyalty check if he had been President.

Oklahoma City was the scene of Alfred E. Smith's memorable attack on the Ku Klux Klan in the campaign of 1928.

"Red Herring" Hurt Him

In the last three days, California Democrats have beseeched Mr. Truman to speak out on the communism issue.

They have told him that he did himself great damage when he declared at a White House conference that the Capitol Hill spy hearings were just a "red herring."

Late this evening, after hours of traveling through the Mojave Desert, the campaign train moved into Arizona—one State that seems reasonably safe for the Truman-Barkley ticket. Talking to a crowd of about 15,000 in Yuma, a crowd that included Indians and Mexicans, the President said that the Eightieth Congress was made up of a "bunch of birds" who used a meat ax on his recommended appropriations for the West. Mr. Truman was presented with a pair of silver spurs. It was the second such gift he has received this year, another pair having been presented to him in Nebraska in June. He noted that those given him today were "sharper."

"I can really spur Congress with these," he chuckled, and the crowd sent up a roar of laughter.

The Chief Executive was headed for Texas this evening and one question being asked aboard his campaign special was: Will he deal with the Dixiecrats as he did last night with Henry Wallace and the Progressive Party?

Bidding for Wallace's non-Communist sympathizers in Los Angeles, Mr. Truman told disturbed liberals that they would be wasting their votes and helping only the Republicans if they supported a third party in November.

The States' Rights (Dixiecrat) Party is on the ballot in Texas, but the State is expected to support the Truman-Barkley ticket. Elsewhere, however, the Dixiecrats appear to be in a position to do considerable damage to the Democratic standard bearers.

So far Mr. Truman has not men-

Peron Says Ex-U. S. Diplomat Led Plot to Assassinate Him

Buenos Aires, Sept. 24 (AP).—President Juan Peron accused John Griffith, former cultural attache of the United States Embassy, tonight of organizing a plot to assassinate him and topple his government.

Tens of thousands of workers, idled by a 14-hour general strike called in solidarity with Peron, cheered wildly his denunciations of traitors, international capitalists and foreign enemies.

Stirred to anger, the crowd shouted anti-United States slogans before the First National Bank of Boston building and jeered the newspaper, La Prensa, which never has supported Peron.

At least 16 persons were under arrest, including Luis Rojido, president of the Labor Party, and Cypriant Reyes, a labor leader and former congressman who broke with Peron two years ago.

Griffith, expelled from Argentina in April on a charge of fomenting a bank strike, called the affair "just a detective story" invented for "vengeful persecution."

He is now in Montevideo, Uruguay.

Peron's pretty actress wife, Eva, herself a power in Argentine politics, was said by police to have been marked for death with the President in the uprising planned for Columbus Day, October 12. She addressed the throng after Peron spoke, saying she would be willing to die "a thousand times" to help the cause of the people.

The state radio estimated one million people participated in the demonstration which lasted an hour. Some carried flags. Others had small gallows, implying Peron should hang his foes. He vowed stern justice.

Wives 'So Happy'

2 From Area, 3 Others Found Alive Near Missing Plane

News Elates Families Of Capt. Custer and Master Sergt. Scalise

"Oh, I'm so happy!"

Mrs. Benjamin Scott Custer, 8 Oxford st., Chevy Chase, Md., sighed deeply with relief. The Washington Post had just telephoned her the news. The plane in which her Navy captain husband had been missing 12 days had been found in the Canadian wilds. All aboard were believed safe.

"I'm so grateful for this news!" she said, after a moment. She had not missed the "believed," but this was the first news she'd had, and after 12 anxious, almost sleepless days and nights, it was something to grasp and to hold to.

"I've heard nothing on it from the Navy yet—it isn't official, of course—but—I do hope they're all right. Oh, I'm so happy!"

The wife of Master Sergt. George Scalise, 50, when reached at her home at Fort Belvoir, cried:

"He must be all right! I just heard it on the radio. My children and I were at supper. It is the best news! I can't tell you how happy we are."

Mrs. Custer is the mother of four children, Mrs. Scalise of five. Mrs. Custer and her oldest child, Benjamin Scott Custer, jr., were at supper at the home of friends, in search of relief from the long strain of waiting for news, when The Washington Post reporter

Flying Boat Awaits Survivors' Return At Manitoba Lake

From Press Dispatches

Winnipeg, Manitoba, Sept. 24.—Two Washington area residents, missing for 12 days with three others on a flight over rugged Canadian wilds, were found alive today, not far from their downed plane.

The Royal Canadian Air Force said one of its search planes sighted their missing U. S. Navy C-45 Beechcraft on the edge of Highland Lake, 225 miles northwest of search headquarters at The Pas, Manitoba.

The five men were located about 25 miles from their plane.

RCAF officials reported tonight that all five men rescued are "in good shape and sleeping" aboard the rescue craft.

The Washington area residents are: Capt. Benjamin Scott Custer, of 8 Oxford st., Chevy Chase, Md., United States naval attache at Ottawa, and Master Sergt. George Scalise, whose wife and four children live at Fort Belvoir, Va.

The three others are: Capt. Sir Robert W. Stirling-Hamilton, naval adviser at the British High Commissioner's Office at Ottawa; Lieut. Charles Wilcox of East Oskaloosa, Iowa, assistant to Captain Custer, and the pilot, CPO Jack M. Kastner, Tucson, Ariz.

The discovery climaxed the largest aerial hunt in Canadian history.

Gallup Poll

Dewey Barely Won Wisconsin In '44; Has Safe Margin Now

By George Gallup
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

Princeton, N. J., Sept. 24.—The Republican Party presidential slate today enjoys a substantial lead in the Wisconsin popular vote.

Wisconsin, captured by the GOP in 1944 with only a bare majority, at the moment gives a safe margin to Dewey and Warren. Noted for its violent swings from one party to another, the State is undergoing a strong shift from the Democrats who won its 12 electoral votes by landslides in 1932 and 1936.

Interviewers for the Institute asked a representative cross-section of Wisconsin voters this question.

"If the presidential election were being held TODAY how would you vote—for Truman, for Dewey or for Wallace?

These are the results:

Dewey	51%
Truman	38
Wallace	3
No Opinion	8

Neither Gov. Thomas E. Dewey nor President Truman plans any campaign speeches in Wisconsin, according to speaking schedules thus far announced. Governor Dewey, of course, stumped the State vigorously last April in his unsuccessful bid for support in the State presidential primary election. That Wisconsin voters now give Dewey such a commanding lead over Truman after turning him down in favor of Harold E. Stassen as GOP nominee is indicative of Republican unity in Wisconsin.

Another interesting sidelight on political sentiment in the State is the comparatively light vote for Henry A. Wallace and his Progressive Party. Wallace will visit the State next month, and later surveys will indicate the effectiveness of his campaign there.

Traditionally, third-party movements have found above average acceptance in Wisconsin, La Follette's Progressive Party receiving 54 per cent of the popular vote there in 1924. Beginning in 1934 the Progressive Party, organized by the elder La Follette's sons, polled substantial votes for its candidates until the merger with the Republican Party two years ago.

In 1944 Dewey carried Wisconsin by the narrow margin of 50.9 per cent of the major party vote, with Roosevelt taking 49.1 per cent. In 1940, with Willkie as the Republican candidate, the situation was just reversed, Roosevelt winning with 50.9 per cent of the popular vote.

Almost 7 out of 10 Wisconsin voters cast their ballots for Roose-

Work to Start Soon on First A-Power Plant

Project Designed To Produce Heat for Electrical Current

By Ferdinand Kuhn, jr.
Post Reporter

The building of the world's first atomic power plant will start this fall on 4500 acres near Saratoga Springs, N. Y., the Atomic Energy Commission announced yesterday.

The existing atomic plants at Oak Ridge, Tenn., and Hanford, Wash., produce fissionable material chiefly for use in atomic bombs. The new plant, described as "experimental," will use atomic energy to produce heat for conversion into electric power.

As such, the new installation will be the first forerunner of far bigger plants that may some day bring heat and light to the Arctic and water to desert regions.

To Be Operated by GE

The Commission said the new plant would be operated by the General Electric Co., which already manages the Knolls Atomic Power Laboratory at nearby Schenectady.

The announcement came at the same time as a bitter attack by Senator Brien McMahon (D., Conn.), chief sponsor of the existing Atomic Energy Act, against Gov. Thomas E. Dewey's speech in Phoenix, Ariz., on Thursday. Dewey said the Government should give up some of its present monopoly over atomic energy as soon as military security permitted, and should give private "initiative and skill" a chance to produce atomic energy for peaceful purposes.

McMahon called the implications of Dewey's speech "dangerous and alarming," and said the Republican candidate had "raised the most serious political issue not only of this campaign but of this generation." He recalled that private industry already operated the existing atomic energy plants, but under Government supervision and security regulations.

"Now it is clear," said McMahon, "that powerful selfish groups within the Republican Party are

Advice From a Colleague

Psychiatrists Told to Forget World Ills, Stick to Patients

Detroit, Sept. 24 (AP).—Dr. C. C. Burlingame today suggested that psychiatrists stick to the treatment of their patients' minds and leave the world's ills alone.

In an address before the Michigan Medical Society, the Hartford, Conn., psychiatrist said some members of his profession have "participated in peace conferences, assisted in the United Nations, and discussed the devastating effect upon the emotions of the housing problem, race prejudice and the like."

He added that these activities made him "uneasy about anything that takes psychiatrists as a group away from being physicians."

"The job of the psychiatrist is to treat the individual who is off the beam," he added.

Dr. Burlingame, president of Hartford's Institute of Living, advocated a "housecleaning" in psychiatry to clear out those who indulge in "psychiatric flights of fancy."

As examples, he cited psychiatrists who contend that sex is "always the strongest of all human emotions."

He ridiculed another theory that a child will suffer "love starvation" unless the parents gush over it.

Dr. Burlingame defined psychiatry as merely "the medical specialty devoted to emotional disorders."

World Drive To Fight Red Slurs Urged By Dewey

Candidate Solicits Hollywood's Help In Spreading Truth About America

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

Los Angeles, Sept. 24.—A mighty world-wide counter-offensive to answer Communist propaganda and carry the truth about America to the world was proposed here tonight by Gov. Thomas E. Dewey.

The GOP nomineee chose the world's movie capital to spell out his formula for dealing with communism and to promise a new "Voice of America."

He pledged, starting January 20, a "counter-offensive not of aggressive acts but of truth" and enlisted the aid of the motion picture industry to help tell our story "of hope."

Dewey spoke from a flag-draped stand in the shell-like base of the Hollywood Bowl. A crowd of about 18,000, filling all but the topmost seats, roared its approval.

A jumbo size elephant greeted Dewey at the entrance, and the movie folks put on a show before the speech. A procession of Hollywood stars, Ginger Rogers, Gary Cooper, Hal Perry, George Murphy and Dennis Morgan among others, indorsed the nominee and Acting Gov. Goodwin J. Knight introduced him.

Here's how he said he will deal with Communists at home:

"If they—or anyone else—break our law against treason, they'll get traitors' treatment.

Promises Adequate Laws

"If our laws aren't adequate, we'll get ones which are. But in this country we'll have no thought police."

Governor Dewey opened his "nonpartisan" drive for California's 25 electoral votes in the bleak Mojave Desert at Barstow. In the San Bernardino citrus country he stopped within three miles of President Truman's train, heading east.

In relaxed intimate talks at each stop he appealed for Republican, Democratic, independent and even "Wallace votes" in what he now insists is not a partisan campaign.

Arriving in Los Angeles, Governor Dewey's motorcade passed through thinly lined streets, amid occasional showers of confetti to the Biltmore Hotel. He stopped off at City Hall to receive the keys of the city from Mayor Fletcher Bowron. "If you receive a cup three times, you get to keep it," Dewey told a crowd of 5000 in front of the hall. "This is my third time."

He made similar appearances here in '40 and '44. Police estimated the Los Angeles street throngs at 15,000, somewhat leaner than yesterday's turnout for Truman.

Charges Bungling

Then tonight, in Los Angeles' Hollywood Bowl, he:

1. Told California labor that "behind the iron curtain lives the most ruthlessly exploited worker in the world" and cited figures to prove it.

2. Proposed to harness the best salesmen in the greatest nation of salesmen in the world to lick Communist efforts to "discredit America" by selling "our magnificent store of freedom."

3. Charged the Administration has been giving aid and comfort to the Communists by a "blundering, bungling" exhibition in Washington and again berated Truman for his "red herring" crack.

4. Slapped at the President again, though not by name, for beginning to "complain and scold" when the going got tough and weakening American unity by appeals to "special interest."

5. Cited our Berlin airlift efforts.

Russians Fire Flak Into Airlift Lanes

Delegate Portends To 'Take a Walk'

Associated Press WIREPHOTO

E. H. LOUW, South African Minister of Economic Affairs, charged the United Nations General Assembly with failing to keep faith with small nations and warned in Paris yesterday that his delegates may quit.

Berlin, Sept. 24 (AP).—The Russians slammed antiaircraft fire into the crowded airlift corridor today—without hitting anything.

They told the Americans and British about it officially an hour and a half after the shooting started. The target practice lasted 3½ hours at Dolle Airport, 25 miles west of Berlin in the Buckeburg airlane used by British and American planes on their return flight from this city.

Then the Russians posted notice that they intended to shift to air-to-ground firing, which could include practice shooting at ground targets, and possibly some bomb dropping.

The Soviet shooting failed to deter the supplying of Berlin by air, but incited the British and Americans to protest.

The complaint was their second in two days against Soviet antics in the corridor. A Yak fighter played dangerously close to an airliner with 30 passengers in the corridor yesterday—a wing-to-wing performance that appeared to have no purpose.

Despite this, airlift planes lugged another 3613 tons of food and coal to Berlin in 444 flights.

The Americans ordered all Soviet-sponsored newspapers and publications banned from the United States zone of Germany today. The ban did not apply to the American sector of Berlin.

The Russians already had effectively banned all western publications from their zone and Berlin sector by setting up a tight Communist-controlled distribution monopoly.

The Americans had repeatedly protested without effect. The American action nullified the agreement of the Moscow Foreign Ministers' conference in 1947 for free exchange of information throughout all four zones of Germany.

German Communist leaders and Soviet occupation officials were reported in a secret strategy session at Potsdam to discuss the next Soviet moves in the battles for Berlin and Germany.

Soviet Bloc Is Outvoted

to permit the Russian-born wife of a son of Chile's Ambassador to Moscow to leave the Soviet Union. The vote was 30 to 7, with Burma joining the Slav bloc in opposition.

The Assembly thus virtually completed its schedule of 69 items, the largest in history. The items now go to the six main 58-nation committees of the Assembly for debate. The committee decisions go back to the Assembly floor for final voting.

In the absence of Vishinsky, Russian Delegate Jacob Malik spearheaded the unsuccessful Soviet opposition. He fought all four little assembly items on the contention that the new body was "illegal." There is no veto in the little assembly or the Assembly itself.

Malik said the Chilean Accusation constituted unwarranted interference in the domestic affairs of the Soviet Union, which does not permit her nationals to marry foreigners.

Malik frequently repeated his charge that "certain groups" were trying to undermine the U. N. As an example he mentioned the Balkan commission which he said was "tendentious and biased."

The Assembly postponed action on one item—the South African-Indian dispute. E. H. Louw, South African Minister of Economic Affairs, explained he had expected the general debate to go on this afternoon and was not prepared to talk on the case. India charges South Africa with discriminating against Indians in South Africa. South Africa says it is purely an internal matter.

Earlier, in his policy statement to the Assembly, Louw served notice that if the U. N. goes on as it has for the last two years South Africa will have to consider whether to remain in the organization.

He declared the Assembly was being used for ideological propaganda and for "poisoning the relations between the European and non-European races of the world." He further charged that the failure of the big powers to carry out the obligations assumed at San Francisco would amount to a "betrayal of the faith which the smaller nations showed in the great powers by agreeing to accept the Charter in its present form."

There is a provision in the U. N. Charter permitting the organization to expel a member but no provision is made for a member to leave the U. N.

U. S. to Ask Ceiling

Paris, Sept. 24 (U.P.).—The United States will ask the United Nations General Assembly to place a ceiling on U. N. costs and authorize a "token reduction" of the share alloted to the United States for the coming year, it was learned today.

Envoy Reports On Moscow Mission

WALTER BEDELL SMITH, American Ambassador to Moscow, was back at his desk in the State Department yesterday afternoon following his arrival by plane from Russia by way of Berlin and Paris. He conferred with Undersecretary Lovett presumably on his views on ending the Berlin crisis.

Bulgaria Held Unfit for U. N.

The United States yesterday branded Bulgaria as a treaty-breaking police state whose conduct made it unfit to belong to the United Nations.

A note delivered to Foreign Minister Vasil P. Kolarov in Sofia listed a whole catalogue of offenses which, in the American view, disqualify the Communist-dominated government of Bulgaria from U. N. membership.

The American note was a prelude to coming debates in the U. N. Assembly over the membership of Russia's Balkan satellites. Russia will make another attempt at the Paris Assembly to have them admitted, but the United States is determined not to let Bulgaria and Romania join.

The reason for the American note was a speech by Kolarov on September 4, when he said Bulgaria had fulfilled her treaty obligations and blamed the United States for keeping her out of the U. N.

Publication Of Secret Talks Considered

London, Sept. 24 (U.P.).—Britain is seriously considering publication of the secret Moscow talks on the Berlin crisis because distorted versions, evidently Soviet-inspired, have appeared in newspapers in Czechoslovakia and Russian-occupied Germany, it was made known today.

It was indicated that the Foreign Office may already have started consulting the United States and France on the advisability of publishing the true version.

A Foreign Office spokesman said the reports, which it is believed "leaked" from Moscow, have grossly distorted facts and have given an inaccurate picture of the entire negotiations.

One such report is that the three Western commander in chief in Germany, especially America's Gen. Lucius D. Clay, caused "interruption" of talks held in Berlin as the result of the Moscow negotiations.

Informants pointed out that the leaks of iron curtain newspapers were a violation of the four-power agreement to keep the talks secret.

Britain's Parliament adjourned today until October 25 after debate on foreign affairs in both houses.

Conservatives in the Commons bitterly objected to the adjournment but the government leader Herbert Morrison promised it would be reconvened in event of an emergency.

In the Lords, Conservative leader, the Marquess of Salisbury, urged the Western Allies break off negotiations with Russia on Berlin.

"The only possible hope of enduring peace is to make it absolutely clear to the Russian government, as to all other governments big and small, that if they were so reckless as to embark on the gamble of war they could not possibly win," he said.

Sternists Break Jail; 25 Caught

By Kenneth Bilby

Tel Aviv, Sept. 24 (NYHT).—Twenty-six Stern Gang terrorists staged a spectacular break today from the Tel Aviv police fortress where they were being held in connection with the assassination of Count Folke Bernadotte, United Nations mediator.

An hour later all but one of the Sternists had been rearrested.

The terrorists' abortive flight came on the heels of an outbreak of fighting around Latrun between Jews and the Arab Legion. Heavy artillery shells crashed for the first time on Israel's Burma road and Jewish and Legion infantry with armored support clashed bitterly on the strategic hillside north of Latrun.

The outbreak was considered serious by Jewish officials but by no means fatal to the truce.

There were some indications the battle was provoked by the crash last night of an Arab plane flying to Amman, the Arabs accused a Jewish fighter of shooting it down.

In Austria

2 Red Aides Arrested as Too Friendly

Vienna, Austria, Sept. 24 (U.P.).—Austrian government informants reported tonight that two leading Russian officials in Austria had been arrested by Russian police "for becoming too friendly with Austrian officials."

Official Austrian sources named the two Russians as Akardi Fetotjev, chief of the legal division in the Soviet part of the Allied Control Commission, and his deputy A. Shtedinsky.

It was asserted also that Fetotjev's arrest caused "enormous consternation among all Soviet officials in Vienna" because it had been understood he had friends in high circles in Moscow.

It was asserted that the arrests were made by agents of the MVD, the Russian secret police, by order of Russian authorities in Moscow and without previous notification to Col. Gen. Vladimir Kourassov, the Russian high commander in Austria.

Marshall and Bevin met without French Foreign Minister Robert Schuman.

An aide to Bevin said the Foreign Secretary would meet Paul Ramadier, French Minister of Nation Defense, in a few days.

It was said that Bevin intends to inform Ramadier about Britain's rearmament program and the plans to go ahead at once with the development of an "any-minute" civilian army. The sources drew the inference that Bevin would try to convince Ramadier there was urgent need for France to take similar precautionary measures.

brief entrance to the back door of La Prensa. Employes and police drove them away with fire hoses. They first tried to start a fire at the front door and then tried to batter it down with bricks.

Peron said "traitors of the country" planned to kill him because "international capitalists desire it."

La Epoca, a newspaper supporting Peron, termed Griffith the main representative of an "organization which is tied to Wall Street."

Peron declared Saturday a national holiday because of the transportation strike, called as a sympathy measure supporting him

The President asserted no member of the armed forces, who helped him to power, is involved in the conspiracy. He charged, however, that certain foreign correspondents who "really are international spies" helped the plot. He railed also against the opposition press, "rich oligarchs and political leaders who for 40 years made a laughing stock of the country."

Griffith, of Hartford, Kans., a former teacher of Spanish at the Universities of Kansas and Southern California, was expelled from Argentina on charges of helping foment a bank strike. He said he was made a scapegoat to cover up an "internal scandal." He was in private business here prior to his deportation.

Gen. Arturo Bertollo, chief of the federal police, indicated efforts will be made to extradite Griffith.

Police said the plotters planned to assassinate the Perons when they left the Colon Theater, on October 12, Columbus Day.

Buenos Aires, Sept. 24 (AP).—Paraguayan sources said today a plot against President Natalicio Gonzalez of that country was discovered and quashed. Paraguay was reported calm after some arrests were made.

5 Million French Unionists Stage 2-Hour General Strike

Paris, Sept. 24 (NYHT).—A Nation-wide two-hour general strike was staged by an estimated five million French workers today in protest against high living costs and Premier Henri Queuille's program for coping with them. The strike was orderly, and inconvenience to the public was not excessive.

The strike lasted from 4 p. m. to 6 p. m., but in Paris subway and bus workers remained out the whole day. Factories and government bureaus went on strike for the two hours assigned.

Essential services, such as gas, electricity and automatic telephones, continued to function. United Nations sessions were not interrupted.

Premier Queuille's position in Parliament was not improving noticeably. Early today he won a majority in the National Assembly of only 13—294 to 281—when he asked that local elections be postponed from next month to next March.

[Tonight the Council of the Republic, the upper house, rejected the Assembly's postponement and voted, 156 to 143, for elections next month. The issue goes back to the Assembly again, the Associated Press said.]

Premier Queuille had to postpone until Saturday night a broadcast to the nation because of the radio workers' strike.

Barkley Sees NAM Fight on Unions

Charges 3 Million Spent to Weaken Them, Kill Controls

Atlantic City, Sept. 24 (AP).—Senator Alben W. Barkley accused the National Association of Manufacturers tonight of having spent three million dollars in advertising "to break down the strength of labor organizations and destroy controls on the cost of living."

Addressing 400 delegates to the sixtieth anniversary of the United Hebrew Trades, the Democratic vice presidential nominee said a major worry of American people today is that there may be "a reversion to the old days of domination of this country by the private interests."

A Republican victory in November, he declared, may result in such a reversion, and bring about the loss of social and economic gains of the last 16 years.

The delegates, representing an estimated 600,000 Jewish workers in all trades, were told by Barkley that another result of a change in administration would be the transfer to "less experienced men of the responsibility for working out lasting world peace."

The present Administration, he said, is experienced in dealing with the international situation and, for three years has spent its efforts in behalf of peace.

"But due to the stubbornness of one country which was an ally during the war, peace has not yet been assured," he added.

Barkley said the Republican-controlled Eightieth Congress failed to act to provide housing at reasonable prices and to hold down living costs.

Secretary of Labor Maurice Tobin, another speaker, advocated an immediate increase in the minimum wage in industry from 40 to 75 cents an hour.

Georgia Legislature May Act on Ballot

Savannah, Ga., Sept. 24 (AP).—Gov. M. E. Thompson threatened tonight to call a special session of the Georgia Legislature to force State Democratic leaders to decide "whether they are Democrats or Dixiecrats."

The Governor said in an interview that he would decide by Saturday whether to summon the legislators to enact a law requiring elector-candidates on the general election ballot to be pledged to one candidate or another.

"There are thousands of persons in Georgia who want to vote for Governor Dewey and Governor Warren," he asserted.

"There are thousands who wish to vote for President Truman and Senator Barkley. There are also thousands who would like to vote for Governor Thurmond and Governor Wright.

"As it stands today the people have no assurance that they can make a choice between presidential electors."

Warren Promises Labor Act Revision If It's Oppressive

Detroit, Sept. 24 (U.P.).—Gov. Earl Warren of California promised tonight that a victorious Republican Administration will alter the Taft-Hartley labor law "if any of its provisions are oppressive."

Warren, Republican vice presidential nominee, spoke in a crowded Masonic Temple auditorium at the kickoff of a GOP drive to capture predominantly Democratic Detroit. Senator Arthur Vandenberg and Senator Homer Ferguson, both Michigan Republicans, spoke briefly before the Warren address.

Warren said he believed that "we need a national labor policy that strives to make the rules of the game fair, and if experience shows the law does not do this, let's change it."

In back platform appearances at Toledo and at Marion, the California Governor asked that labor and management "get together to solve their problems."

Asking for "true Americanism" during the coming campaign, Warren urged the more than 1000 persons gathered at his train at Marion to see and hear every other candidate.

"I hope you will give them the same warm welcome you gave me," he said. "This is true Americanism. When we neglect our Government, when we let special interests in, then we get into trouble."

Wallace Likens U. S. Foreign Policy to Reds'

Youngstown, Ohio, Sept. 24 (AP).—Henry Wallace said tonight that if Russia stifles freedom and encourages dictatorship, those charges are "at least equally true of the present foreign policy of Truman and Dewey."

Wallace, the Progressive Party candidate for President, came to this steel-making city to picture President Truman as "every bit as much a servant of international big business" as Gov. Thomas E. Dewey.

In a speech at a Youngstown rally, Wallace asserted the leaders of the CIO Steelworkers Union by working for Mr. Truman's reelection are really campaigning for Republic Steel Corp. interests.

At a news conference in Cleveland he replied to Mr. Truman's statement at Los Angeles that a vote for Wallace is "wasted." Wallace replied that, on the contrary, "The only really wasted vote is a vote for Truman." Wallace's reasoning was:

"A vote for Dewey is a straight, clear-cut vote for reaction, but a vote for Truman is a wasted vote because he talks one way and acts another. Those who don't believe in reaction will vote for the Progressive Party."

Wallace was asked by one of his supporters at the luncheon whether he has noticed any recent "pickup" in support for his Progressive Party.

He said he was pleased in Rochester, N. Y.; wasn't so sure about Buffalo, N. Y., and liked the feeling in Boston, but Baltimore—"I didn't like the feeling in Baltimore."

Shaking his head, he added:

"That's an awful reactionary place, Baltimore."

Clash in Rio

Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, Sept. 24 (AP).—A clash between special riot police and military police squads was averted in downtown Rio de Janeiro early today after the special police fired into a crowd.

A police commander said Communists called out the military, and that 15 persons, 7 of them special policemen, were injured.

Adventure's End . . .

TAKING THEIR MEDICINE—The Magruder brothers, Buddy, 8, and Glenn, 4, couldn't grin but they could bear it as mother, Mrs. Lyree Magruder, gave each a dose of cough medicine before turning in last night.

Mrs. Edward T. Magruder's family life has been plagued by missing persons.

Recent vanishing act was pulled by her two boys, Buddy, aged 8, and Glenn, 4.

They were tucked in bed at their home, 2334 High st. se., yesterday after catching colds and a reprimand for an all-night soiree with a $5 bill.

In 1942 Magruder was aboard a torpedoed freighter in the Atlantic. It was several days before Mrs. Magruder heard he was one of 16 out of 67 persons who survived.

The Thursday night town-painting by the boys caused their mother similar, if not so tragic, distress.

"We just wanted to spend it," explained Buddy, referring to a $5 bill which Glenn found in an alley after Ketcham School was out Thursday afternoon.

They did the things they'd dreamed of doing, with all the trimmings, for $2.89.

They ate popcorn and candy during a double feature at the Fairlawn Theater. When they emerged, "it was about 9:30," said Buddy, "and we were afraid of getting whipped if we went home." They sought an after-the-theater spot for hamburgers and soda pop.

As their parents and police combed the neighborhood, the boys had fashioned hammock-like sleeping facilities with burlap bags in a vacant lot about two miles from home.

Police found them having an early breakfast of doughnuts at a restaurant, and turned them over to their parents.

Truman Voted Ballot Rights By La. House

Baton Rouge, La., Sept. 24 (AP).—The all-Democratic Louisiana house of Representatives voted today to let President Truman's supporters list him on the State's general election ballot provided they do not call him a Democrat.

The bill now goes to the Senate where under speeded-up procedure it can be acted on by Sunday.

While Mr. Truman's supporters carried their main point, the States' Rights Democrats apparently won the latest skirmish—a backstage struggle for the name "Democrat" and the rooster emblem which traditionally has symbolized the party in Louisiana.

The Democratic State central committee two weeks ago gave those to the States' Rights candidates and dropped Mr. Truman's name completely off the ballot. The committee named Governors J. Strom Thurmond of South Carolina and Fielding L. Wright of Mississippi the official Louisiana Democratic candidates for President and Vice President.

The bill passed by the House today provides that any 10 Louisiana voters could put Mr. Truman's name and those of elector candidates for him on the Louisiana ballot. They could list them without designation or adopt a new party name. But they couldn't call them Democratic, nor "National Democratic."

The original bill was several times amended since it was introduced Wednesday night when the legislators met on hasty summons by Gov. Earl K. Long.

Texas Judge Rejects Plea Of Johnson

Houston, Tex., Sept. 24 (AP).—Federal Circuit Judge J. C. Hutcheson, jr., tonight held he has no authority to stay execution of an injunction which prevents Lyndon Johnson's name from being placed on the November election ballot as the Texas Democratic United States senatorial nominee.

Coke Stevenson, Johnson's opponent in the State's August 28 second Democratic primary, obtained the injunction in a Federal District Court.

Judge Hutcheson said the full U. S. Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals will hear Johnson's appeal from the injunction in Atlanta, Ga., October 4, but State statutis require that the Texas ballot be completed by October 3.

Johnson's attorneys said they can go to United States Supreme Court Justice Black, in charge of Fifth circuit affairs, or try to obtain a writ of prohibition, putting their argument on paper and sending copies around to individual members of the five-man Court of Appeals for a decision.

Head of Voters League Urges More Women to Seek Office

Too many women are waiting to be asked to run for public office and accept appointments, Miss Anna Lord Strauss, national president of the League of Women voters declared yesterday in Bethesda.

Speaking to the Montgomery County League, Miss Strauss urged more women to seek office in local governments. "The men are ambitious for top jobs but the women are waiting to be asked," she said.

Mrs. Leona Rush, Republican member of the Maryland House of Delegates, and Mrs. Alice Hostetler, Democrat and a candidate for the State Senate in the 1946 primaries, told of work women can do in their respective parties.

Mrs. Rush urged Republican women to join GOP clubs and work in the county's Dewey-Warren-Beall headquarters at Bethesda.

"Elections are won by voters, with convictions, who will work and stand for them," Hrs. Hostetler said. She emphasized the importance of voting in primaries and knowing precinct chairmen.

The meeting, attended by 200 women, was held at the Bethesda Woman's Club. It opened the fall activities of the league under the presidency of Mrs. J. R. Hemingway.

Stock Dealings of duPont, 7 Other Firms To Be Checked by Antitrust Investigators

Chicago, Sept. 24 (AP).—The vast E. I. duPont de Nemours & Co. industrial empire came under the scrutiny of Federal antitrust investigators today.

Issuance of subpenas against eight corporations brought to light the start of a Federal grand jury investigation into whether antitrust laws may have been violated. The grand jury will begin its work here Thursday.

Melville Williams, Assistant Attorney General in charge of the Chicago office of the antitrust division, declined to comment on the inquiry.

Eight Concerns Named

Subpenas for eight business concerns, some dating back to 1915, were issued against these eight corporations: E. I. du Pont de Nemours & Co.; General Motors Corp.; United States Rubber Co., Ethyl Corp., North American Aviation, Inc., Kinetic Chemicals, Inc., Bendix Aviation Corp., and Remington Arms Co.

The summonses have been served on all but Remington Arms.

Through the grand jury inquiry the Government will attempt to determine if sales, purchases and exchanges of stock holdings between and among the companies violates the antitrust law.

DuPont spokesmen reached at Wilmington, Del., said the company will make no comment on the report "at this time."

Asked whether company representatives would appear if ordered at Chicago, a spokesman said "of course. We don't ignore subpenas."

Records Called For

The subpenas call for:

1. Records showing officers and officials of the companies, particularly as to the sales and purchasing managers.

2. Total amounts of capital stock now outstanding and changes in the totals which have been made through the years; when the changes were made.

3. Records showing the number of shares of each type of capital stock in each company, and those which are actually owned by or beneficially held for the eight companies already named, or by any member of the duPont family, or by any of five other companies: Christiana Securities Co., du Pont Securities Co., General Industries Co., Delaware Realty & Investment Corp., and the Rubber Securities Co.

4. All records showing the number of shares of stock acquired by the subpenaed company in each of the other companies first named, and also in the Chevrolet Motors Corp., General Motors Security Co., Rubber Securities Co. and International Freighting Co.

5. All records showing total sales and purchases dating back to 1915 in connection with the duPont and General Motors Co.; dating back to 1927 in connection with the United States Rubber Co.; back to 1928 concerning the Bendix and North American companies; 1940 with the Ethyl and Kinetic companies, and 1931 with the Remington Arms Co.

2 Are Sought In Beatings

New York, Sept. 24 (U.P.).—A 10-State police alarm was sounded today for two men indicted on charges of assaulting union officials, by a grand jury investigating alleged racketeering in New York's billion-dollar garment industry.

The men, identified as Charles Kaminetsky, 36, and Martin Fink, 34, alias Emanuel Fink, were indicted after officials of the joint dress board of the International Ladies Garment Workers Union (AFL) testified before the grand jury.

Three officials of the board were beaten Monday by five men.

Other union officials joined David Dubinsky, ILGWU president, in charging that gangster successors of "Murder Incorporated" were moving in on the garment industry with a new "protection" racket.

The district attorney's office revealed that Kaminetsky had a record of seven arrests, including a conviction of being an accessory to murder when he sent money to Sidney Markham, convicted killer, before Markham was caught and executed.

Fink has been arrested six times, the last time in September when he walked into Polyclinic Hospital with gunshot wounds which he refused to explain. He was charged with vagrancy.

FTC Launches Its Red Feather Drive for $6000

Mrs. Robert E. Freer, wife of the commission chairman, and William G. Gilks, manager of the Government Unit of the $4,566,790 area-wide campaign, spoke at two meetings attended by employes. A film depicting the work of the Community Chest was shown.

The 1949 campaign is designed to raise funds for operation of 104 agencies and the USO. Chauncey G. Parker is general campaign chairman.

The twentieth annual Red Feather drive opens formally on Red Feather Day—October 7.

Trust Action Filed Against Aluminum Co.

New York, Sept. 24 (U.P.).—The Department of Justice today began court proceedings to break up an alleged monopoly of the country's aluminum industry by the Aluminum Co. of America.

The latest move was an application submitted to the Manhattan Federal District Court asking the court to "establish competitive conditions" in the industry.

Alcoa's president branded the Justice Department's move as "pure election-year politics" and said the company's competitors enjoyed "great competitive advantages" which the Government had given them.

The department's application specifically asked the court to force the company to slash its own size and power drastically in accordance with a 1945 judgment that Alcoa was operating as an illegal monopoly.

Attorney General Tom Clark, in a statement to the court, said that "excessive concentration of economic power is a threat to our democratic institutions," but indicated that the Government had no idea of forcing the sprawling Alcoa empire out of business.

He made it plain, however, that the department intended to inject competition into the aluminum industry by giving smaller operators a better chance to compete with the immense concern. The department did not make any specific suggestion of how it would have this done. Rather, Clark said Alcoa would be given a chance to submit a plan to the Government showing how it could dispose of certain of its properties and thus end its alleged stranglehold on the industry.

The department also suggested that the court submit a plan of its own for study.

Roy A. Hunt, Alcoa president, said in Pittsburgh that his company had been bogged down in antitrust litigation for 11 long years and that the Justice Department deliberately "maneuvered" to postpone the court action until "the eve of elections."

Tobey Weeps As Owner Says He'll Save Mill

Nashua, N. H., Sept. 24 (U.P.).—A United States Senator and a millionaire industrialist clasped hands and wept today while an audience of 250 millworkers whose jobs were at stake cheered their pledge to save Nashua's vital textile mills.

Tears rolled down the cheeks of Senator Charles W. Tobey (R., N. H.) and filled the eyes of President Royal Little of Textron, Inc., as they joined in a three-way agreement with J. Harold Daoust, New Hampshire-Vermont director of the Textile Workers Union (CIO).

The agreement involved a plan to give the Jackson mill a one-year reprieve from it scheduled closing. This would assure the jobs of 1000 workers until it was learned whether the mill could operate at a "reasonable profit."

Little also promised to try to find a new "sewing operation" to keep the Nashua mill, and part of its 2500 workers, employed.

As Tobey and Little clasped hands, the Senator called on the audience to stand and applaud. Cheers filled the high school auditorium where they had been holding hearings into the scheduled shutdowns.

"Don't be cynical about this," Tobey warned newsmen. "There's something fine about this. You can't spit on it. Together we'll go forward to prosperity and material happiness."

Little took the floor to tell the textile workers whose jobs were at stake that "if the people of Nashua can overcome the bitterness against me and the company, we will co-operate together in a plan to get more jobs here."

After the hearing, Daoust issued a statement insisting that the investigation of Textron and Little's operations be continued despite the three-way pledge.

"What is done in Nashua will not restore the jobs which Textron has destroyed elsewhere in New England," said Daoust. "This investigation must go on until all facts are determined and appropriate Federal action is taken for the protection of the textile industry and its workers."

"At the risk of seeming ungracious," he said, "we must point out that this still leave some 2300 workers unemployed" in Nashua.

Tobey told reporters his committee would investigate manufacturing in interstate commerce and might take up the whole cotton textile industry.

Tobey told newsmen his probe would not be limited to Texton, Inc. Hearings would be held later in Boston, Providence, R. I., and Washington, he said.

Phone Unions Plan Protests In Pay Fight

Parades, meetings and other demonstrations to protest the Bell System's "refusal" to grant "satisfactory" wage increases were agreed on yesterday by representatives of unionized telephone workers across the country.

While union officials representing 300,000 workers sat down for a third time at Hotel Annapolis to map joint strategy in negotiations, there was a walkout of telephone workers in two Michigan exchanges. A request for a strike vote came from the Southeast.

The walkouts in Michigan were termed illegal by the Michigan Bell Telephone Co. At Lansing, 100 of 125 workers left their jobs. Twelve employes at Ishpeming walked out.

A spokesman said after the conference that the "public will be invited to all our meetings because we want everyone to know just what sort of treatment phone workers are getting from the Bell System."

He said reports disclosed that tens of thousands of workers have been offered no wage increases while many others have been offered $1 and $2 weekly wage hikes.

In Washington, most Chesapeake & Potomac workers were offered wage boosts up to $4, with the majority to get $2, by the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co. They turned down the proposal at meetings in Turner's Arena Thursday.

Speaking for the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co., F. G. Macarow, vice president and general manager, said the company has offered increases based on surveys of wages paid by other businesses in Washington for work requiring similar skills and training.

Macarow said his company felt settlement of wages on a community pattern basis to be the "fairest policy for both the employes who do the work and the telephone customers who pay the bill."

NLRB Timing In ITU Case Is Questioned

Indianapolis, Sept. 24 (AP).—The contempt case against the AFL International Typographical Union ended today with Federal Judge Luther M. Swygert questioning whether the Government was tardy in filing its charges against the union.

The court took the case under advisement after closely querying Winthrop Johns, associate counsel of the National Labor Relations Board, about NLRB timing in filing the suit.

A decision may not be issued for several weeks.

President Truman has charged that the action against the ITU was filed only after Senator Taft (R., Ohio) "put the heat on" NLRB attorneys in a Washington conference with them and newspaper publishers' representatives.

Taft denied the President's contention, saying Mr. Truman in making it was only trying to "curry favor with the labor bosses."

In final argument before Judge Swygert today, Gerhard Van Arkel, the ITU's attorney, said "the only reason" the NLRB general counsel's office brought the case was because of Senator Taft's urging.

Judge Swygert noted that the general counsel's office knew as early as April of the ITU's standard contract offer made to publishers after the injunction.

The judge wanted to know if the NLRB attorneys were not "condoning" the offering of these contract terms to publishers when they waited until August to file the contempt action.

"We haven't condoned anything, your honor," Johns replied.

"Well, what do you call it then," Swygert said. "You go along a while not doing anything about it, then suddenly you do something."

Dock Dispute Mediation Set

New York, Sept. 24 (AP).—Federal mediators said today that separate meetings with management and labor were scheduled next week in an effort to avert a threatened walkout by 45,000 East Coast AFL longshoremen.

A strike by the International Longshoremen's Association involving ports from Portland, Me., to Hampton Roads, Va., is threatened after November 9 when a Federal injunction runs out.

The dispute involves overtime pay for night workers and on holidays and weekends.

Thomas R. Steutel of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service said he and Mediator Bernard Greenberg would meet Monday morning with the longshoremen's Atlantic Coast district bargaining committee of more than 100 delegates.

126 Delinquents Sign Up for Draft

Tardy draft registrants yesterday swamped District Selective Service headquarters after a warning Wednesday by draft officials to hand "willful delinquents" over to Federal authorities.

A total of 126 late comers signed up for the peacetime draft, leaving the number of delinquents close to 850, Frank D. Norton, deputy District draft director, feported. In addition, he said, 10 youths just turned 18 have registered.

The number of men from 18 through 25 who failed to register during the prescribed period—while "relatively small" when balanced against the 54,086 men who did sign up then—constitutes "a problem we hadn't counted on," Norton said.

The time is "drawing very close," he warned, "when we shall be compelled to turn delinquents over to the Federal authorities."

He added that registration for latecomers and men who have become 18 will resume Monday at draft healquarters, 19th and D sts. nw. No registration will be done today.

The District has received an opening draft call for 55 men to be inducted in November. Actual induction date has not been set. Preinduction physical and mental examinations will begin early in October.

Superstructure Work on Bridges To Begin in Dec.

Work on the superstructure of East Highway Bridge across the Potomac will begin December 1, and on the South Capitol Street Bridge to Anacostia December 15, officials of the District Department of Highways said yesterday.

Contract for construction at Highway Bridge was awarded May 5 to the Bethlehem Steel Co., which began fabricating the steel. The superstructure is expected to be completed in November, 1949.

The American Bridge Co. was awarded the contract for the superstructure of the South Capitol Street bridge in November, 1947. Forty per cent of the metal is being fabricated, and erection will be completed by November, 1949, officials said.

White High School Cadet Corps Rolls 322 Below Last Year

District school officials yesterday reported a large drop in enrollments in the white high school cadet corps—but a remedy may be in the offing.

A total of 530 boys have enrolled in the cadet program of the 10 white high schools, it was revealed. The figure represents a decrease of 322 from last year.

As the sagging enrollment total was announced, however, all boys in the schools were being queried as to whether they would sign up in the cadet corps if drills were held during the school day, instead of before or after it.

One high school principal, whose cadet corps now numbers around 30 boys, said that 77 additional boys had promised to sign up if drills became a part of the school day.

Meanwhile, Maj. Gen. Hobart R. Gay, who commands the Military District of Washington, yesterday promised his headquarters will do "everything in its power" to help improve the cadet program. The Military District supplies the corps with rifles and ammunition under a long-time agreement with the schools.

The agreement provides, General Gay said, that a minimum of 200 boys is to be enrolled in the white high school cadet corps. To bolster the lagging enrollments he has made several recommendations, one of which is to hold drills on school time.

General Gay denied that he plans to remove Army support from the schools because of the low enrollments. Such action, he said, would have to come from the commanding general of the Second Army, which conducts regular inspections of the District cadet corps.

By schools, cadet corps enrollments so far are:

Anacostia, 57; Central, 62; Coolidge, 22; Eastern, 50; McKinley, 29; Roosevelt, 104; Western, 97; Wilson, 72; Bell Vocational, 12, and Chamberlain Vocational, 25.

Incomplete figures for Negro high schools indicate that enrollments will equal those of last year.

Greek Guerilla Advance Halted

Athens, Greece, Sept. 24 (U.P.)—Greek press reports said today government troops have halted the guerilla advance in the Vitsi Mountain sector of northern Greece, and forced rebel units to abandon the heights commanding Kastoria.

Dispatches said, however, the Greek army still must advance seven miles to regain ground lost because of a sudden guerilla offensive.

Draft-Defier Given Week To Reconsider

New York, Sept. 24 (AP).—An 18-year-old Greenwich Village actor today was given one week to decide whether he wants to register for the draft or be held for Federal grand jury action.

Perkoff

The young actor, Stuart Zane Perkoff, surrendered to the FBI yesterday. He said he did not register under the peacetime draft law because he considered the law a "step leading to complete totalitarianism."

The week's adjournment of the case to give Perkoff time to think the matter over was granted when he appeared before Federal Judge Edward A. Conger. The extension was requested by the youth's attorney, Julian Cornell, who said: "I'd like the adjournment to talk with him and to get in touch with his parents."

"Yes," agreed the judge, "he's too young to have ideas—he's only a baby—but these young men who are going away today are only babies too."

Actor Faces Morals Charge

New York, Sept. 24 (U.P.).—Rex Ingram, '53, prominent actor who once played "De Lawd" in "The Green Pastures," was arrested today on a charge of violating the Mann Act.

Ingram

He was alleged to have induced Jeanette Ann Hughes, a 15-year-old white girl, to come here from her home in Salina, Kans., and spend last weekend with him in a Broadway hotel. The complaint originated with the United States district attorney's office in Kansas City, Kans.

Ingram was arrested in the Times Square area by an FBI agent. Arraigned before United States Commissioner Isaac Platt, he failed to make $2500 bond and was remanded to jail pending a preliminary hearing on October 4. He refused to waive extradition because, he said, he was scheduled to open in a leading role in the Theater Guild's play, "Charleston 1822" in Boston on October 4.

(The girl was sentenced to the State Girls' Industrial School at Beloit, Kans., today on a delinquency charge, the Associated Press said.)

The guild announced soon afterward that Ingram no longer was considered to be available for the play.

Assistant United States Attorney Amedeo Lauritano said Ingram met Miss Hughes, in July at Comoga Park, Calif., where she was vacationing with her aunt. En route back to New York, Ingram stopped in Salina to see her again. Last Friday, Miss Hughes went to Kansas City, Mo., telling her parents she wanted to shop. But instead she phoned Ingram and he arranged her plane passage to New York, Lauritano charged, adding that Ingram met her at the airport and took her to the Broadway hotel. The girl flew back to Kansas City Sunday, he continued, and when questioned told her mother of her trip.

Trees Reprieved

Judging from the statements of Highway Department and other District officials, the alleged threat to the elm trees along New York ave. seems to have been much ado about nothing. Although studies in the past have recommended removal, officials emphasize that there is no present agitation for such action either by the city or by Capital Transit. The inference that tree removal plans were still current was apparently based upon a misinterpretation of intention. The furor that has been aroused ought to convince our local officialdom of the way the community feels about saving these trees.

Politics And Loyalty

While one member of the House Committee on Un-American Activities, Representative McDowell, says he thinks the committee has got the goods on three "atom spies," or at least enough of the goods to justify prosecution, another member of the committee has partially dissociated himself from its methods. Representative Hebert, in a sharp blast, criticized the shabby treatment given Dr. Condon and acknowledged that politics has played a large part in the Thomas group's investigations.

It may be pertinent to notice that Representative Hebert is a Democrat and perhaps for that reason more inclined to find fault with the antics of his Republican colleagues. But whatever the motive, it is cause for appreciation and applause that at least one prominent and active member of the committee is concerned over its abuses of the investigative procedure and its slandering of reputations in a ceaseless campaign to make the headlines.

It is worth recalling that while the Un-American Activities Committee has been trying to pin disloyalty on various and sundry people in and out of the Government, the regular loyalty screening processes set up by the Government have been in quiet and far more successful operation. In carrying out the President's mandate to investigate all Federal employes, the FBI and the various loyalty review boards have not found it necessary to call on Mrs. Kasenkina, either.

There are in the neighborhood of two million Federal workers all of whom the FBI is required to screen. Of them, to date 6344 cases have appeared to warrant "full field investigation." This is a little over three tenths of 1 per cent of the total, not a very impressive proportion when it is remembered that even innocent membership in an alleged front organization is enough to point the finger of suspicion. However, among these 6344 cases, 44 instances of mistaken identity have already been found. We think it likely, in view of the record of the Thomas Committee, that in its hands these people would have suffered public calumniation first and their innocence only discovered afterward and without publicity.

The extreme caution and the careful attention to individual rights exercised in the loyalty review program is responsible, as Secretary of Commerce Sawyer pointed out in his recent speech to the Veterans of Foreign Wars, for the fact that neither the Thomas nor the Ferguson Committee has been able to find a single instance of a person of proved disloyalty presently on the Federal payroll. The virtues of publicity are undeniable in a political campaign, but they have no function except hindrance in a sober and effective loyalty program.

Unification At Work

Unification of the armed forces, which for a long period seemed to be merely a semantic shield for quarreling as usual, is gaining meaningful substance. Perhaps the most impressive instance of unification at work is the activity under the direction of the Munitions Board. The board's most essential job is to prepare the country's industrial resources to support military action. But the board also is charged with other important functions, including the stockpiling of critical materials and the coordination of purchases by the three services. Some 700 million dollars' worth of strategic materials already have been acquired for storage against an emergency. The board also has worked out a program whereby 75 per cent of the armed force purchases are coordinated—for example, one service buys all food for the three components. This sensible streamlining of supply should eliminate much wasteful overlap which was all too evident during the war.

But the most encouraging indication that the three services are thinking as one—at least on the top level—is the disclosure that joint plans have been devised for industrial mobilization and military strategy in the event of war. Defense Secretary Forrestal and Navy Undersecretary Kenney both referred in speeches last week to the industrial mobilization requirements which have been delivered to the Munitions Board. From this it was correctly inferred that since the services have agreed on what their requirements will be, they must have a unified plan of action. In other words, although strategy must necessarily remain flexible, the roles of the respective arms have been set beyond the point of controversy and the military establishment is prepared to function as a unit.

In addition to evolving the strategic plan, the Joint Chiefs of Staff are now working on a unified military budget, resolving the needs of the services within the maximum expenditures set by the Administration. The presentation of monetary requests in unified form should do much to eliminate the end runs to Congress by one or another service, though Congress itself will have to cooperate by treating the budget as a unit. In one other area there is encouragement in the elevation of Maj. Gen. Alfred M. Gruenther, the director of the joint staff of 100 serving under the Joint Chiefs of Staff, to an unofficial post as military assistant to Secretary Forrestal. This undoubtedly will help achieve a better liaison between the military planners and their civilian superiors, though it does not yet approach the concept of a single military chief of staff under the Secretary of Defense which in this newspaper's opinion is vital to integrated defense responsibility.

Dewey's Atoms

Governor Dewey's generalized remarks about the future of atomic energy need to be clarified. Mr. Dewey made it clear that he thoroughly supports military applications of atomic energy and the necessity for safeguarding the "decisive secret" until the threat of aggression has been removed. He pointed out, logically enough, that this is retarding beneficial peacetime uses of atomic energy. But then he branched off on a tangent about the "dead hand of Government." When the military threat is removed, he asserted, it is evident that "atomic progress cannot continue to be left exclusively to the Government." Mr. Dewey proposed that "we go on from there and give American initiative and skill a chance to turn this power into production and peaceful account."

From several analogies which Mr. Dewey drew between atomic energy and the development of the electrical and transportation industries, it appears that he regards atomic energy as merely another source of power. In this he betrays considerable confusion, it seems to us, and even a fundamental misunderstanding of the whole theory behind atomic energy control policy. For if there is any one fact which has marked all definitive studies of atomic energy from the Acheson-Lilienthal report forward, it is that atomic energy is not just another force, but a force so huge that security can only be had through complete governmental monopoly over production of fissionable materials at every stage. This is the basis of the McMahon Act under which the Atomic Energy Commission was created. It is also the assumption of the Baruch plan for international control of atomic energy.

Indeed, it may be asked whether Mr. Dewey recognized the international implications of what he was saying. While Secretary Marshall in Paris was pleading again for international control of the means of production of this great force through an all-embracive international development authority, Mr. Dewey was calling in effect for the eventual relinquishment of a segment of governmental control to private industry. Superficially, at least, this was a contradiction of the very premise on which the American case is predicated. Secretary Marshall would have an understandable complaint if he felt that the Republican leader had half-sawed the limb out from under him.

Perhaps all that Governor Dewey intended was to call for more industrial participation in peaceful development of the atom. Even here, however, Mr. Dewey's comments were sufficiently vague and loaded with catch phrases as to invite bewilderment and concern. Moreover, his repeated reference to the "secret" of atomic energy raises a question as to whether he realizes fully just of what that secret consists. It is a secret of production methods, not of basic physics. American security lies in the ability and capacity to produce the atomic bomb rather than in any carefully guarded formula.

As a matter of fact, the Acheson-Lilienthal report envisaged large participation by private business in the peaceful use of atomic materials. For example, power may become a by-product of the manufacture of fissionable materials. Private industry could well participate in the purchase and distribution of this power. Similarly, reactors may be developed for producing atomic power without creating new fission. In other words, it is entirely possible that reactors will be produced which cannot be used for military purposes but will be perfectly safe for use in power plants of various sorts by private firms. But the Acheson-Lilienthal report and all subsequent studies have been firm in the conclusion that the basic production of fissionable materials must rest permanently with the Government safely to serve all the people. This is the philosophy on which the Atomic Energy Commission is operating.

By implication Mr. Dewey has overlooked the fact that an important number of private firms already are participating in the atomic energy program under direction of the Government. A growing segment of private industry, for example, is concerned with the use of radioisotopes in medicine and other fields. To be sure, such participation is not nearly large enough. There are vast amounts of nonsecret information that could be made available to private industry. Mr. Dewey would have been on solid ground if he had called for more governmental initiative in relaying such information in understandable form to the persons who can use it.

What Mr. Dewey said is not so important as the tenor of his approach. Some industrial firms are known to be anxious to get their fingers into production of the basic stuff of atomic energy—for private profit. Moreover, several proposals have been advanced to nullify the McMahon Act in such fashion, turning all military production and custody of atomic bombs back to the Army and rendering the Atomic Energy Commission little more than a licensing agency. We earnestly hope that Governor Dewey has no truck with such proposals—that he will repudiate any suggestion of scuttling the structure of present atomic policy, repealing the McMahon Act and vitiating the Baruch plan. There is no more vital issue before the people than how atomic energy is to be developed for their benefit.

Swedish Results

Communism has again suffered a setback in Europe in a decline of representation in the Swedish Rikstag from 15 to 9 seats. Equally, however, the other extreme has lost favor with the electorate, viz, the Conservative Party, which is reduced from 39 to 22 seats. The gainer, from 26 to 57 seats, is the Liberal Party, which now becomes the main opposition to the majority Social Democrats, who, judging from the preliminary results, now have 112 seats, a loss of 3. The result is regarded as a surprise, though why it should be so, in view of the situation in Sweden, is curious. Sweden is one of the fortunate countries in Europe which has not shared in the general liquidation of the middle class by inflation. Moreover, the Swedes have a great respect for intellectual leadership, and the head of the Liberal Party is Bertil Ohlin, who, in addition to being an internationally known economist, is a man of vigorous speech, something rare in Sweden. Professor Ohlin looks very strange in a world composed either of fully planned or of semiplanned economies. Like most Swedish economists, he believes in what the World Council of Churches recently referred to as "laissez faire (unregulated)." If he were in office, no doubt, he would have to make concessions from his theories, especially in view of the state intervention which over the years has been forced on Sweden by the prevailing Social Democratic Party.

Hitherto the Social Democrats sometimes have had to take the Communists into account in retaining control of the Rikstag. In this respect the Communists may still count. Only if the Social Democrats had increased their vote would the Communists have been sidetracked. Perhaps the Social Democrats, in order to accomplish this, might make a working arrangement with the 30-strong Agrarians. In that event there may be some tempering of government interference in business, but in foreign relations little change need be expected, for there are only degrees of difference in the approach to external policy of all the parties save the Communists. Hitherto they have all aimed at the retention of Swedish neutrality in this uneasy and polarized world. This is a difficult task, and is generally qualified by "leaning" on one group, then another. Three years ago the lean was on Russia, and Sweden came to a trade and credit arrangement with Moscow, more in fright than in business wisdom. Now the country, afflicted with an economic difficulty arising in part from that arrangement, is leaning on the Marshall Plan. But the fear of Moscow, which every now and again sounds a warning against Swedish entanglement with the West, keeps the Swedes stiff and aloof from the political integration which in other countries has become the counterpart of economic aid. The arena of world strategy now contains Sweden, so that one of these days Sweden may have to take the plunge, though, if history is any guide, it might then be too late.

Hyderabad

The Nizam of Hyderabad has done more than any other single individual or than any international body could possibly have done to rehabilitate the reputation of the government of India. In a statement from his capital city, now fully under control of the Indian army, he has repudiated the Moslem advisers who formerly surrounded him. They kept him "completely helpless" and fomented the terror that was Delhi's excuse for the invasion. At the same time the Nizam has dismissed the Hyderabad mission to the United Nations.

The effect of these actions is to remove the Hyderabad issue from the possibility of being any longer considered an international matter, or rather to confirm the settlement of that question already achieved by the superiority of Indian arms. At the same time, while this may seem by implication to justify the arbitrary resort of India to military measures, it does not and cannot remove the responsibility under which India lies to make its dealing with Hyderabad conform to justice and equity.

WILD GEESE AT NIGHT

We heard the geese in flight. You sighed in your sleep,
Turning against my shoulder. In the deep
Dark, between fringed lid and iris, the eye
Awoke to watch for a growing wedge in the April sky.
We forget the lighted city of restless sound—
Remembered the marsh places, the weed-thick ground—
Remembered water shining up between rushes and hedges
Through moonlight broken and bright at the rippled edges.
We heard water stirring dry leaf and stalk,
Saw the secret nest hidden away from the hawk
And the geese flying down, one after another, crying
Against the night. "Wild geese," you said from your sleep.
"The wild geese—flying—"

High School Cadets

A news item in your issue of September 22, relative to the possible discontinuance of Department of the Army support to the cadet program in six District high schools, seems worthy of discussion.

General Gay is entirely correct in his viewpoint that the schools in question have violated their contracts with the Department of the Army. The comment by school officials who stated that they have no way of forcing boys to join the cadet corps and that the high cost of the uniform may be detrimental to continuing enrollment smacks of an attitude of complaisant willingness to give in when conditions are not ideal.

The solution would seem to lie in the method by which the Boston, Mass., high school cadet corps is operated. No physically able male student may be awarded a diploma or graduate unless he has completed four years of training in military drill. No matter what his marks, so long as he is physically able to march and drill, it is required that he comply with that regulation before he can qualify for graduation.

As far as the alleged high cost of the uniform is concerned, many ways may be found to combat that difficulty. I know that my friends and I, having to do the same in Boston, purchased secondhand outfits from graduating seniors or borrowed uniforms.

The burden of making the system work lies not with the Department of the Army, which will lend its support to any high school living within certain standards, but rather with the directors of the school system concerned and the parents of students attending those schools.

"Truman's Tactics"

As a regular reader of your editorial page, I was somewhat surprised at the partisanship displayed in your September 21 editorial, "Truman's Tactics." The statement that "Thoughtful citizens cannot help asking, however, whether the President is doing himself, the country or the cause of democratic government any good by his onslaught on Congress," is particularly shocking. Since when is it harmful to the cause of democratic government to give the voters the facts?

The record of the Eightieth Congress clearly indicates that all the important issues of greatest concern to the people were scuttled, and that Congress definitely did not always act in the public interest. A more careful examination of the record will reveal that on issues of such vital concern to the people as housing, education and inflation, to mention only a few, the decisions were made strictly along party lines.

Any man who is willing to be honest with the voters, even at the expense of reflecting adversely on some members of his own party, should be admired for his courage rather than scorned for his political tactics. It is certainly by far more commendable for President Truman to give the facts to the people, even though some Democrats are involved, than it is for Mr. Dewey to profess liberalism, and yet take under his wing such men as Senator Brooks, Governor Green and Mr. Grundy.

In summing up, you state that the President's campaigning places him in the disadvantageous position of challenger. I disagree that the position is disadvantageous, because it seems to me that the President is challenging the voters and not Mr. Dewey. Challenging them to examine the record, study the issues and arrive at a decision based on facts and not on aloof generalities which promise Utopia without commitment on specific issues.

German Assets

Over and over again, grave charges are made in the American press alleging that Switzerland is evading her obligations and deliberately neglecting to liquidate German assets as she undertook to do under the Washington Agreement.

Every time such a charge is made, we are overwhelmed by queries from our customers and friends in America.

To answer these charges once for all, and simplify correspondence, we have prepared a brief statement entitled: "Why German Assets Have Not Been Liquidated," issued as a supplement to our latest statistical bulletin. Before issue we had the statement carefully checked by the Swiss competent official quarters.

"Nonpaying Patients"

The editorial, "Washington—Mecca of Mediocrity," in the September issue of the Annals of the District Medical Society, and another article in the same issue which made use of the same charges as an argument against compulsory health insurance, are on a par with the practice in District hospitals of classifying as "nonpaying patients," in the same category with indigent patients, those patients who have been paying all or part of their own health insurance premiums.

Whatever may be their excuse for this latter practice in the interest of keeping their accounts straight, such an appellation by medical groups is particularly offensive indeed, since these patients must satisfy every requirement of "paying patients" by personally paying for every cent of difference between the coverage guaranteed by the insurance and the total cost chargeable to a "paying patient."

Inasmuch as it is reasonable to assume that the great majority of these insured patients must have had to assume their obligations in this respect (or such insurance would not have continued in operation), it is indicative of a high element of injustice thus callously to classify them as "nonpaying" merely because part of their hospital costs are not collectible directly from them.

Unequal Schools

Apropos of the existing dangers that threaten the press, Sir Willmott Lewis once wrote: "We desire a newspaper which shall give us the news impartially delivered and a transcript of the prevailing opinions of man, so that the readers may ponder these opinions." The Washington Post's recent coverage of the movement for equal school facilities in Virginia is one of many illustrations of The Post's acceptance of this canon of modern journalism.

One of the most tragic results of the 250 mutually blighting years of the master and slave relationship in America is the white man's frequent adoption of an un-Christian and undemocratic—to say nothing of an illogical—rationale to justify his treatment of the Negro. In this connection, one should examine several examples of such a rationale which has been used often since the adoption of the civil rights plank in the Democratic Party's Platform:

(1) J. Strom Thurmond, the Dixiecrat candidate for President, made the following observation on the Civil Rights Plank: "We believe that there are not enough troops in the Army to force the Southern people to admit the Negroes into our theaters, swimming pools and homes." This is the first of several attempts to distort the Civil Rights issue with the result that, to use the words of Ralph McGill writing recently in the New York Times: "Thousands of rural Southerners believe that if they vote for Truman, they will be voting for social equality, for intermarriage, for opening their schools, churches and social gatherings to Negroes . . . This party, despite its label, is really the anti-Negro party."

(2) Gov. Ben Laney of Arkansas made the following statements as support for his disapproval of the admission of Edith Mae Irby, a Negro, to the University of Arkansas Medical School: "Hundreds of white boys who tried to get into the medical school before were told they couldn't get in because they lacked room. If we had a medical school big enough to accommodate everybody, then the board's action would have been justified." The university board said that a class of 90 had been accepted from a list of 230 applications from Arkansas residents. Since Miss Irby was one of 90 students selected from 230 Arkansas residents on the basis of scholastic ability, no further comment is necessary on Governor Laney's statement—undemocratic, in my judgment.

(3) The Washington Post account of the King George County school situation reported two comments of significance in this connection: (a) one from a "pleasant looking white haired old woman stooped with age": "That old rascal Abe Lincoln is the cause of all of this. He should have died before he was born! Him and his emancipation!" (b) Superintendent T. Benton Gayle's remark, after admitting that the Negro schools in Virginia were not equal to the white schools: "You can't run a school system properly with such funds ($143,000)." The only inference which I can draw from this remark is that white schools naturally come first; Negro schools will be equal only if funds are sufficient.

(4) The county school officials' justification for the present school situation in the Hoffman-Boston School in Arlington, as reported in The Washington Post of September 20: "In a school such as Hoffman-Boston, with only 180 students in the secondary grades, it is economically impossible to offer as many courses as at Washington-Lee, with about 2100 students."

Such a justification is undemocratic for the following reasons: Every student in the public schools of a democracy is entitled to develop whatever ability he may have, whether it is ability in electrical engineering or any of the numerous subjects offered at the Washington-Lee High School, but not at the Hoffman-Boston School. Why should a lad with a penchant, let us say, for trigonometry, solid geometry, Latin, civics, etc. (all not offered at the Hoffman-Boston School) be denied the opportunity to develop such a penchant merely because, as the school officials point out, there are not enough students in a segregated school to offer such courses?

The Washington Post is to be congratulated on its transcript of such opinions as those listed above so that, to quote the words of Sir Willmott Lewis, "the readers may ponder these opinions."

Washington Calling

By Marquis Childs

Loyalty In Turmoil

AMERICANS who have become increasingly concerned with the rights of the individual and the preservation of basic American freedom must soon come forward with a plan to preserve those rights. If the present drift continues, the structure of American freedom may be seriously impaired.

Pointing this up was the forthright statement of Representative F. Edward Hebert, of Louisiana, that the whole issue of loyalty and disloyalty had now become hopelessly tangled in partisan politics. That statement has needed saying by someone familiar with the controversy for a long time.

Hebert, who can never be accused of even New Dealism, has sat as a member of the House Un-American Activities Committee. As he said in a radio interview, he had seen overwhelming evidence that the motivation of the committee was political. They were not so much interested in getting the facts as in making a case.

At the same time Hebert saw politics in President Truman's charge that the Un-American hearings were merely a "red herring." This is the kind of offhand oversimplification of which the President frequently is guilty.

While the President made his "red herring" charge, which has now been taken up by Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, his own loyalty boards were running a close race with the Un-American Committee.

Although not operating in the same headline-hunting atmosphere as the committee, the President's loyalty-testing system has appeared to be in competition with the Republican Congress in running down individuals with even faintly irregular or heretical thoughts.

THESE individuals, it is true, are not subjected to the public and often irresponsible accusations that pour out of the J. Parnell Thomas propaganda mill. Hebert cited Dr. Edward U. Condon, head of the Bureau of Standards, as an example of one who had been publicly smeared and yet never given an opportunity to reply to vague charges of disloyalty.

It is possible, however, that the secret procedure of the loyalty boards may have an even more damaging effect. Unless the accused individual deliberately chooses to make his case public and expose his entire life and career to view, he has no appeal even to public opinion.

Nor is it any answer to say the number investigated and found disloyal is relatively small. If the future of one individual is unjustly destroyed, there is reason for deep concern. As Dewey said in his opening campaign address, our beliefs put the highest value on each and every individual.

The latest Government loyalty count showed that a full investigation had been completed in 5421 cases. Of that number 883 resigned while the investigation was on or pending an appeal. This compares with 2,110,521 Government employes cleared.

To date departmental loyalty boards have found 54 individuals guilty of disloyalty. They have the right to appeal to the top loyalty board and 21 of this number have served notice of appeals.

LAWYERS who have represented some of the "disloyal" individuals, out of a sense of public duty, report strange accusations. Charges were brought against one Government employe because he had contributed to a fund to hire a lawyer for one of these accused in the Canadian espionage case.

The accused Canadian had been a classmate at college and a former professor requested the contribution, since the accused Canadian did not have funds for counsel. The Canadian was later acquitted of all charges. The Government employe was asked by his department loyalty board if he had made any other contributions.

He replied that he had given $250 to the United Jewish Appeal. A board member then said: "Don't you know this shows almost too much zeal for the underdog?" A department official saw the transcript with this exchange and it was stricken from the record.

All sorts of prejudices inevitably enter; guilt by association is a too common conclusion from the hearsay reports presented to the loyalty boards. The accused is not permitted to confront his accuser.

Responsible citizens, deeply troubled over what such procedures mean should they become generally accepted, long have been considering how the whole matter could be taken out of politics. They have considered a commission, made up of men of unimpeachable integrity, who would in private review the question of loyalty and espionage and perhaps pass on individual cases of those accused publicly by the Thomas Committee or privately by the Administration loyalty system.

In my opinion, some such step must be taken. Men of the caliber of, say, Justice Owen J. Roberts, who came forward with an offer to review the entire problem, could not be rebuffed. Unless such a step is taken, the danger is bound to grow as the campaign becomes more heated.

"Ship Knot"

A Communication

YOUR September 20 editorial, "Ship Knot," is based on inadequate information about the present maritime dispute on the West Coast.

You suggest that the strike is the result of the personal decision of Harry Bridges, and that the entire maritime industry is at the mercy of his personal caprice. The history of the present dispute shows this to be completely untrue. The international Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union is one of the most democratic unions in the United States. Every vital decision in the union, and most certainly a decision to go on strike, is taken only after full discussion and agreement by the membership itself. The present dispute is no exception.

The ILWU has been facing across the collective bargaining table an employer attitude that was succinctly put by Almon Roth, president of the San Francisco Employers' Council, when, testifying before the Senate Labor Committee on the Taft-Hartley Act, he said:

"There is such a thing as paying too high a price for industrial peace. The present lack of balance in labor relations has resulted largely from continual yielding by employers and arbitrators to union demands, under pressure of such potent weapons as the secondary boycott and sympathetic strikes. The most stabilizing influence that could be brought to bear on industrial relations would be a few unsuccessful strikes."

IN THE present dispute the executive board of the union and the national negotiating committee turned down the last offer of the employers. It was the considered opinion of these representatives of the union that the "offer" of the employers' association was insulting; that it amounted to the open shop and the worsening of wages and conditions.

Under the provisions of the Taft-Hartley Act, the National Labor Relations Board scheduled a referendum on the employers' last offer of all the eligible workers in the ILWU and the other union involved. The implication of holding this referendum is, of course, that the union leaders do not reflect accurately the attitude of the rank and file; the rank and file is thus given a chance to accept what the union leaders have already turned down.

To my knowledge, the NLRB referendum on the West Coast was the first ever held. The national negotiating committee decided to use the occasion of the referendum for a display of the solidarity of our union behind the leadership. As an affirmation of our conviction that participation in NLRB activities, under the Taft-Hartley Act, is a trap for all American trade unions, it was proposed that the members boycott the NLRB referendum.

The NLRB held the referendum on August 30 and 31. Not one single ballot was cast. Not one worker went to the polls on the entire waterfront of the Pacific Coast. On September 2 the men stopped working.

THE EMPLOYERS' associations immediately announced that they refused any further dealings with the ILWU and other West Coast unions until they had complied with the Taft-Hartley Act. As your editorial points out, noncompliance is not a requisite to collective bargaining. The employers' associations dragged this red herring into the dispute.

The ILWU, to remove the false issue of compliance or noncompliance from the scene, held a secret referendum of its striking members on signing the anti-Communist affidavits, and also on the last offer of the employers. A coastwise committee was elected by the striking locals to conduct the balloting.

On September 10, the union notified the employers of the results of this referendum. The striking longshoremen voted 97 per cent against accepting the employers' last offer; they voted 94 per cent against signing the non-Communist affidavits. The full details of this vote by union divisions and ports appear in the September 17 issue of the Dispatcher, ILWU paper. The letter to the employers concluded by saying:

"We are now officially proposing that negotiations be resumed between yourselves and such representatives of our union as are selected by it in an effort to reach a settlement of the present strike.

"The union is willing to start from scratch in such negotiations if that is your desire, or it is willing to pick up negotiations at the point they were the night before the strike started."

No reply has ever been received from the employers.

THE MOVEMENT of Army cargoes and urgently needed civilian cargoes to the freeze-over area of Alaska were two problems facing the striking unions. It was the employers alone that absolutely refused to cooperate with the Federal agencies.

From the outset the ILWU and other striking maritime unions offered the Department of the Army to move all cargoes at prestrike wages and conditions. The employers, under contract to the Army to move cargo, refused to do so. They refused to deal with the unions, and they threatened to expel any contractor from the association who cooperated with the Army and dealt with the union in moving Army cargoes.

Only after two independent stevedoring companies, not members of the employers' association, offered to take over the Army contracts, was the movement of Army cargoes assured.

The ILWU had already signed an agreement for a wage increase of 15 cents over the prestrike wage rate with the larger of these independents. Nevertheless the union agreed to work Army cargoes at the lower rates.

Similarly, arrangements have been worked out with another independent contractor to move Army cargoes in San Francisco, Los Angeles and Stockton.

Four private contractors, who are members of the employers' association, simply refused to live up to their Army contracts. When called upon to move Army cargoes they refused. Yet, despite this defiance of the Department of the Army and contract-breaking by these firms, the Army last week paid them a million and a half dollars for stevedoring work completed before the strike. Had the Army logically held up these funds, because of nonobservance of contracts, the contractors would have scurried to move the Army cargoes as they were legally and morally obligated to do.

CAN YOU imagine the furor and the angry editorials if the unions had refused to load Army cargoes until the private contractors elected new officers to their association? But this is exactly what these contractors told the Army. They refused to deal with the unions until they changed their officers.

The Interior Department has been anxious about getting cargoes into Nome and the freeze-over area of Alaska. Ordinarily unless these cargoes leave Seattle by September 15th it is unlikely that the ships will be able to unload and get out before the freeze sets in. The unions were prepared to load and man ships for Alaska as an emergency measure. But the steamship companies refused to carry the cargoes. At this writing the private steamship companies in the Alaskan run operating vessels they charter from the U. S. Maritime Commission for $1 a year, are still refusing to release a vessel to carry cargo to Nome.

The unions are prepared now to meet with the employers and negotiate a new contract. Your editorial does not indicate an awareness of the facts I have described above, for these show clearly that the employers are responsible for the recalcitrance, obstruction and refusal to bargain on the West Coast.

WILLIAM GLAZIER,
Washington Representative, International Longshoremen's & Warehousemen's Union (CIO).

Writer Defends FCC Ruling On Atheists' Rights to Speak

By John Crosby

Two years ago a man named Robert Harold Scott, of San Francisco, an atheist, won a five-year battle and succeeded in explaining his disbelief in God over the CBS San Francisco station KOW. He obtained this privilege only after petitioning the Federal Communications Commission to revoke the licenses of several Bay area stations which had refused him time to state his beliefs. In upholding Mr. Scott's right to air time, the FCC trod a narrow path between principle and practicality.

No station, the FCC said in effect, had the right to refuse a man time because his views happened to be unpopular. On the other hand, said the commission in a sentence which, I think, mixes dry common sense with precise phrasemaking: "Controversial issues of public importance may not extend to all possible differences of opinion within the ambit of human contemplation." In other words, you are entitled to any views you like on religion, but they must be of some importance before you achieve the right to air them. The right to dissent was upheld; the right to bore the public with unimportant doctrine was not. It's a sensible approach, and it left in the hands of the stations the right to determine who did and who did not command enough public interest to justify air time.

With an election in the offing, a House committee under the chairmanship of Representative Forest A. Harness (R.), something of a Congressional nonentity of Kokomo, Ind., has been creating a preposterous little stir over the Scott decision. In a report to the House bulging with demagoguery, the committee declared the Scott decision "obviously would be advantageous only to the atheists and the Communists. For any method or means that blocks the words of God, the enemy of these groups, is a victory for their cause of Godlessness."

This is arrant nonsense and, I'm happy to report, is so recognized by some, though not all thoughtful Christians. Zion's Herald, a Methodist weekly, actually congratulated the FCC on its Scott decision. "We do not agree with our friends of atheistic persuasion," said the religious publication, "but at the very same time we must grant to them the right to disbelieve as they please. The church must recognize and defend the right of an individual to disbelieve either in part or completely."

These are wise words. For if the right to disbelieve may be attacked, the right to believe may be attacked just as easily. After the nonbelievers are barred from the air, it isn't much of a step to the outlawing of all religious beliefs except those with the strongest voting strength. It might be well for Christians to remember that if the popularity of religious belief were the only consideration we'd still be worshipping Jupiter.

In its report, which threatened to seek new legislation unless the FCC changed its stand, the House committee reached the astounding conclusion that the Scott decision was a "dangerous and unwarranted policy of thought policing." I imagine only in an election year could a congressional committee put itself on record as in favor of denying the right of opinion and, at the same time, rigorously opposed to thought control—all in the same breath. The committee, I suspect, also resolutely supports motherhood, the sanctity of the American home and the pursuit of happiness, but it didn't succeed in working all of them into the report.

As to the practical right of atheists to air time, that is a question which could be debated endlessly. How many atheists are there? The Rev. Dr. Robert James McCracken, minister of Riverside Church in New York, recently remarked sadly that convinced Christians were heavily outnumbered in the United States. The American Association for the Advancement of Atheism claims there are 50 million atheists in the United States. That sounds improbable. The AAAA, I suspect, has mistaken unconvinced Christians for convinced atheists, and they aren't at all the same thing. Nevertheless, the atheists could certainly muster a greater number of followers than many of the weird voodoos which operate under the name of Christianity over radio stations in California and elsewhere, and consequently an infringement of free speech.

World Drive To Fight Red Slurs Urged

tion as proof that America "has what it takes" and reaffirmed bipartisan determination "to stand by the free people of Europe until they can stand by themselves."

Here in this breeding spot of Townsend, Ham-and-Egg and Epic plans he offered something to the old folks, too. He promised to increase and expand the Social Security program to "remove the anxieties of insecurity, of unemployment, of old age," and to deal with social injustice wherever it is found.

Sees Warren as Full Partner

Everywhere Dewey sang the praises of Gov. Earl Warren and reiterated his pledge that the vice presidential nominee will be a "full partner" in the next Administration.

He said, Warren is something new in political history, a running mate who "was not named because of any bargain, but solely because he is a great man for what will be a great job."

The man who many think clinched the GOP presidential nomination by opposing the outlawing of communism in his now famous Oregon debate with Harold Stassen told his Los Angeles audience we must neither ignore Communists, and thereby give them the cloak of immunity they want, nor outlaw them and give them the "martyrdom" they want more.

"We will not jail anybody for what he thinks or believes," he said. "So long as we keep the Communists among us out in the open, in the light of day, the United States has nothing to fear from them within its own borders."

Silent on "Voice's" Efforts

In proposing a vast counter-offensive of "truth" against the red "lie-makers," Gov. Dewey did not mention the present "Voice of America" program and its appropriation troubles with the Republican Congress.

Nor did he, in appealing for Hollywood aid, refer directly to Un-American Activities Committee charges of Communist efforts to get Soviet propaganda into our movies.

As an important member of his "team," Dewey proposed the motion picture industry send abroad movies that will be "good entertainment as always, but will also tell the story of the wonders of freedom and production under an enterprise system and the Bill of Rights."

He said the Administration too often has encouraged the Communist advance, not hindering it. He charged Communists and fellow travelers have risen to positions of trust in our government in some labor unions, in some places in our arts, sciences and professions. That's all grist for the Red propaganda mill, and its charge that our way of life has run out, he added.

Pictures Russians' Poverty

The Communists don't tell in their "whoppers" things about their own "promised land," said Dewey:

That, aside from the families of the commissars, most Russian children lack shoes, that it takes 107 hours of work to buy a pair, against seven hours of labor in this country.

That it takes five hours of Soviet earnings to buy a dozen eggs, if they are available, 12 days of work to buy a suit of clothes, 79 minutes of labor to earn a pound of white flour.

That in this country workers can buy the same commodities with half an hour, half a week, and five minutes earnings respectively.

That the Soviet system is "founded on spiritual barbarism which results in organized poverty where man lives on black bread and dirt."

Like Christmas for Dewey

About 1000 persons turned out to hear Dewey speak from the rear platform at Barstow, Calif. Both he and Mrs. Dewey were showered with gifts, including two cowboy hats. Dewey hailed the occasion as "gift day." He said Californians made a "handsome gift" to the country at large in their Governor. Then he went into his "Washington unsnarling" speech. Tonight at Los Angeles he varied the Washington housecleaning line by making it a "weeding and pruning" operation as well.

Some 5000 persons and a band greeted Governor and Mrs. Dewey at San Bernardino. There were shades of Calvin Coolidge when Dewey was presented with another cowboy lid. Governor Dewey refused to put it on. Vacationing in the Black Hills, the late President Coolidge was almost swallowed up on one and made the mistake of getting photographed.

Building of 1st Atom Power Plant to Start This Fall

hell-bent to extract limitless profits from the atom. There is no doubt now that there is a definite Republican plan to disrupt the atomic program and to tear down the existing commission."

The Senator said Dewey had missed the fact that universities, private laboratories, engineering and industrial firms and health organizations were all cooperating in the research work needed to develop atomic energy for peaceful purposes.

General Electric, which will operate the new power plant near Saratoga, already operates a 20-million-dollar atomic power laboratory adjoining its huge new general research laboratory outside Schenectady. The power plant will be considered a part of the atomic power laboratory, and will be within easy reach of the Schenectady scientists.

The announcement yesterday said Army engineers would begin immediately to procure land for the site, which is near West Milton, about 10 miles west of Saratoga Springs and 18 miles north of Schenectady. The first disclosure of the atomic power experiments at Schenectady was made in The Washington Post on May 11, 1947, in a copyrighted article by John W. Ball.

Residents Reassured

In announcing the new project, the commission took pains, first, to explain how it differed from the existing atomic installations, and second, to assure the people of Schenectady, Albany and other nearby cities that it would not expose them to radioactivity or to the danger of explosions.

Dr. C. G. Suits, vice president and director of research for General Electric, said at Schenectady that its purpose would be to study the generation of electric power from nuclear energy. The "reactor" to be used in the new plant, he said, had the same purpose as a second one being planned at the Argonne National Laboratory near Chicago.

The two reactors are different in design and will use different methods to generate power by nuclear fission.

"Both," he said, "are expected to yield important data leading ultimately to the design of reactors which will produce power on a practical scale. They will also be valuable in solving some of the problems involved in 'breeding' nuclear fuel.

"In the operation of a nuclear reactor, the fuel consumed consists of fissionable material which produces heat for conversion into power. If the so-called breeding process works as scientists have reason to expect, the reactor will more than replenish the fuel consumed in operation. In addition to producing heat, a breeder-type reactor would convert nonfissionable Uranium-238 into new fissionable matter."

Not Perpetual Motion

[A commission spokesman in Washington explained to the United Press that the plant was not expected to achieve anything like the legendary "perpetual motion" The "fuel" which would be replenished would be the rare radioactive matter, U-235, which sparks the operation of an atomic pile. In the process, however, the furnace would use up a quantity of ordinary uranium, U-238, and would have to be "restoked" periodically with new supplies of natural uranium.]

The commission gave no hint of the nature of the new buildings except that the geological formations underlying the site were suitable "for the installation of heavy concrete structures." Its announcement contained an assurance that the process could be carried out without the escape of radioactive liquide or dust.

Dealing with fears of a serious accident to the reactor, the commission said: "It is not possible to have a bomb-like explosion. The rare type of accident which may create off-site hazards is in the nature of major damage to the reactor resulting from sabotage, severe earthquake or the remote possibility of simultaneous failure of all safeguards and control mechanisms.

"A major objective of the design work has been to make sabotage so difficult as to effectively remove sabotage as a threat to continued operation of the reactor."

About 30 families will have to find new homes to make room for the plant, the commission said, but building schedules will give them from 6 to 18 months in which to move."

Farmers' Union Proposes Federal 'Standby Fund'

The National Farmers' Union today proposed a 15-billion-dollar standby fund to help prevent violent sags in the economy.

It would be known as the capital investment fund. A seven member Reconstruction Finance Corporation board would administer it.

James G. Patton, president of the farm organization, told a news conference that the proposal is being sent to President Truman and congressional leaders.

The revolving fund would be used "in the achievement of the long-range program of production, employment and investment goals" set out in the President's annual economic report.

The board would make loans to private business and to public and private agencies.

Patton said the first objective would be the promotion of new private enterprises as a "complement to the antitrust laws."

Dewey to Fore In Wisconsin

velt in 1932 and 1936, his proportion of the major party vote being 67 per cent for first term and 67.8 per cent for the second.

Today's Wisconsin survey is the eighth in a series conducted by the institute showing standings of presidential candidates in individual States. To date polls have shown Governor Dewey leading in New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, California, Ohio and Wisconsin. Truman leads in his home State of Missouri, and J. Strom Thurmond, candidate of the States' Rights Party, is well in the lead in South Carolina, of which he is Governor.

Va. Democrats Due to Decide Policy Today

Richmond, Va., Sept. 24 (AP).—A plea for party regularity and support of the Truman-Barkley presidential ticket was in prospect for Saturday's policy-making meeting of the Democratic State Central Committee.

State Treasurer Jesse Dillon, committee secretary, confirmed the word that Delegate Robert Whitehead, of Nelson, had requested permission to be heard by the 67-member committee. But he added it was up to the committee to decide whether to grant the request.

Whitehead, frequently in opposition to the dominant organization wing of the party, may, therefore, sound the loudest blast for the party to remain "regular" in the presidential contest.

Whitehead confirmed he had made the request, but said he did not care to disclose the subject on which he wished to be heard. His views, however, are well known, and it was almost certain party solidarity will be his theme if the committee lets him appear.

The rift in the party has caused repeated predictions that Dewey looms as the favorite to capture Virginia's electoral votes. They believe the States Rights Party, born of the President's civil rights program, will be a sufficient factor in the election to swing the State Republican for the only time since 1928.

President Truman, however, will get the support of many Democrats in public life. Quite a few of those running for office, including Senator A. Willis Robertson, most of the congressional candidates, and the three announced Democratic candidates for Governor, have signified their intention to back the national party nominees.

Machine Aids Heart Surgery

London, Sept. 24 (AP).—A machine to substitute for the heart and render it bloodless for 30 minutes while it is opened up for surgery has been developed by a Swedish surgeon, the authoritative British medical journal Lancet reported today.

The invention of Dr. Clarence Crafoord, heart surgeon of Stockholm, short circuits the aorta, or great artery, thus isolating the heart, and pumps oxygen into the blood stream to keep the brain alive.

Dr. Viking Olov Bjork said the machine maintained the oxygen requirements of the brain of a dog for 33 minutes. Seven dogs survived the process without ill effects.

The apparatus conveys venous blood from the animal to a glass cylinder where the rate of blood-flow is determined. From the cylinder the blood enters an oxygenator, where warmed oxygen is exposed to the blood. Before reentering the blood stream the blood passes through a filter, then through a section for blood pressure reading, finally through a vessel where any small air bubbles are removed.

Truman Plans Talk on Reds

tioned the fourth party on this campaign swing.

Traveling down the West Coast this morning, the Chief Executive got his best reception in California. Forty thousand persons lined the streets to cheer him as he drove through the streets, and 10,000 turned out to hear him in Lane Park.

His speech was largely a reiteration of the things he has been saying since he reached Denver earlier in the week: The "do-nothing" Eightieth Congress had failed to meet the housing problem and other problems and had tried to "sabotage the West."

Mr. Truman, shortly after his arrival in San Diego, took a walk around his train, followed by Secret Service men, reporters and photographers. Despite the gruelling pace of his barnstorming tour, he looked rested and fit. "I need the exercise," he explained to a reporter as he swung along at the rate of 120 paces a minute.

He encountered a girl cyclist and shook hands with her, and then inspected a new canary-colored jeepster, a sport model that has evolved from the wartime jeep.

The campaign train, traveling southeastward along the Pacific shore-line, made its next stop at Ocean Side, Calif. In the crowd there were two youngsters carrying a banner which read:

"Northern San Diego County
"Young Republicans
"Invite President Truman to retire here,

"In God's country after January 20th, 1949."

The Chief Executive made another attack here on the Eightieth Congress and resumed his efforts to goad Gov. Dewey into a debate. After saying that his own position was clear, he declared:

"Try to find out where the rest of the people stand who are in opposition to me. See whether they will tell you or not. I don't think they will, because they are trying to make you believe one thing when they are really going to do another. 'A case of double talk.'"

In Colton, Calif., this afternoon, Mr. Truman told a crowd that the issue in 1948 was the interests of the people versus special privilege.

"That was demonstrated by the Eightieth Congress, which has just finished, thank God," said Mr. Truman.

In recalling how Congress first cut his appropriations for the West and then restored the cuts in part, he said:

"The Republicans out here raised so much hell that they had to put my program back on."

Building Resumed At D. C. Cathedral

Construction work on Washington Cathedral, Wisconsin and Massachusetts aves., nw., will be resumed this week.

The first stone to be placed in the Patriots' Transept since the early thirties will swing into position during an outdoor ceremony on the Feast of St. Michael and All Angels, Wednesday at 2:30 p. m.

The date marks the forty-first anniversary of the laying of the foundation stone of the Cathedral. Since the building has been two-fifths completed, though no construction work took place during the war.

The Right Rev. Angus Dun, Bishop of Washington, will speak at the service Wednesday, which will be held at the foot of the transept steps. The Very Rev. John Wallace Suter, dean of the cathedral, will conduct the service.

The unit to be built is the east aisle, or Patriots' Transept. Within it will be the War Memorial Chapel containing the National Roll of Honor, recording names and service records of men and women who have served the Nation in time of war.

The chapel will have three stained glass windows, two in the east wall and one larger one in the south wall, directly over the altar.

Many of the stones to be used have been given in memoriam or as thank offerings by persons from all parts of the country.

The present plan of construction represents a change from the original plan of the cathedral. It was at one time expected that the War Memorial Chapel would be placed in the west aisle of the south transept.

Cathedral building normally proceeds from the east to the west. By placing the War Memorial Chapel in the east aisle it will be possible to build it now rather than wait until the west aisle and central portion are finished.

Funds for work on the west aisle are now on hand, but cannot be used until the intervening portion and east aisle are completed. In order to continue building without another lapse of time, the Cathedral expects to launch a drive for the $300,000 necessary to carry the work across the transept at the height of the permanent aisle roofs.

Crowley to Make 3000th Broadcast

Radio evangelist Dale Crowley will mark his 3000th broadcast Monday at 6:45 a. m. when he presents the "Right Start for the Day" program over station WWDC. In addition to the morning show, which has been on the air for the past eight years, Crowley has produced 384 "Quizspiration" Bible Quiz programs. The Bible Quiz is heard over WWDC at 7 p. m. on Saturdays and tonight will feature the Bible Quiz Kids.

ARCHITECT'S DRAWING of the south transept of the Washington Cathedral shows the section to the right of the entrance which will contain the War Memorial Chapel. Work on this portion of the cathedral will be resumed this week.

Week Is Set For Education In Religion

The week beginning September 26 has been designated eighteenth annual Religious Education Week by the District Commissioners.

In their proclamation setting aside the period from September 26 to October 3 for the observance, the Commissioners stated:

"We sincerely hope that the citizens and residents of this community will gather in their places of worship and in schools of religious education to study earnestly to know what God's purpose is for them, and to rededicate themselves to the fulfillment of their duties in family and community life."

Churches in the Greater Washington area have planned special events in observance of the week.

Rally and promotion days have been set for Sunday at local churches. These services will include junior sermons, programs arrayed by the children, baptisms, and installation of church school officers.

More than 20 Episcopalian Sunday schools which have been closed during the summer will reopen Sunday.

A highlight of the day for church school teachers of the Episcopal diocese of Washington will be the annual dedication service at 4 p. m. at the Washington Cathedral.

The Right Rev. Angus Dun, Bishop of Washington, will conduct a special litany which gives thanks for the children and asks guidance for education workers. Speaker will be Dr. John Heuss, director of the National Department of Christian Education for the Episcopal Church, who will speak on "Builders of Tomorrow's Christians."

Following the dedication service, Dr. Heuss will meet with the teachers at a tea in Saterlee Hall, St. Alban's Church. In the evening he will talk with members of the diocesan department of Christian education to plan local work.

Jews to Begin Celebration Of Their New Year October 3

By Martha J. Hall
Post Reporter

At sundown October 3 Jews all over the world will begin their celebration of the Jewish New Year, Rosh Hashana.

The creation of the world, according to the Jewish system of computation, took place 3760 years before the beginning of the Christian era. Thus, the year which begins October 3 is 5709.

Rosh Hashana is the first of the High Holy Days, a period of 10 days of penitence which comes to a climax on Yom Kippur, the Day of Atonement, which begins at sundown October 12.

A traditional part of the service is the blowing of the shofar, or ram's horn. Similar horns were used in Palestine to call the citizens to assemble.

The sound of the shofar is a reminder of the eventual redemption of the human race. Traditionally, the Messianic Age and the year of freedom will also be ushered in with blasts of the ram's horn.

The shofar also is a reminder that all great things come through the readiness of man to make sacrifices.

The ancient Jews, a pastoral race, believed that the new year began at the time of the harvest in the fall.

The beginning of the year, they believed, was the time when the Lord judged all his people. Man was called upon to judge himself and to take inventory of the state of his life.

Yom Kippur, the Day of Atonement which comes 10 days after Rosh Hashana, is the most sacred day in the Jewish year. On this day of complete fasting and worship, the devout ask for forgiveness.

The ancient Hebrews followed a lunar month, which was alternately 29½ and 30 days. The beginning of the month was determined by the appearance of the moon in the sky.

Witnesses came before the Sanhedrin, or council of elders, to tell of seeing the moon in the sky. Thus the new month began when the moon appeared in the sky. Rosh Hashana began on the first day of the month of Tishri, and since the month began after sunset, the celebration of the day begins in the evening.

When the Sanhedrin had confirmed the time for observing Rosh Hashana, torches were burned on the mountain tops to signal the people outside of Jerusalem to begin their celebration.

Under the Romans, however, the torches were forbidden. Messengers were sent to notify the people outside of Palestine to begin their observance of Rosh Hashana.

Because it took the messengers some time to reach distant areas, or because some places had no means of communication with the capital city, people outside of Palestine began to celebrate the New Year for two days at about the time the new moon was to appear.

All holidays except Yom Kippur, the Day of Atonement, were marked for two days. Today, Orthodox and Conservative Jews celebrate Rosh Hashana for two days, and Reform Jews for one.

The liturgical theme of Rosh Hashana is the universal redemption of the human race, and through this the redemption of all nature. Prayers call for man in all his works to revere God and, with nature, to form a single band to do His will.

First Baptists Plan Family Group Study

First Baptist Church, 16th and O sts. nw., will launch a new program of Christian education designed especially for family groups at 9:45 a. m. Sunday.

Theme of the plan is "The Whole Family at Worship and Study." The First Baptist Board of Christian Education has worked on preparation of the program for nearly a year.

During the opening part of the service each family will sit together. Following the sermon by Dr. Edward Hughes Pruden, the pastor, children from 4 to 12 will leave the sanctuary for their respective departments.

There they will participate in a program of Christian education which includes music, handwork and mission study, in addition to the customary Bible study.

At the same time members of the intermediate, young people's, young adult, couples' and men's classes will have a full hour of Bible study.

The 11 a. m. service will remain unchanged under the program. It is designed primarily for those who do not have children involved in the Christian education program.

This week Dr. Pruden will speak at 11 a. m. on "Facing Up to Our Responsibilities." The Rev. R. Edward Dowdy is associate minister in charge of Christian education. He will speak at 8 p. m. on "Jesus Came Teaching."

Presbyterians To Discuss Promotion

Leaders in the 42 Presbyterian churches in the Presbytery of Washington City will meet Monday at 7:30 p. m. at National Presbyterian Church, Connecticut ave. and N st. nw., to discuss a united promotion program.

They will hear about the 1949 benevolence budget of the church and the Presbyterian plan for church finance.

Methods of organizing the annual every member canvass, through which every member of the church is reached and arrangements are made for the annual pledge to the church, will be discussed.

The Rev. Walter F. Wolf, pastor of Arlington Presbyterian Church, is chairman of Presbytery's united promotion committee.

Speakers will include Dr. Merlyn A. Chappel, secretary for promotion in the Board of National Missions; Dr. Alva V. King, director of the Every Member Canvass in the General Council of the General Assembly, and Miss Elizabeth Howell, assistant secretary in the department of young people's work of the Board of National Missions.

Shantung Capital

Tsinan's Fall To Red Forces Confirmed

Nanking (Saturday), Sept. 25 (AP).—A competent Chinese government source tonight confirmed the fall of Tsinan, Shantung Province capital, to Chinese Communist troops.

The Communists earlier had announced the capture of Tsinan.

Shantung's 42-year-old governor and commanding general, Wang Yao-wu, had radioed for immediate help, which was not forthcoming.

The Communist radio in north Shensi Province said Tsinan was "completely liberated." All remaining government troops" wiped out.

Government quarters estimated 220,000 Communist troops participated in the attack. The Nationalist garrison was said to total no more than 30,000.

The District Fire Department budget request for the fiscal year 1950 released yesterday is almost the same as this year's appropriation except for a $126,000 item for replacement of 12 aged pieces of equipment.

The request calls for $3,838,400, compared with a current appropriation of $3,653,000, for the operations of the 915-man force. Most of the current items continue unchanged except for the granting of mandatory within-grade salary raises.

The $126,000 item is for the replacement of two 18-year-old aerial ladder trucks; four pumping engines, 17 and 18 years old; five passenger cars, aged 8 to 10 years; and a 17-year-old utility truck.

Fire Chief Clement Murphy also requested $300 for payment of the proposed civilian member on the Fire Department trial board.

found them. The other children, Barry H., 4½ years; Elizabeth C., 20 months, and Penelope C., 4 months, were at home with a maid and a friend of the family. They were too young even to know their father had been missing.

Mrs. Scalise With Daughters

With Mrs. Scalise were her four daughters, Frances, 17; Aida, 13; Mary, 12, and Linda, 2. A son, Arthur, 20, is a cadet at West Point. Sergeant Scalise has lived on the post at Fort Belvoir for two years. His enlistment was up a week ago yesterday, and he was on his way home when his plane disappeared. He had planned to reenlist in the Army.

Captain Custer, Annapolis graduate of 1926 and aviator since 1930, taught history at the Academy in 1939 after duty aboard the carrier Lexington and battleship California. In the war he was assistant chief of air operations and gunnery officer for the Caribbean Sea frontier, commanded the USS Norton Sound, flagship of Fleet Air Wing I in the Okinawa campaign, and won the Bronze and Gold Stars.

Congressional Tax Cut Plans Face Revision

Congressional tax experts, who two months ago estimated total Federal revenue for the fiscal year of 44 billion dollars, have been forced to reduce the figure to 42½ billion dollars on the basis of recent data.

As a result, it was indicated in congressional quarters yesterday, tax reduction plans for the next session of Congress will have to be revised.

Missing Plane, Men Found

first found the Beechcraft. It was believed to have crash landed.

A flying boat searching nearby was diverted to the lake. The crew saw a white arrow printed in the sand on the lake beach pointing south. The flying boat then located the five survivors, the report said, about 25 miles south of their downed plane.

Rescue operations were immediately launched at the Canadian-American search headquarters at The Pas. The flying boat was instructed to remain at the lake to await the arrival of the survivors, who were signaled to proceed there.

The crew of the flying boat, who radioed that all five aboard the downed Beechcraft were alive, was instructed to drop a map to the men, showing their position. The rugged terrain made landing impossible, the RCAF said.

The RCAF said it radioed the flying boat to signal the survivors to draw a cross on the ground if they needed medical attention and a straight line if they did not. Reports of this operation have not been received.

Food and supplies were dropped. Search leaders said they presumed none of the men was injured because all five were seen walking through the woods.

Canadian officials said hunting and trapping equipment carried by the grounded plane probably saved the lives of those aboard.

An RCAF Dakota Transport, carrying a team of RCAF parachute rescue men, was dispatched to the scene in case immediate medical care is required. The Dakota will also drop supplies.

It was unlikely that the survivors would be brought out until sometime Saturday.

The missing plane was on a flight from Churchill to The Pas when it disappeared September 12.

State Dept. Official Asks Public Hearing

By the United Press

State Department Officer Robert C. Alexander yesterday asked for a public hearing on his disputed charge that several hundred subversive aliens entered this country under the protection of the United Nations.

Alexander, assistant chief of the visa division, aired his charge before a Senate Immigration Subcommittee in July and his departmental superiors subsequently filed "misconduct" charges against him.

His attorneys accused the State Department of finding Alexander guilty of "misconduct and dereliction of duty" without giving him a hearing. They said he wants an opportunity to defend himself publicly.

One lawyer said Alexander testified before the Senate body "in the line of duty" and that his testimony about subversives using the United Nations as a means of entry to this country was not intended as an attack on the U. N. or departmental policy.

Alexander has not been suspended and is continuing his duties in the visa division, although his Senate testimony has been attacked by his superiors all the way up to Secretary Marshall.

head one of the specified squads. Changes in such assignments are also up to Major Barrett.

Included are three lieutenants who head the General Assignment Squad of 28 men; the Homicide Squad of 20 men and the Special Investigations and Missing Persons Bureau of 16 men.

The remainder are detective sergeants in charge of the Automobile Squad of 8 men, the Check and Fraud Squad of 7 men, the Robbery and Fugitive Squad of 30 men, the Sex Squad of 12 men, the Narcotic Squad of 3 men and the Vice Squad of 31 men.

2. Promotion of the lieutenant assigned as harbormaster to captain.

5 New Lieutenants

3. Appointment of five new lieutenants. Two would serve as night inspectors to permit a detail of two night inspectors each tour of duty. They would also check on officers reporting to court with cases and to the Police and Fire Clinic with illnesses.

A third would act as hack inspector, replacing an officer now borrowed from the precincts. The other two would be assigned to the Communications and Record Bureau to supervise the staff.

4. Promotion of the sergeant in charge of maintenance of police automobiles to lieutenant.

5. Promotion of the acting lieutenant in charge of the Police Boys' Club to the rank of lieutenant.

6. Appointment of three sergeants. Two would be supervisors in the Communications and Records Bureau and a third would reimburse the department for the loss of a sergeant assigned in charge of the license enforcement detail.

7. Appointment of 30 privates at $3398 a year each to replace 30 now used in performing enforcement services for the Superintendent of Licenses, Alcohol Beverage Control Board and the Department of Inspections.

To Complete 205 Addition

8. Appointment of 50 privates at $2721 a year each to complete the 205 addition to the force asked from Congress last year. The 50 were sliced from the request on the grounds that it was doubtful the total number could be recruited. Now Major Barrett feels they can be hired, if the funds are granted.

9. A raise of $120 a year each for 60 station clerks.

10. Appointment of two corporals for work in the Communications and Records Bureau as supervisors.

11. Addition of 58 civilian employes to free uniformed policemen now in office positions for other duties. Two part-time doctors to serve uniformed patients in nearby Maryland and Virginia were also requested.

The budget request noted the dropping of a vacant $5023-a-year position as "detective, grade of captain."

The present uniformed force now numbers 1952, plus the 2 on loan at the Capitol. If the additional 90 requests are approved the force would total 2042.

Included in the police budget was an indefinite amount for payment of civilian attorneys serving on Police Trial Boards. The per diem rate for such attorneys has not been set, pending final approval of the plan by the District Commissioners. If adopted, the attorneys would be expected to serve without pay until the proposed budget provides funds, according to Special Assistant Corporation Counsel Daniel B. Maher, who drafted the program.

The civilian attorneys would replace the present assistant corporation counsels assigned to serve on the board and remove the embarrassment of having one member of the office try a case before a board on which a fellow member is serving.

The budget proposal does not include any request for capital outlays, but does include a $251,015 item for equipment. The bulk of this, $135,000, would be earmarked for the replacement of the present police radio system with equipment in the frequency modulation band. The Police Department has been directed by the Federal Communications Commission to complete this changeover by July 1, 1950.

Additional amounts are for guns, typewriters, badges and $85,015 for additional motor vehicles and replacements. This includes a $2500 large sedan for use by Major Barrett, as well as a $3500 large convertible for use by the major as an escort on parades and other formal details.

The sum of $10,000, the same as in the current year, has been asked for expenses necessary for protection during public recognition of visiting dignitaries. Another $31,100 in the current budget for maintenance of public order during the inaugural ceremonies next January is deleted from the 1950 budget request since the program will be over by the beginning of the fiscal year, July 1, 1949.

700 Miles Out

Storm Heads Northeast At 40 MPH

By The Associated Press

Moving northeastward at 40 miles an hour, the hurricane that struck Cuba and Florida was 700 miles east of Boston last night.

Rough seas and heavy swells were predicted by the United States Weather Bureau for Newfoundland and Nova Scotia during 18 to 20 hours.

The bureau said hurricane winds continue within 50 miles of the center of the storm. Winds of gale force extend outward for 300 miles.

Indications are the storm will continue moving northeast at about the same 40 mile an hour rate.

The hurricane by-passed Bermuda but endangered shipping.

All ships in or near the path of the hurricane were warned to proceed with caution.

said. "This is probably the gravest matter the committee has gone into."

He explained the committee's reluctance to name some people on the grounds that "their personal lives" are involved.

"To bring them out as witnesses or have them mentioned would be dangerous at this time to them," he said. "It could also be dangerous to the country."

The committee's decision was announced after a two-hour meeting. It was the first time in several weeks that a quorum of the members has been assembled.

McDowell has alleged that evidence brought out at the committee hearings linked all three persons he wants indicted to the mysterious Arthur Adams, whom Chairman Thomas described as wartime boss of Russia's atomic spies in the United States.

Meanwhile, Committee Member Richard M. Nixon (R., Calif.), jumped into the feud between Republican members of Congress and Attorney General Tom C. Clark.

Nixon said Clark has forbidden FBI Chief J. Edgar Hoover to tell Congress "the truth about espionage" for fear of the "political consequences."

The Administration, said Nixon, is "afraid of the names he would name."

U. S. Communists Ask Labor to Join Protest

New York, Sept. 24 (AP).—The American Communist Party's high command wants "labor and its allies" throughout the country to hold mass protest demonstrations on October 15—the date set for trial of 12 party leaders indicted by a Federal grand jury.

Eugene Dennis, national secretary of the party and one of those indicted, issued the call last night

One on the Aisle—

3 Films Uphold Met Opera Idea

By Richard L. Coe

THREE EXAMPLES of the musical movie are about town at the moment, and they illustrate several types of putting what might be called "classics" on celluloid.

At the Metropolitan, Grace Moore's "One Night of Love" (1934) is probably the most influential of all efforts to put opera on film; certainly it was the first to meet with popular success. At the Hippodrome you find the D'Oyly Carte Company, joined by Kenny Baker, doing "The Mikado" (1939). And at the Dupont there's a recent Italian effort to tell Victor Hugo's story of "Rigoletto" under the title of "The King's Jester" with snatches of the Verdi score.

Revisiting Miss Moore's smash 14 years later is a revealing thing. It was, you recall, a sensation in its day, offering some six classy arias sung by a Metropolitan Opera star. The sound track is in pretty good shape; it was, in fact, the finest of its day and holds up remarkably well. Photographically, though, Hollywood camera techniques appear to have improved immeasurably. Long shots in those days, in case you've forgotten, were blurry. The clear focus of today is a more recent achievement than you might think.

Miss Moore's Excitement

The story, which set the pattern for endless variations of the "love-me-love-my-larynx" theme, is unbelievably foolish and monotonous. Miss Moore plays an American studying music in Italy who winds up singing Cio-Cio-San on the Metropolitan stage to a roused, well-dressed audience. She is the prim American among the European wolves, and one must wonder, in passing, at the effects this story may well have had on the movie millions of the midthirties.

Whatever one may think of the late Miss Moore, her role in American music was cinched by this vastly influential picture. (There were all sorts of records set on the numbers of times individuals saw the film.) The lively Grace had a curiously wooden air, but she behaved as a prima donna is supposed to behave, at work and at play, and this quality excited the millions into an interest in things operatic.

In "One Night of Love," skillfully directed by the late Victor Schertzinger, Grace gave the movie customers such high-toned and then comparatively unfamiliar things as "Sempre Libera," from "La Traviata," the Carmen" Habanera and wound up the film with both the act I entrance and "Un bel di' aria of "Madame Butterfly." That finale was a smash and it will still hold you.

The Hipp's "Mikado"

Curiously, it was the same Schertzinger who directed "The Mikado." Here he tried to do the Gilbert and Sullivan job by almost picturing the Savoyards' traditional stage petrformance.

Seeing this one again, you find that when he stuck to the stage traditions the results were most satisfactory. The attempts to get motion and action were expensive. To do so he left out the "Little List" patter song, that proud "Howdy-do" business between Pooh-Bah and the scholarly young ladies and Katisha's best numbers were cut—"Hearts Do Not Break" and "There Is Beauty in the Bellow of the Blast."

Once again at the Hippodrome, you notice that the soundtrack is in fine shape, but that the 1939 Technicolor (one of Mrs. Kalmus' first attempts in England) was extremely blurred. Technicolor means much to this insane little story of Gilbert (what a scenarist the screen missed in him!), but portions of it are so blurred you marvel that the film's only 9 years old.

Too Little Verdi!

The Italian attempt to film the Hugo story is a washout because its mentors obviously couldn't make up their minds what they were trying to do. They went straight to Hugo for the story. (They kept some Italian names for the Paris setting, at the same time letting others alone.) Verdi's vitality-checked score is thinly used, indeed, with Tagliavini's and Tuti dal Monte's voices dubbed into the sound track three times, though the characters they voice do not open their mouths.

While "The King's Jester" appears to be an attempt to bridge the gap between the two mediums, it fails through lack of courage; it is neither one thing nor the other. And the production itself is a stale method of camera use which not even the technical limitations of present-day Italy can excuse.

Met Opera Plans Films

The impression I had after seeing all three in the past few days is that when the screen attempts to put the musical classics of the stage on film, it succeeds best when it plays it straight. The unreality of stage conventions is there anyway, and decking out a story or technical frame only gets in the way.

"The Mikado," which of the trio sticks closest to the stage tradition, is the most enjoyable of the three, perhaps because of its inherent delights but just as much because it goes right at Sullivan's tunes and Gilbert's words and lets them stand on their own.

All of which is why the Metropolitan Opera's plans to film several operas this winter exactly as they're done on the stage, seems to have a deal of sound logic. Fourteen years after Grace Moore's foray into operatic movies seems like a long time to go round Robin Hood's barn, but perhaps it will be worth it.

SUDDEN ARRIVALS: Jane Powell and Newcomer Thomas Breen in Metro's latest Technicolor musical cruise, "Luxury Liner," which arrives tomorrow on the Palace screen, the theater's first Sunday opening in years. Lauritz Melchior, Marina Koshetz, George Brent and Frances Gifford join the young twosome to the rhythms of Xavier Cugat's band.

2 Java Towns Recaptured

Batavia, Java, Sept. 24 (AP).—Government forces have recaptured two towns on the western rim of the Communist-held area around Madioen, the Indonesian news agency Antara reported today.

Walikukun and the mountain resort of Sarangan were the towns named as back in republican hands.

Antara said Communist rebels in flight north of Soerakarta had set up positions along the Soerakarta-Semarang railroad and proclaimed a "people's government" in Wonogiri.

Fighting continued in most of the Madioen area where the Communists seized control last Saturday and proclaimed a "Soviet" regime.

The Communist-controlled Madioen radio last night proclaimed a general strike and uprising throughout the Indonesian Republic.

(The Republican Ministry of Information, in a statement released in New York, laid much of the blame for the rebellion on the Dutch. The statement said:

("The persistent blockade and malevolent agitation by the Dutch against the republic internationally, coupled with Dutch acts of aggression against organs of the republic and against the Republican organization within Dutch-occupied areas of Indonesia, have created favorable circumstances for the reception of Communist agitation within the republic, or, to be exact, for the reception of agitation from a section of some political parties all claiming Communist ideology.)

To Mighty Cal

Sauer Expected To Lose in Debut

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

Baltimore, Sept. 24.—With a new coach, new players and new hopes, Navy opens a new football season here tomorrow against a mighty foe, California.

The game-tested Golden Bears, preseason choice to spend New Year's Day in Pasadena's Rose Bowl, have been installed a seven-point favorite to mar George Sauer's debut as Navy's first civilian coach in 15 years.

This second in a series of intersectional clashes between the Middies and Bears is expected to attract at least 35,000 spectators to Babe Ruth Stadium and also furnish the Bears with their second straight victory this year. The Californians rolled over Santa Clara, 41-19, last Saturday.

While the Middies spent today in another secret practice at Annapolis, Coach Lynn Waldorf's Bears held a light drill at Griffith Stadium in Washington.

Waldorf, former Northwestern coach who skippered the Bruins to nine triumphs in 10 outings last season, has practically the same squad which trimmed Navy, 14-7, last year in Berkeley. This may be reassuring to the California constituents, but not to Waldorf, who said:

"We're sort of flying blind on this one. We know nothing about Navy, with a new coach and a new system. Navy, on the other hand, had five scouts watching us last week.

"We've been unable to learn anything about Sauer's system. We thought we had some information, but when we practiced at Kansas City Thursday, we were told something different than what we had originally been told about Navy. It's very confusing."

The power-laden Bears will throw a veteran line which averages 214 pounds per man against the Middies. Waldorf's wall includes All-American Guard Rod Franz and All-Pacific Coast Tackle Jim Turner, a 231-pound redhead who spent most of last Saturday in Santa Clara's backfield.

200-Pounders Who Can Run

A veteran backfield is composed of 200-pound Fullback Jack Jensen, who runs, punts and helps Quarterback Dick Erickson with the passing. His other helpmates are Jack Swaner and Bill Main, who weigh almost 200 pounds each, and also are the fastest men on the Bear squad.

Since practically all of Navy's practices were conducted in strict privacy, little is known of Sauer's first Navy football production.

As one observer put it, "Navy's football team is the best kept secret since the atomic bomb."

Baysinger, Hawkins Start

Up front is where the Middies probably run into trouble. Gone are Center Dick Scott, who made most of the tackles in last year's Cal game; Tackle Ken Shimshak, Guard Emerson Golding and other veteran linemen.

Sauer appeared calmly confident today. "We're the underdog, but we're not overawed," he said.

Wake Forest Walloped by B. C., 26 to 9

By Jack Walsh
Post Reporter

Boston, Mass., Sept. 24.—Boston College defeated Wake Forest before 26,302 at Braves Field tonight, 26-9, but the final score doesn't indicate how completely Peahead Walker's boys were overpowered. It took the Eagles nearly a period to soar but after that it was hardly a contest. Boston College broke the scoring ice with a 20-yard touchdown pass from Ed Petela to End Joe Gould.

They added two more in the second quarter when speedy Joe Diminick started strutting his stuff. It didn't lower Peahead's blood pressure any when Tom Fetzer's passes were intercepted to set up both scores.

His first misfire was a dangerous flat pass attempt that Guard Tom Brennan grabbed on the Wake Forest 15. Ed Songin plunged to the 5 and Diminick, behind vicious blocking, crossed the goal line unmolested.

Diminick Scores Again

Six minutes later, the game assumed rout proportions when Steve Stuka leaped high to make a beautiful interception of a Fetzer fling o nthe Deacons' 27. Even a 15-yard penalty didn't discourage B. C. because Diminick immediately streaked 42 yards for the third score.

Boston College ran the count to 26-0 in the third period when Wake Forest continued to do everything wrong. Another Fetzer heave started the Eagle drive but you couldn't blame him for the touchdown. Ed Clasby grabbed the ball on the B. C. 30 and came back 15 yards.

Then Clasby demonstrated how this passing business should be done when Diminick made a sen-

Lebanon Valley Surprises Temple

Philadelphia, Sept. 24 (AP).—Temple University's heavily favored football team was held to a 7-7 tie tonight by little Lebanon Valley College, coached by Andy Kerr.

Temple gained the deadlock in the last quarter on a twice-fumbled ball behind the Lebanon Valley goal line. Attempting to kick from his own goal line, Hank Dijohnson fumbled, recovered the ball, tried to run and fumbled again. Temple's Peter Ravin fell on the ball for a touchdown. Andrew Trynes place-kicked the tying point.

Lebanon Valley had taken a 7-0 lead in the second period on Guy Euston's 12-yard end run. Walt Gage converted.

Terps Only Local Team Favored to Win Today

By Bill Burnett
Post Reporter

All three of Washington's major collegiate football forces, for the first time this season, move into action today on such widely separated out-of-town gridirons as Miles Stadium, Fitton Field and City Stadium.

George Washington tangles with V. P. I. at Blacksburg, Va.; Georgetown goes against Holy Cross at Worcester, Mass., and Maryland meets the University of Richmond in the Virginians' stronghold.

The first two games are in the afternoon, the Terps' outing at 8 o'clock.

Maryland is the only one of the trio doped to win. It will be making its first start of 1948, as will Georgetown.

First Game for VPI

As the only team with previous experience this year, a 27-13 licking by Wake Forest last week, the G. W. Colonials have at least one edge on Tech's Gobblers. It is that Tech will see action for the first time. But it doesn't figure to be enough for G. W. to win.

The Gobblers under Coach Bob McNeish have a heavy and well-seasoned squad, headed by Ramblin' Ray Beasley, the sprint champ who was a big factor in Tech's 42-6 rout of the Colonials last year.

Beasley will act as game captain and get most of his backfield assistance fro msuch dependables as Bruce Fisher, Chip Collum and Ralph Beard.

Only its improved morale and the coaching leadership of Bo Rowland stand between the Colonials and another defeat.

G. W. Starts Same Lineup

Named to start for G. W. are Bill Szanyi and Hank Bartelloni, ends; Jim Feula and Harvey Shipman, tackles; Chuck Gunner and Dixie Howell, guards; Talbot Dredge, center; and in the backfield Stan Burak, Joe Buell, Jim Kline and Andy Davis.

This is the same lineup which started against Wake Forest and wasn't beaten until the Deacons slipped over two quick touchdowns in the last quarter.

Coach Jack Hagerty plans to start Babe Baranowski, Connie O'Doherty, Bill Mitchell and Dick Barba in the single wing Georgetown backfield against Holy Cross.

For the Crusaders, Dr. Bill Osmanski, their most distinguished football graduate, makes his coaching debut. Like an old hand, though, he parried a question on the game's outcome with the noncommittal expectation that the looks for a "real football game."

Holy Cross Slightly Wonderful

Billy Dechard, Washingtonian from Gonzaga who Osmanski considers most promising, won't see any action due to a shoulder separation. Joe Byers, standout of the 1946 Orange Bowl team who's back after an Army tour, has a severe charley horse and may see limited duty only.

All Osmanski has to fall back on is a squad boasting 32 lettermen. Most troublesome probably will be Jim Murphy and Walt Brennan, fine passing quarterback, and big Veto Kissell, line-crashing fullback who's been marking all-star teams for the past two seasons.

Dr. Bill, a practicing dentist, claims he's worried about Georgetown's heavy line. He didn't say anything about his own mammoth tackles, Tony Palmer, 254; Bill Petroski, 235.

Georgetown just hopes that Osmanski won't have as great a day against it as he had as a player when the schools last clashed in 1937.

Hoyas Lead in Series

In that game, Osmanski took a short pass on the first play of the game and went 67 yards for a touchdown. He added three more before the afternoon was over and MAYO IS OUT—Eddie Mayo, Detroit Tigers infielder, is tagged out by Cleveland catcher, Jim Hegan, as he slides home in yesterday's game in Detroit. Mayo tried to score on a grounder by Pitcher Freddie Hutchinson to Bob Lemon, Cleveland pitcher. Detroit won, 4-3.

Pantos Accounts for 161 Yards As Vikings Run Over Trainers

With Jimmy Pantos accounting for 161 of their 186 yards, Central's Vikings trimmed Champion McKinley Tech, 20-0, yesterday in the Interhigh football opener before 3000 fans in Central Stadium.

The Vikings thereby gained a measure of revenge for their 14-7 beating at the hands of Tech in the championship game last year. The victory moved Central into a 21-20 lead in the 48-game series between the two teams, seven games having resulted in ties. The last time Central had beaten Tech was back in 1942.

Pantos, 155-pound veteran, was Central's whole show. Hopping back and forth between quarterback and halfback, depending on whether Central was using a T or single wing, Jimmy gained 100 yards in 17 rushing attempts, and 61 more on a pass to Bill Dunker in the last quarter.

Pantos gave a brilliant display the first time he got his hands on the ball in the first period. He sliced through tackle on a 38-yard jaunt which set up the first score. Jack Wert carried the ball over from the 1.

A fourth down fumble of Tech's punter, Bill Rogers, a few minutes later set up the second Central score in the first period. Dunker fell on Rogers, who had the ball on the 12. Pantos ran the ball to the 1, and then bucked over.

Tech held Central until the fourth quarter when Pantos unfurled his passing arm for the first time. He hit Dunker with a 35-yard pass and Dunker raced to the 15. The play covered 61 yards. John Roman climaxed the 80-yard drive by going over from the one. Pantos place-kicked the first two extra points, but his third attempt was low.

Nick Papafotis Goes 69 Yards To Score Against Ramblers

Unheralded Woodrow Wilson defeated Eastern, 19-12, yesterday at Wilson in the biggest upset of interhigh football's opening day.

Nick Papafotis got Wilson off on the right foot in the opening period with a sweeping 69-yard touchdown gallop around right end.

Bucky Hite, Eastern halfback, put the Ramblers in the lead in the second quarter with a pair of touchdown runs of 50 and 55 yards. However, Papafotis bucked over from the 2 for a Wilson touchdown just before intermission, and the halftime score was 12-12.

In the fourth period, Wilson switched its attack to the air with Bob Rieley firing the passes. A 10-yard toss to Bill Sher put the ball over the goal line and Wilson went ahead, 18-12. Rieley again passed to Sher for the superfluous extra point.

Coming from behind in the second half Western High's Red Raiders defeated the Riders of Roosevelt, 12-7, yesterday in an interhigh series opener at Western before 2000.

Showing better ball-handling and speed in the first half, Roosevelt didn't have the weight or reserves to protect their 7-0 halftime lead.

Western's Wade Hubbard, bottled up for three periods, broks away for a 50-yard winning touchdown gallop early in the fourth period after Western had tied the score in the third quarter.

Roosevelt scored first midway in the second period on a fourth-down 4-yard pass from Dick Heishman to Leon Baron in the end-zone.

Near the end of the half, Western drove 52 yards to the Rider 7 where the attack bogged down.

The Raiders lost no time in picking up where they had left off, taking the Roosevelt second-half kickoff and scoring in 10 power plays covering 54 yards.

Trippi's 64-Yard Pass Defeats Eagles in Last Minutes, 21-14

Chicago, Sept. 24 (AP).—Ball-Carrier Charlie Trippi, in a desperation maneuver, tossed a 64-yard touchdown pass to Mal Kutner in the final four minutes of play tonight to give the Chicago Cardinals a 21-14 triumph over the Philadelphia Eagles in an opening National Football League game.

Trippi, who ripped eight yards for the national champions' first marker in the opening period, surprised the crowd of 25,875 in Comiskey Park with the last-ditch scoring play.

On a hand-off, Trippi faked a wide end run then made a leaping toss. The ball spiralled into Kutner's arms and the lanky end scampered across.

The Cardinals captured a 7-0 first-quarter lead on Trippi's eight-yard smash. This capped a 64-yard drive featuring Trippi's 31-yard dash on a fake punt.

At the outset of the second period, Christman completed a 30-yard touchdown pass to Kutner.

Just before the half, the Eagles shaved the lead to 14-7 when Tommy "Gun" Thompson hit Jack Myers for 31 yards and then pitched 34 to Bosh Pritchard for a touchdown.

The Eagles locked the score 14-14 in the first 10 minutes of the third quarter. They peeled off 60 yards in three plays, Thompson spearing Pete Pihos with a 42-yard pay-off pass.

Anacostia Indians Open Season By Beating Coolidge, 13-0

Anacostia's Indians, favorites to win the interhigh championship this year, started off the season with a 13-0 victory over the Coolidge Colts yesterday before 2000 fans at Anacostia.

Late in the first period, the Indians' Bob Mitchell ran around end from 16 yards out, climaxing a 66-yard drive for the final score. Billy Neil's kick was good.

With time running out in the fourth quarter, Anacostia started another scoring drive from their own 31.

In six plays they ran up three first downs and the score came when Jim Faulkner again ran around the Colt left end from 7 yards out. Neil's kick was blocked by Jimmy Austin.

The closest the Colts could come to pay dirt was in the third quarter when Benny Duvall ran 78 yards off the Anacostia right tackle for a score.

However, the play was nullified on an offside penalty.

New York Wins, 9-6; Tigers Triumph, 4-3

Hutch, Wertz Star In Detroit Victory

By Joe Reichler

, Detroit, Sept. 24 (AP).—The Detroit Tigers, continuing in their role of spoilers, helped throw the wide-open American League race into a triple tie today when they hung a 4-3 defeat on the Cleveland Indians in the first of a three-game series.

Cleveland's setback, together with the Yankees' 9-6 triumph over the Boston Red Sox in New York, put the three contenders into a flat-footed deadlock.

The Tiger victory, which snapped Cleveland's seven-game winning streak, simply supported their claim as the "bad men" of the circuit.

Only last Sunday the Bengals threw a body block at Boston's pennan aspirations by sweeping a twin bill from the Red Sox. Just before that the Tigers split a four-game series with the Yankees to prevent the New Yorkers from taking over the league lead.

Hutchinson Wins His 13th

Freddie Hutchinson, stylish righthander whose chief drawback this season has been his penchant for throwing that "gopher" ball, was the villain who upset the Tribe's applecart today.

Hutch spun a seven-hitter for his thirteenth triumph against 10 losses. Had he kept his home run ball in his locker, he would have had a shutout, since all Cleveland's runs came as a result of the circuit clout.

Hutchinson experienced two rough innings but managed to pull out of each unscathed to ring up his third triumph over the Indians this year, his first against them at Briggs Stadium. They had beaten him twice here this season.

Dick Wakefield and Vic Wertz, the one-two punch of the Tigers' toned down attack, weakened somewhat by their loss of Hoot Evers and George Kell, were the big guns for Detroit.

Wakefield collected two of the Tigers' eight hits off losing Pitcher Bob Lemon and Sam Zoldak drove in the first run of the game, and scored the second.

Wertz, held hitless in his first three times at bat, came up in the seventh inning with two on and one out, and cracked a line double over Third Baseman Ken Keltner's head to drive in both runners and break a 2-2 deadlock.

Gordon Slams His 30th

The Indians crept up to within one run in the eighth when Joe Gordon slammed his 30th home run with two out. Previously Larry Doby and Keltner had zoomed Hutchinson's "fat" pitch into the seats for round-trippers.

They marked the 29th, 30th and 31st four-baggers hit off Hutchinson this year, an American League

Johnson's Homer In Fifth Decisive

By Jack Hand

New York, Sept. 24 (AP). The New York Yankees twisted the American League pennant race into an unprecedented triple tie today by sinking the Boston Red Sox, 9-6, while Cleveland was bowing to Detroit.

As a result of this combination, New York, Boston and Cleveland are all even, atop the American League, each with seven games to play. Each has won 91 and lost 56 in a crackling fight that probably will go down to the last day of the season and maybe later.

It was the first time this season the World Champion Yankees had reached the top.

Arrangements already have been made for a series of tie playoffs involving any two or all three of the top clubs. It looked tonight as though Will Harridge's American League office might have use for its seemingly far-fetched plans.

No one in authority could recall any similar situation in the American League, which has had some thrillers down to the wire. They have been close in the past but this is believed to be the first time three clubs were all square at such a late date, at least in this league.

Johnson's Homer Decides

Billy Johnson's three-run pinch homer off lefty Earl Johnson in the fifth inning was the big blow of this stirring Yankee victory and second straight Red Sox loss in a "big game."

They were tripped up in Cleveland Wednesday night and now, nearing the end of their long trip, they have fallen in the first of their three-game set at the Yankee Stadium.

The crowd, thrilled by Johnson's homer and the hitting of Bobby Brown, who weighed in with two triples and a double, gave Fireman Joe Page a terrific ovation after the

Mrs. Stokes Beats June Vogel for Mid-Atlantic Title

Baltimore Girl Loses By 6 and 5

June Vogel's stage fright ran smack into veteran Mrs. Walter R. Stokes at the peak of her game yesterday at the Congressional Country Club and the result was a 6-5 rout which brought Mrs. Stokes her third Middle Atlantic Women's golf title.

The blonde, willowy Baltimore Country Club girl, playing her first major title match, was obviously overawed and her game showed it from the very first stroke.

Hitting her woods poorly, playing in the rough a good part of the time, three-putting the fourth and fifth holes, Miss Vogel quickly frittered away the first five holes.

Takes 6 on 3d Hole

The par-five third hole, was a particular nightmare for Miss Vogel. Here she hit her tee shot 75 yards out into a ditch crossing the fairway, taking a penalty shot. Her next shot, out of the rough, stopped behind a tree. A nice recovery and two putts kept it down to a six.

At the same time her more seasoned opponent was stroking like an automaton, playing four of the first five in par and dropping in a birdie on the third.

Mrs. Stokes, having had her ups and downs in the early part of the tournament, had apparently saved her skill for yesterday.

She had an even par 39 for the first nine holes, despite a double bogie on the par-four sixth, the only hole she lost on the out nine.

Mrs. Stokes Eases Up

On the sixth, Mrs. Stokes' fairway shot after her usual fine drive was a little to the right, hitting a downslope, and rolling far downhill. Shooting blind for the green, Mrs. Stokes drove over, chipped up short and took 2 putts for a 6.

Coming to the tenth, 7 holes up, and the cup virtually in the bag, Mrs. Stokes eased up and waited for the end. Three putts from 15 feet away cost her the tenth.

She took the eleventh by slightly hooking her drive along a dogleg, laying a beautiful 3-iron shot up on the green and taking 2 putts for a birdie.

Miss Vogel, meanwhile had assorted difficulties in the rough and took a par 5.

Miss Vogel's par 3 took the twelfth. She had more approach difficulties on the thirteenth, coming on the green in 4, a stroke behind Mrs. Stokes.

She caught up when Mrs. Stokes 3-putted but it was the dormie hole and a half ended it. It was the only hole they had halved.

The Cards:

Stokes out	434	556	453—39
Par out	435	554	553—39
Vogel out	546	665	564—47

Miller, McLister Gain Senior Golf Finals

John R. Miller, Manor Country Club, and Dr. W. R. McLister, Washington Golf and Country Club, will play in the finals today for the Maryland State Golf Association Seniors' Championship.

Miller, 1944 champion, won his semifinals match yesterday by defeating Commander Philip Hambsch, Naval Academy, 3 and 2.

McLister eliminated the defending champion, George Elste, Baltimore, 2 and 1. The tournament is being held at the Columbia Country Club.

Dutch Schaefer Wins at Lanham

Ed "Dutch" Schaefer, with one arm bandaged, won everything he raced in in last night's season finale at West Lanham midget auto track, including the 25-mile feature Capital Championship Sweepstake.

Schaefer's time was 24 minutes, 2.61 seconds, which is .16 seconds off the track record. Schaefer got off to a long lead which was good enough to withstand a bid by Mike Joseph in the final laps. Vernon Land was third. The races attracted 5600 spectators.

Bailey Leads, Hopewell Over W-L, 44 to 19

Hopewell, Va., Sept. 24.—Fullback Bill Bailey outscored the Washington-Lee High of Arlington football team as he carried over five touchdowns and Hopewell trounced the Little Generals, 44-19, here tonight.

Four of Bailey's touchdowns came on short plunges, the fifth on a 15-yard pass from George McDaniel.

Ranger Wing Hurt

Lake Placid, N. Y., Sept. 24 (U.P.).—X-rays disclosed today that Ed Slowinski, New York Ranger right wing, had suffered a fractured knee during a practice hockey session here.

READY FOR REGATTA—Bill Stroh, Detroit sportsman, pictured in his 225 cubic inch powerboat, points to the President's Cup Regatta course off Hains Point just before his boat was launched into the Potomac River. Sidney Dollar, jr., millionaire owner of Gold Cup and the President's Cup regatta favorite, Skipalong, appears happy about the whole thing.

13 Will Race In President's Cup Feature

Heavy-footed pilots will whiz their souped-up craft up and down the Potomac today as the President's Cup Regatta reaches the power boat stage.

Craft of all sizes, from the 91-cubic inch variety to the big league larger boats such as Industrialist Henry Kaiser's Fleur du Lac, will race around the Hains Point course before possibly 100,000 spectators.

Thirteen power boats have been entered in the President's Cup race, feature attraction of the show. The first heat of the Cup race, a six-lap fifteen-mile test, will start at 4:40 p. m., but the first action of the long day begins at 11:30 when the midget outboards race.

The power boat field will be cut to 10 for the semifinal and final heats Sunday afternoon. "Miss Pepsi," 35-foot Allison-powered boat, is the defending champion. As Miss Peps V last year, with Danny Foster at the throttle, the sleek boat swept to a thrilling triumph.

She's now owned by the Dossin Brothers, of Detroit, and will be piloted by Ciel Perry, who won here in 1935 and 1937 with Notre Dame.

Foster was in Washington last night and will definitely be at the wheel of one of the boats today and tomorrow.

Harry Lynn, wealthy owner of La-Hala II, winner of the Cambridge, Md., regatta, might put Foster in the driver's seat. And Stanley Dollar, millionaire owner of the San Francisco entry, Skipalong, was also interested in Foster.

Others entered are Miss Canada III, with Harold Wilson the driver, a Canadian entry, and winner of the regatta in 1939; Norbert Hollenbach's Cricket II, McHenry, Ill.; Mel Crook's Betty V, Upper Montclair, N. J.; Ed Gregory, jr.'s, My Sweetie, with the colorful "Wild Bill" Cantrell as driver; Lou Fageol's So Long; Horace Dodger's ancient but rejuvenated Sister Syn, a contestant here 22 years ago; Robert Frost's Miss Frostie; Jack Shafer's Such Crust and the only local entry; Tommy Keane's Tomadge IV, one of two seven-liter, Fageol-powered boats.

final out. For it was Page, with the old zip back on his fast ball in 1947 style, who mowed them down after Vic Raoshi faltered in the fourth.

Touched for eight hits, never-the-less Page was magnificent most of the way in his 5 2-3 inning stretch. He fanned six men, two each in the eighth and ninth. When he blazed that quick one past Johnny Pesky for the last out of the game, the joint was really jumping.

Just a few minutes earlier they had posted the Detroit-Cleveland score in big white numbers on the center-field scoreboard. Nobody had to tell the 33,609 customers what it meant. They whooped it up throughout the ninth as Page settled down after a single and double and helped himself to a slice of first place. Boston did score once but it didn't matter much. The Sox needed three more to tie.

It was a shoving and pushing type of game, first one team out front and then the other. Just when the Red Sox appeared on their way, after routing Raschi, the Yanks unloaded that four-run inning that sunk Earl Johnson.

Before that, Johnson, who came on when Ellis Kinder was lifted for a pinch hitter in the fourth, was having no trouble.

Brown helped the Yanks get off running with two in the first. His triple to the wall in right center scored Phil Rizzuto, who outscooted a drag bunt. Joe DiMaggio's liner to Brother Dom permitted Brown to tally.

Raschi, pitching coolly, suddenly lost the lead in the third. A walk to Birdie Tebbetts, a single by Dom DiMaggio and a fourth ball that hit Pesky on the ankle loaded them up.

Ted Williams slammed a double to right that Yogi Berra got a glove on but couldn't hold and two runs came home. Pesky romped in from third on Vern Stephens' bouncer to Brown.

Brown's next triple, this time to left center where it rolled to the wall like a 2-iron shot on a baked fairway, backed up by Joe DiMaggio's line single to left tied it up at 3-3 in the last of the third.

Two walks by Raschi and Dom DiMaggio's second straight single put Boston ahead once more in the fourth. Page replaced big Vic and forced in another run by walking Williams after a hit by Pesky loaded the bags.

A walk to Tommy Henrich and Brown's double to the right-field corner rocked Johnson in the fifth. After Joe DiMaggio was passed intentionally, Johnson came off the bench to smack a drive into the seats for three big runs and the ball game.

Blair Staves Off Fairfax Rally to Win

Fairfax High's Rebels scored two touchdowns in the last quarter, but time ran out and they dropped a 20-13 decision to Montgomery-Blair last night before 1541 fans at Fairfax Stadium.

Bob Cushman put Blair in front in the second quarter with a 13-yard touchdown romp. He made another touchdown in the third quarter with a 20-yard jaunt. Dick Williams wound up Blair's scoring with a two-yard touchdown plunge in the third. Warren Roseberry's running set up both Fairfax touchdowns with Jim Broaddus carrying the ball over from the 9 and 20.

Cards Whip Cubs, 4-1; Take Second

Chicago, Sept. 24 (AP).—Behind the five-hit hurling of their crafty lefthander, Harry Brecheen, the St. Louis Cardinals kept their faint flag hopes alive by whipping the Chicago Cubs, 4 to 1, today. It was Brecheen's nineteenth victory against seven deefats.

The victory, at the expense of Cliff Chambers, the Cubs starter, moved the Cardinals in undisputed posession of second place in the National League.

Indians Boot Chance for Lead, Lose, 4-3

record. They were also the 12th, 13th and 14th hit by the Indians off the big righthander.

Lemon seeking his 21st triumph of the campaign, suffered his 13th setback instead. This was his first appearance here since hurled his no-run, no-hit masterpiece against the Tigers June 30.

Bob got off to a bad start, yielding a run in the opening inning. Neil Berry singled with one away, advanced to second on a wild pitch, and after Pat Mullin drew a pass, Wakefield singled Berry home with a sharp rap through the box.

Doby's 400-foot smash into the right center field bleachers tied the score at 1-1 in the fifth. Keltner, who hits Hutchinson as if he owns him, put the Indians ahead in the sixth with a wallop into the left field stands. It was his 29th of the year, his fourth off Hutchinson and his third straight hit of the afternoon.

The Tigers wasted no time pulling even, scoring the tying run in their half of the sixth. Wakefield led off with a line smash which was ruled an automatic double when the ball hopped into the right field stands on one bounce. He moved to third on Eddie Mayo's sacrifice and tallied when George Vico fielded deep to Dale Mitchell in left.

After Hutchinson retired the Indians in order in the top of the seventh, the Tigers moved ahead to stay. Hutchinson, known as one of the best hitting pitchers in the game, singled to left. Johnny Lipon laid down Detroit's third sacrifice of the game, and Berry coaxed a pass to set the stage for Wertz's payoff wallop.

With the count of 2-2, the Detroit righthander reached for an outside pitch and cracked it on a line to left, chasing in Hutchinson and Berry.

Sam Zoldak replaced Lemon and after walking Mullin, was saved further embarrassment when Eddie Robinson made a spectacular back-handed stab of Wakefield's fierce liner and stepped on first doubling Mullin.

The tribe did not submit easily, however. Doby opened the top half of the eighth by beating out an infield hit to Second Baseman Berry.

Gordon Equals Old Total

Hutchinson saved his ball game then and there when he forced Cleveland Manager Lou Boudreau to send a bounder to Lipon, who gobbled up the ball near second, stepped on the bag and whipped to first for a double play.

Gordon's thirtieth homer, which followed, therefore only accounted for Cleveland's third run, instead of deadlocking the game.

The round-tripper enabled Gordon to equal his previous high for a season, and establish a new mark for a righthanded Indian batter. He slammed 30 home runs for the Yankees in 1941.

When he wasn't throwing home run balls, Hutchinson had the overanxious Indians biting the dust most of the time. He walked only two and struck out four. Three of his strike-outs came in the second inning when he experienced his worst jam.

Keltner had opened the visiting half with his first of three hits, a single to left. Wally Judnich walked. At this point, Boudreau disdained the sacrifice and ordered Robinson to hit away. Hutchinson not only fanned Robinson, but also whizzed the third strike past Jim Hegan, who followed and Lemon. All went down swinging.

The Tribe threatened again in the fourth. Gordon bounced out, but Keltner and Judnich singled in succession. Keltner stumbled midway between first and second and was forced to hold up at the middle station.

Robinson, who had been returned to first after a long layoff because of his reputation as a good hitter in Detroit, again failed in the clutch. He sent a simple foul fly to Catcher Joe Ginsberg behind the plate. Hegan flied out to end that threat.

Except for the three homers, and Doby's infield out, Hutchinson did not allow another Indian to reach base thereafter.

Manager Boudreau nominated Gene Bearden (16-7), his ace freshman southpaw, to attempt to deadlock the series tomorrow.

Steve O'Neill, Detroit pilot, will counter with Virgil Trucks (13-12), his veteran right-hander. Bob Feller for Cleveland and Hal Newhouser for Detroit are scheduled to be the opposing hurlers Sunday.

Ring's Star Scores Over Dr. Johnson

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

Bel Air, Md., Sept. 24—Saving every inch of ground, J. J. Ring's Dainger Girl made it two straight victories by taking the featured Fountain Green Purse here today.

Jockey Jimmy Owens brought the mare along in time to win by 2½ lengths with J. K. Wynkoop's Dr. Johnson second and S. M. Folin's Erato third in the field of eight.

The field contained R. E. Vogel's Bad Light and J. N. Fishback's Larkaround, both recent winners at Narragansett. However, the so-called "half-milers" showed little or no respect for the clippings of this big time pair and forced them out of the money circle.

Dainger Girl, who was second to Miss Prime in her first outing and then won, returned a $6 mutuel and registered time of 1:25 4/5 for the 7 furlongs, only a fifth of a second over the track record held by Annie's Dream. The track was fast and a crowd of 7000 saw the action.

Erato set most of the pace while being dogged by Gay Rocket as Dainger Girl saved ground in third position. Approaching the stretch, the mare went through on the inside and from that point to the wire was pulling out gradually.

The Kentmore steeplechase, the last jumping event of the meeting, brought victory to Mrs. W. D. Thomas' Rollo, an 11-year-old son of Man o'War. This $8.20 winner finished 2 lengths in advance of F. Adams' April Dip, the latter the favorite. Mrs. N. L. Brown's Similar was third. The winning time of 4:17 3/5 for thee about 2 miles was only two fifths over the track mark.

April Dip proved the first steeplechase choice to lose at the meeting and the second in two years at this track. The lone mishap came when Jockey N. W. Staubs fell from R. F. Livingston's Taps-To-Reveille after the final jump. The rider suffered some bruises.

The daily double winners collected $16.80 on the 5 and 5 combination. Jimmy Rankin, leading rider at the meeting, took the first in a tight photo, getting J. Mauro's Golden Brown, a $6.60 shot, home. In the second race, A. T. Taylor's Thalia Lad, paying $6.20, was the winner under Jockey Stanley Austin's handling.

Near-Capacity Crowd Certain

Redskins Ready for Bitter Battle With Steelers Sunday

A lot of people and a lot of excitement are sure to turn up tomorrow when the Washington Redskins play host to the Pittsburgh Steelers in the National Football League opener for both.

A near-capacity crowd was a certainty yesterday when the Skins' office announced that more than 30,000 seats have been sold already. Only a few thousand remained, most of them to be snatched up by late fans at gametime.

The excitement prediction stems from a survey of previous action between the bitter enemies. In their last two Griffith Stadium meetings a total of one point has separated the teams. Last year it was 27-26, favoring the 'Skins, and the year before it was a 14-14 deadlock.

Oddly enough it was an unsuccessful last-minute field goal attempt that kept Pittsburgh from winning both times. In 1946 Bill Dudley missed from the 15-yard stripe. In '47 it was Joe Glamp, still the club's placement artist, who tried for a 3-pointer and saw the ball hit the goal post uprights and bounce back into the field.

A single touchdown has separated the teams in their last two clashes in Pittsburgh. In '46 the Steelers won, 14-7, and last year they whipped the Redskins, 21-14, on the way to a tie for Eastern Division honors.

If Boston ties Cleveland the playoff will be in Boston, October 4.

If New York ties Cleveland, the playoff will be in New York, October 4.

If the three teams tie, New York will meet the winner of the October 4 Boston-Cleveland game on the home grounds of the winning team, October 5.

7 Matches Slated In Team Golf

The Maryland State Golf Association fall team matches hit their full stride tomorrow with seven matches scheduled, six of them involving local clubs.

The four area teams staying at home for their matches are Indian Spring which meets Aberdeen, Prince Georges playing against Hillendale, Manor welcoming Bonnie View and Kenwood which will have Country Club of Maryland for a visitor.

Chevy Chase, which beat Green Spring Valley in last week's opener, travels to Rolling Road, and Washington Golf and Country Club visits Suburban. Woodholme, scheduled to meet Congressional, has forfeited.

single-handedly beat the Hoyas, 27-6.

The teams first played in 1904, but have faced each other only four times since then. Georgetown will be trying to protect the 5-2 edge it holds in the series.

Coach Jim Tatum of Maryland finds himself suffering from success as the Terps open against Richmond.

Tatum fears he wove so well last year that his Terps are so cocky they'll be caught in the Richmond Spider web at the outset. Since his first team rammed through seven foes and wound up in the 'Gator bowl, everyone figured 1948 would really be THE year. Even the players, which is what worries Tatum the most.

Squad Too Complacent

Complacency on the veteran Terp starting eleven is so bad, Tatum plans to keep several of them on the bench at the starting whistle.

Being pressed particularly are tackle Ray Krouse by Ed Kensler, end Elmer Wingate by Stan Kannash, and guard Paul Broglio by Bob Ward. Ward and Kensler came to Maryland this season after experience on service teams.

Only two backs are certain of starting, too. Vic Turyn is set at quarterback and Harry Bonk at full. At left half it's between Hubie Werner and Johnny Idzik while Jim La Rue, Vernon Siebert and Joe Kuchta are running a hot race for right half—the old post of Lu Gambino.

Tatum has said all along everyone was expecting too much of his team despite their unexpected success of last year. He warned the team after his scouts saw Richmond trounce Randolph-Macon, 33-0, last week that the Spiders are "big and tough."

Auto-Murders 'Clew' in D. C. Proves Fruitless

Four-Hour Check By Anne Arundel Officers Fails to Advance Inquiry

A "possible lead" here in the Glen Burnie, Md., double-murder case "drew a blank" yesterday.

Two Anne Arundel County detectives spent four hours running down a clew in the District, at the invitation of Washington police, then returned to Glen Burnie, saying their trip had brought them no nearer a solution to the slayings of Mary C. Kline, 18, and John H. Mahlan, 25, on the couple's weekly date a week ago last night.

The bodies of the couple were found Monday in a field six miles west of Annapolis. Mahlan's auto, bullet-ridden and blood-soaked, had been found 12 miles away three days earlier.

Soldier Questioned

Investigators questioned a 19-year-old soldier whom they took into custody at the girl's funeral yesterday morning, after he had remarked he was a friend of Miss Kline.

Also questioned were two other men who previously had been grilled and released Thursday night. Anne Arundel Police Lieut. Wilbur Wade picked them up yesterday afternoon to ask them some more questions, he said.

While awaiting a complete report from the Federal Bureau of Investigation on fingerprints taken from Mahlan's car, Maryland authorities indicated they have few worthwhile clews to the identify of the person or persons who apparently ambushed the couple sometime last Friday night or Saturday morning, shot Mahlan in the head with a .38-caliber revolver and, possibly, took the girl for a six-hour terror ride before she was similarly shot and her body was left near that of the postoffice worker's. An autopsy indicated she died six hours after her escort.

Chemical tests to determine if the girl was raped also were not completed last night. Her father, John Kline, who revealed her watch and bracelet were missing and Mahlan's watch also were taken, believes the slayer was familiar with the neighborhood.

The Anne Arundel County detectives summoned to Washington would not disclose whether their trip here concerned the visit here of a Texarkana, Tex., police officer who reported the similarity of the Glen Burnie slayings and the still-unsolved murders of two girls and three young men in Texarkana two years ago.

A woman's jacket picked up along a road near Bel Air, Md., which at first was believed might prove a clew in the killings, was shown yesterday to have no connection.

Governor Visits Home

Maryland's Governor Lane, in response to a plea from the girl's father to leave no stone unturned in efforts to solve the case, talked yesterday with Police Chief John Souers and other investigators at Glen Burnie. He said afterward he was satisfied everything possible was being done. He called at the Kline home just after Mary's parents returned from her funeral in Glen Haven Cemetery.

"I feel much better now about the investigation," the grieving father said. "I'm sure the authorities are doing everything they can to find out who killed my girl."

The Governor called at the Mahlan home also, but found the dead man's parents had not yet returned from his funeral Thursday in New York.

Many school-day chums of the girl attended the requiem mass at Holy Trinity Church in Glen Burnie that followed simple services in a funeral home. Mrs. Kline was so shaken there she had to be taken to a side room. At the cemetery, she wept silently, pressing a handkerchief to her face.

Her husband, dry-eyed but bowed, supported her by the arm. As the bereaved parents' limousine left the cemetery, Mrs. Kline seemed to slump back in her seat and collapse.

The six young men who acted as Mary's pallbearers included three classmates who were graduated with her last spring from Glen Burnie High School. Since then Mary had worked as a typist in Baltimore.

Queen 'Gery' Crowned For Regatta

Lustrous Margery Pepperell Clifford, 16-year-old daughter of Presidential adviser Clark Clifford, was crowned seventeenth Queen of the President's Cup Regatta last night in brief ceremonies at the Willard Hotel.

Cool as the ice-blue satin dress which graced her queen-sized figure (height, 5 feet 10½; weight, 140), "Gery" was "excited, yes, but nervous—never."

The sparkling diadem was moored firmly to Gery's rippling golden hair by Vice Admiral William Morrow Fechteler, deputy chief of naval operations, with the salty observation:

"We in the Navy want you to know that we consider the judgment of the committee in choice of the queen to be absolutely perfect both because of your charm and because we in the Navy consider you one of our family."

From a Navy Family

Gery's father, Admiral Fechteler explained, was a Navy captain; her great-grandfather sailed with Dewey in the battle of Manila Bay.

Then the statuesque queen was asked to rise and pose for the appreciative audience in the Congressional Room. With adult poise, in the rich soprano voice she hopes to train for the opera, she coolly replied: "Thank you very much—if I could get up I would but I can't."

Remaining seated, she indicated the overbearing weight of crown, gold-trimmed red train, ermine cape—and some six dozen roses cradled in her arms.

Mother, Sisters Present

Tense, front-row spectators were also blonde, equally attractive sisters, Joyce, 14, and Randall, 8, and mother, the former Margery Pepperell Kimball, who remarked that there was only one hitch: "I only wish my husband were here!"

The presidential adviser was in San Diego with Mr. Truman on his campaign tour.

Background color was provided by the Navy Band, a court of school friends and embassy daughters, escorted by Naval officers and costumed members of the Columbia Opera Company.

Escorting the Woodrow Wilson senior was Lieut. William H. Lanagan, USMC. The coronation signaled the start of the final weekend of the annual festival which climaxes today and Sunday with speedboat races off Hains Point.

Strange Illness Hits 2 More on Hospital Staff

Two new cases of the mystery malady with grippe-like symptoms were reported among Providence Hospital personnel yesterday by Sister Marie, hospital administrator.

The new cases brought to 14 the number of doctors, nurses and attendants hit by the infection which raises temperatures to 104 and starts with headaches and muscular pains. These follow sore throats, intestinal cramps and diarrhea in the disease's two-day course.

Another 20 residents of Southeast Washington have been treated at the hospital's emergency room for similar symptoms and sent home.

The malady, described by the District Health Department as a contact disease, "probably a virus," was first reported publicly by the Health Department on Thursday. The announcer ent followed exhaustive study by health officers who ruled out food-poisoning as the cause.

Still undiagnosed, the disease has baffled pathologists at the hospital. Throat cultures, blood cultures and stool cultures yielded no positive findings, pathologists said. One physician described it as "influenza with whiskers," but only informally.

The infection first struck hospital staff members on September 16, several days after admission to the hospital of two obstetrical patients who evidenced similar symptoms shortly after they arrived, according to investigators from the Health Department.

One Whooping Cough Case Found in Home

Only one of three children at the District's Industrial Home school annex suspected of whooping cough still shows indications of the malady, and no further cases have been reported.

The annex was quarantined Monday by the Health Department and three children suspected of having whooping cough were sent to Gallinger.

The outbreak occurred last week in the small children's building at 5200 Little Falls rd. nw. No new children will be admitted until the Health Department removes the quarantine.

1000 Attend Opening of Three-Day Festival in Falls Church

UNDER THE "STARS AND BARS"—Women of Falls Church costumed as ladies of the Confederacy offer novelties to buyers at the town festival, which opened yesterday. They are (from left) Mrs. Mary Hollidge, Mrs. Hazel Pugh, Mrs. Mabel Matthews, Mrs. Minna Stephens, Mrs. Myrtle Hewett and Linda Lee Matthews, 8. This scene was in "Virginia Village."

Historical Pageant To Conclude Benefit For Proposed Park

The three-day Falls Church festival began yesterday with more than 1000 persons attending in carnival spirit despite threatening skies and an unseasonable chill.

In fact, it was shoving-room-only at the festival grounds on Fairfax st., just behind the Falls Episcopal Church.

Main factor in the healthy turnout, festival officials said, was the release of all city school children at 1:30 p. m. yesterday and their parade to the festival site.

Kids and their parents thronged the several dozen exhibits and booths, many of them made as replicas of historic old Falls Church taverns, inns, and stores.

Doll House a Grab Bag

Participants ate ham and beaten biscuits at the Toll Gate Inn; admired the replica of an early barber shop, and bought needlework at a replica of Charles Mankin's Notions Shop, which once stood at Broad and Washington sts.

Major attractions for the youngsters were the pony and jeep ride on the grounds. And also popular was the century-old doll house owned by Mrs. John Eakin of 700 E. Broad st., which had grab-bag prizes hidden behind its windows.

Five elaborately costumed children were winners in the costume contest held later in the afternoon. They were:

Allen Stokes, 12, of 133 Church walk, for his clown get-up; Eunice Josephine Edwards, 6, of Box 524, Alexandria, Va., for her "Colonial dame" outfit; Mary Ruth O'Halloran, 8, of 223 Little Falls st. as a Gay Nineties beauty, and her sister Martine, 6, as Scarlett O'Hara.

Vagabond Costume Wins

Leeman Moore, 11, of Holmes Run rd., was the final costume winner, dressed as a vagabond. All five received prizes of toys and games contributed by Falls Church merchants.

The three-day festival, which ends Sunday with a historical pageant, is sponsored by the Falls Church Community Park, Inc. Funds raised will be used to purchase land for a city park.

Carnival events are due to continue today. At 11 a. m. judges will select the best flowers and baked goods entered by local contestants. Winning entries will be auctioned off later.

Tonight a Colonial dress costume contest will be held, including an award for the best-dressed Colonial family.

Sunday will be marked by a tour of 10 historic Falls Church homes. The tour begins at 2 p. m. at the Falls Episcopal Church. Festival climax will be the pageant at 8:30 p. m. Sunday night at the corner of Lee hwy. and Roosevelt st. The pageant, with a cast of 75, will portray Falls Church history from 1699 to the present.

SHORT OF CHANGE—Charles Edward Jones explains his problem by calling attention to his empty pockets. Mrs. C. P. Collins admitted him, however.

Laborer Charged With Leaving Scene of Crash

Bernard L. Proctor, 23, of 1564 Sims dr., se., was held yesterday under $300 bond in Municipal Court for trial October 5 on charges of leaving after colliding, driving on the wrong side of the street, and failing to record a change of address on his permit.

He was arrested Thursday night after his truck overturned on colliding with an automobile. A passenger in the latter vehicle, Mrs. Ethel E. Cooksey, 1214 W st. se., was slightly injured.

According to police, Proctor was aided by bystanders from his overturned truck and then walked away without reporting the accident. Proctor, who is a laborer at the Naval Gun Factory, was traced through a letter he left in the truck, it was said.

Brass Rail Case Witness Says He Lied

A Washington gambler yesterday admitted in District Court that a sworn statement he had given the Uinted States attorney's office relating to the Brass Rail shooting contained lies.

The gambler, Melvin Johnson, 39, said he made the statement after he was promised by Assistant U. S. Attorney John W. Fihelly that the special grand jury probing gaming here might "go lightly" with him if he cooperated and told what he knew of the shooting.

Fihelly told reporters later that no promises of any kind were made Johnson, who was made subject to cross examination by Prosecutor Charles B. Murray, under a ruling by Judge Henry A. Schweinhaut, admitted that the information in the statement was wholly his own although he said Fihelly made some "suggestions."

He said that, having been a "member of the gambling fraternity" for 20 years, he was concerned about the grand jury probe.

In his written statement, read in court yesterday, Johnson had said that defendant Henry M. (Piggy) Leake told him that he (Leake) had gone to the Brass Rail to see Roger (White Top) Simkins, whose wife runs the cafe, "on business." This allegation was untrue, Johnson testified, even though he admitted making it.

(Leake and Charles H. Nelson, night manager of the cafe, are charged with shooting each other at the cafe after Leake was denied admittance.

(The Government contends that Leake went to the Brass Rail because his numbers business was declining and he blamed Simkins for the decrease.)

As Murray questioned Johnson on the truth of each allegation in the statement, the witness, while admitting he made the statements, contended they were untrue for the most part. He said he was "confused" while writing the statement.

Johnson's statement that Leake told him he had gone to see Simkins "on business" was the only allegation read in court that even hinted faintly at a policy game tie-in. The other elements of the sworn statement were concerned with the actual shooting itself.

George Morris Fay, United States Attorney for the District, called "premature" a query as to possible perjury action.

Chest Office To Get Free Repair Job

The Washington Building Trades Council (AFL) and the Washington Building Congress, representing local contractors, will join forces Saturday, October 9 to renovate in one day a Red Feather agency office.

Community Chest Campaign General Chairman Chauncey G. Parker described the offer as the "finest evidence that people have complete confidence in the work of Red Feather services. The Community Chest drive opens October 7.

Parker announced all workmen needed for the renovation job will donate their services. He said the Building Congress would supply—free—materials needed.

C. F. Preller, president of the Central Union body, and C. W. Humphrey's, a contractor and member of the Building Congress, will confer with Edward J. Keyes, executive director of the Community Chest Federation, to decide "where a single day's repair and repainting job may be most effective."

Retail Price Index Rises 6.3% in Year

Retail prices of goods and services usually bought by moderate-income families in Washington rose 1.5 per cent during the period from May 15 to August 15, the Bureau of Labor Statistics announced yesterday.

The consumers' price index on August 15 was 169.2 per cent of the 1935-39 average, 6.3 per cent higher than a year ago and 26.5 per cent more than in June, 1946.

However, retail food prices, which increased 2.5 per cent over the three months' period surveyed, declined 0.1 per cent in the month from July 15 to August 15, BLS reported. The retail food price index on August 15 of this year stood at 214.9 per cent of the 1935-39 average, 9.0 per cent higher than a year ago and 47.7 per cent more than in June, 1946.

Across the country, retail prices of foods and services rose 0.5 per cent from July 15 to August 15, bringing the consumers price index to 174.5 per cent of the 1935-39 average.

Washington's fractional decline in food prices from mid-July to mid-August was attributed to decreases in the price of fruits and vegetables primarily. Prices of meants, poultry and fish were 2.9 per cent higher, eggs increased 7.8 per cent and beverages, cereals and bakery products rose fractionally.

A fractional decline in apparel prices was noted, especially on women's and girls' cotton dresses, women's shoes, men's business shirts, pajamas and shorts and cotton yard goods. Prices were higher, however, for men's heavy wool suits, overalls and work shirts, and women's wool suits, rayon dresses and slips.

Board May Act To Limit Zoning Of Apartments

Consultant Finds D. C. Population Density Too High In Some Sections

Revision of zoning regulations to limit population density in some apartment house sections may be recommended by the National Capital Park and Planning Commission, Maj. Gen. Grant 3d, chairman, said yesterday.

General Grant said studies of Harland Bartholomew of St. Louis, NCPPC consultant working on the comprehensive plan for Washington and vicinity indicated there is ample space now zoned for apartment houses and that some sections have a greater population density than is considered desirable, but this "is rather spotty."

"I believe the commission will recommend zoning regulations to fix a limit on density which eventually will squeeze out the excess population," he said, "but this would happen as alternative developments gave tenants other places to live which would be more desirable."

Discusses Parking Plan

No particular localities or figures on population density were mentioned.

Bartholomew also discussed a proposed parking plan, a transit program and policy questions in connection with proposals for modernizing under privileged areas.

General Grant was directed by the commission to write a letter of congratulations and good wishes to P. Y. K. Howat, chairman of the District Motor Vehicle Parking Agency, and others active in the inauguration of the fringe parking program.

The NCPPC concluded its two-day meeting with a tour yesterday afternoon with two Maryland-National Capital Park and Planning Commission officials. They were William C. Burrage, planning engineer in Montgomery County, and Fred W. Tuemmler, director of planning for Prince Georges County.

They visited the lower section of Rock Creek Park along East-West hwy. and inspected housing developments at Rock Creek Gardens and Rock Creek Forest, and the north corner of the District and 16th st. "where there is the problem of relocating portions of East-West hwy. to connect directly with the Colesville pike through the north corner of the District."

Visit Sligo Creek Park

They also visited Sligo Park, created with the aid of Capper-Cramton Act funds, between Piney Branch and Sligo Park. From there, they went through Forest Glen, and out Georgia ave. to Wheaton, Md., to see the scope of postwar housing developments. They also visited the National Institute of Health site at Bethesda, Md., where the Government has recenly acquired a tract to expand.

The commissioners said they were "impressed" with the variety of postwar housing and the foresight with which the Maryland commission was acquiring rights of way for widening important access roads to these developments.

They also expressed concern with the possible encroachment of housing developments on some areas designated for valley parks, and said a case in point was at the upper end of Sligo Park, where subdivisions are edging down into the valley and rendering it undesirable for park purposes.

For Diagnosing

Talk More, Test Less, Doctor's Tip

If doctors would spend more time just talking with their patients and less in subjecting them to complicated examinations, diagnosis could be made more easily.

This view was expressed last night by Dr. Walter C. Alvarez, Mayo Clinic specialist on digestive diseases, as the first guest lecture of the 1948-49 season at the Naval Medical Center, Bethesda, Md. Dr. Alvarez spoke on "Puzzling Functional Symptoms."

A patient will often come to his doctor with a story of aches and pains in some part of his body which actually are no less than symptoms of hysteria or other neurosis, he said.

Many specialists, highly trained in their field, merely seek to cure some disease peculiar to their specialty, and the patient is treated for months without relief or even undergoes a number of operations without results.

The country practitioner has a far better chance of recognizing the neurosis than his more erudite city counterpart, Dr. Alvarez contended. Without the benefit of all the city's diagnostic machinery he relies on a careful story of the patient's complaints to form his opinion, he said.

Dr. Alvarez cited a large number of patients he had treated at the Mayo Clinic for a simple form of neurosis which had gone unrecognized. Before this, the patients had been treated by some of the country's leading physicians for one disease or another.

Rising Load Cuts Welfare Grant Hike

A recent increase in welfare grants must be shaved by 7 per cent effective November 1 because of a rapidly increasing number of cases, the Board of Public Welfare announced yesterday.

The cut will affect 5200 recipients of the grants—140 of them families and 380 of them individuals.

"The board chose to apply a 7 per cent cut on and after November 1 to all grants which are based on the revised budget guide," said Fred S. Kogod, vice chairman of the board, "and to apply also to each budget need newly authorized or changed after October 1."

Far Exceeds Average

Kogod said the reduction was necessary because the case load is greatly exceeding the average net increase of 33 cases monthly expected for the current fiscal year.

There was an increase in June of 86 cases over May, an increase in July of 66 over June, an increase in August of 81 over July, and so far this month an increase of 68 over August.

Why the increased number of cases? The board suggested four explanations:

1. The present high cost of living makes it increasingly difficult for families of small resources to get along without outsidt assistance.

2. The increased number of desertions, fathers deserting wives and families because of financial pressure.

3. Exhaustion of the resources of private family and relief agencies.

TB Survey a Factor

4. The TB Survey. Many workers who have been diagnosed as tt berculars have used up their sick leave and savings. There were 64 such cases in the past four months.

At yesterday's meeting the board also announced the new Receiving Home for Children on Mount Olivet rd. will be in operation within two weeks. It will have a capacity of 43 children in addition to the resident staff.

A committe of eight was nominated to serve for one year and formulate rules and regulations for child placement agencies.

The board also reelected the following officers: Edgar Morris as chairman, Kogod as vice chairman, and A. J. Driscoll as secretary.

Beset by Worry

Mother Dies In Plunge From Roof

Plagued with worries, a 50-year-old mother leaped 11 floors to her death yesterday from the roof of Doctors Hospital, 1815 I st. nw.

The woman, Mrs. Rachael Grayce Armstrong, employed for more than two years as a diet kitchen maid at the hospital, was pronounced dead at 6:30 a. m. by Dr. Robert V. Choisser of the Doctors Hospital staff. Coroner A. Magruder MacDonald issued a certificate of suicide.

Police said Mrs. Armstrong, who had been living at 6528 Coolidge st., Maryland Park, Md., arrived for work at the hospital yesterday 30 minutes early, put on her uniform, had a cup of coffee in the cafeteria, then took an elevator to the top floor. She explained to the operator she wanted to use the public telephone on that floor.

Lands Near Main Entrance

She apparently stepped upon a metal chair and then mounted a 3½-foot ledge from which she jumped, police said. Her body was discovered on the sidewalk, near the hospital's main entrance on I st., by Richard Silvas, a houseman at the hospital.

A Maryland neighbor of Mrs. Armstrong said she had an accumulation of worries in the past summer, she had undergone two operations for varicose veins.

She was also concerned over the fact that her son, Wallace, 20, had registered for the draft and was eligible for call.

A next door neighbor and close friend, Mrs. Annie Robertson, of 6526 Coolidge st., said Mrs. Armstrong had been in a highly nervous state the past few days and on Wednesday confided her nerves were "shot" and that "I just don't see how I can go on."

Planned to Move Today

Mrs. Robertson denied that Mrs. Armstrong was worried about being evicted from her house which was condemned a month ago as being unsafe for occupancy. She said Mrs. Armstrong had paid a month's advance rent on an apartment in downtown Washington, on 11th st. nw., and had planned to move into it today.

Mrs. Lillian C. Williams, supervisor of the diet kitchen at the hospital, who identified Mrs. Armstrong's body, said she had an excellent work record and had previously been employed at a Washington bakery and the Naval Research Laboratory.

A native of Bismarck, N. Dak., Mrs. Armstrong had four children by a first marriage. The two children by her second marriage are Wallace and Mrs. Rachael Carroll, of 6801 Eads st., Seat Pleasant, Md.

'Axis Sally's' Trial Is Set For Nov. 15

Mildred E. Gillars, "Axis Sally" of the Nazi radio, pleaded innocent yesterday in District Court to a 10-count treason indictment.

Judge Matthew F. McGuire rejected a motion for bail for the gray-haired defendant, pointing out that a treason conviction may result in the death penalty.

The 47-year-old native of Portland, Me., appeared in the court dressed in a tailored black suit. She looked calm throughout the entire proceeding.

When asked how she wished to plead, she said:

"Certainly not guilty."

Trial date was set for November 15. Defense Attorney James J. Laughlin unsuccessfully asked for a January 21 date on the grounds that the trial needed intensive preparation. He said the trial would take 14 months and that numerous witnesses, including President Truman, would be called.

The indictment charged Miss Gillars with "willfully, feloniously and treasonably adhering to the enemies of the United States in time of war."

The Government charged that she aided Nazi psychological warfare by broadcasting programs to American troops in Europe and America to undermine their morale.

A Washington man was pinned under his truck for about 15 minutes after it overturned on Lee blvd. at N. Washington blvd. in Arlington yesterday afternoon.

The curve was strewn with the truck's contents of trash and dirt. A wrecker from Wagner's Service Station, 2324 Columbia pike was used to right the truck and free the trapped driver.

Gray told Arlington police an unidentified driver crowded him into the curb along the grass strip in the center of the highway. The truck then zigzaged back to the street, over the curbing again and overturned.

Owner of the truck is the Van E. Thompson Trucking Co., of 1047 31st st. nw.

Baltimore, Sept. 24 (AP).—The University of Maryland board of regents today agreed to hear groups interested in admitting Negro students to the university.

The board made the announcement after its regular meeting here. Its hearing will be conducted October 22 in the university hospital board room.

The board also approved designating the projected university chapel as a memorial to the university's students and alumni who served in the armed forces in wartime.

Judge to Rule Monday on Barking Dogs

Final arguments in a lawsuit filed by Sam Rice, former Washington outfielder, which seeks to quiet the "barking, yelping and whining" of dogs in a kennel adjacent to his home were heard yesterday.

The former baseball player charges in an injunction suit the barking from a kennel operated by Claude P. Williams, at Ashton, Md., prevents him from "sleeping, reading and conversing."

Judge Stedman Prescott, of Montgomery Circuit Court, said he would hand down a decision Monday in the year-long legal battle.

Approximately 80,000 words of testimony were taken in the case. A parade of witnesses summoned by both sides offered conflicting testimony.

Rice himself testified he had been a dog lover "for 50 years but I'm just about cured."

Court Cites Va. Educators In 'Equality'

Richmond, Va., Sept. 24 (AP).—Federal Judge Sterling Hutcheson today ordered the superintendents and school boards of King George and Gloucester Counties to appear October 22 to show cause why they should not be punished for contempt.

He entered rules against defendants in both counties on petitions by attorneys for Negro school children, who in July won injunctions against discrimination in educational facilities.

The judge noted that both cases were reinstated on the court's docket "for good cause shown."

One cause shown in the King George case was a copy of a petition, which Attorney Martin A. Martin told the court is being "widely circulated in King George County by defendants and their agents."

In it, Martin stated, the defendants request and demand that Negro citizens of said county, including plaintiffs, repudiate and annul all affiliations with the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People and renounce and repudiate plaintiffs' attorneys before defendants will request the judge of the Circuit Court of said county to call for an election for a bond issue in order to secure money to build Negro schools."

Martin termed this "further evidence of defendants' malicious and contumacious conduct and attitude."

Committee to Urge Playground Equality

Cumberland, Md., Sept. 24 (AP).—The recreation planning committee of Cumberland announced today it will recommend an end to racial segregation on municipal playgrounds of Maryland's second-largest city.

The group said it had aproved a suggestion to that effect by Earle F. Bracey, Negro principal of Carver High School here. Bracey is a member of the committee.

The recommendation will be contained in a report to be handed to the Mayor and council of Cumberland shortly.

The Cumberland Recreation Planning Committee is an advisory board which makes recommendations to the mayor and council. The municipal body is not bound by its recommendations.

The committee was appointed about six months ago by the mayor and council to study and prepare a long-range recreation project, to recommend how proceeds of a $150,000 recreation bond issue should be spent and to recommend acquisition of land and improvement of playgrounds.

In Baltimore, Maryland's first city, playground segregation policies are headed toward a court test.

Recently, a Federal court ruled that municipal golf courses in Baltimore must be open to Negro players because links provided for them do not meet the standards of courses for white golfers.

Nap in Wagon Costs Police Private $35

Georgetown Police Precinct Pvt. Alva R. Matlack was fined $35 by the Police Trial Board yesterday for sleeping in his patrol wagon early last Saturday, instead of driving it around on his beat.

Matlack admitted he drove into a gasoline station in the 3900 block of Canal rd. to take a rest because he was tired, then fell asleep. Passing night inspectors—lieutenants in plain clothes—saw the parked patrol, found Matlack asleep in it, went back to their two-way radio car and asked the radio dispatcher to call Matlack on his radio.

Matlack answered the call, started his motor, put on his lights and started moving. The dispatcher asked him to give his location and he gave it as 36th and M sts. nw., figuring that would be more easily recognized as the nearest intersection.

That brought an additional charge of "prejudicial" conduct, on which he was let off with a warning after Capt. Archie M. Winfree, of the trial board, who used to command the Seventh Precinct, said Matlack was justified in naming that location.

"Final curtain"

Hollywood, Sept. 24.—Debonair Warren William, stage and movie favorite for 30 years, died of a rare blood disease today after an illness of nearly a year.

The 53-year-old William, yachtsman, inventor and owner of one of the most beautiful estates in filmland, never rallied from an attack of virus X suffered last November.

He is survived by his widow, Helen, with whom he recently celebrated his twenty-fifth anniversary, and two sisters.

William's early training was in newspaper work, but his aptitude for the theater took him to Broadway, where Alexander Woollcott called him a "young John Drew."

William came to Hollywood in 1932, and was an immediate success in the young talkies as a detective and district attorney.

Among his better-known films were "The Mouthpiece," "The Match King," "Gold Diggers of 1933" and "Arizona." In recent years he had done the "Lone Wolf" series. His last picture, two years ago, was "Bel Ami."

Tuberculosis Group Told of X-Ray's Value

The importance of chest X-rays in the fight against tuberculosis was emphasized last night by Dr. Clarence W. Davis, health education instructor at Miner Teachers College, as the only way of detecting the disease.

But Dr. Davis warned that workers should urge the public to undergo a complete "health inventory" to check on other possible maladies.

Dr. Davis spoke at the opening session of the third annual Tuberculosis Conference sponsored by the Negro Auxiliaries of the Arlington, Fairfax and Alexandria Tuberculosis Associations at the Mount Zion Baptist Church, 19th and S. Langley sts., Arlington.

Speaking on the topic, "Fields Allied to Tuberculosis Control," Dr. Davis said that "health inventories" may disclose symptoms of other crippling diseases.

The speaker was introduced by Miss Addie Rankin, field adviser of the Negro program of the Virginia Tuberculosis Association. Mrs. Gwendolyn Griffith, secretary of the Negro auxiliary of the Arlington Tuberculosis Association, presided.

The conference will close today with discussions on study groups, home nursing, rehabilitation, hospital facilities and seal sale ideas.

H. E. Garner Service Held At McLean, Va.

Memorial services for Harry E. Garner, 72, retired mining engineer and former special assistant to the Assistant Secretary of the Treasury under Secretary Mellon, were held at his home, Fairfax rd., McLean, Va., Thursday afternoon.

Mr. Garner died Tuesday at George Washington Hospital following a prolonged illness. Funeral services were private.

He was a native of Covington, Ky. His father was Richard L. Garner, anthropologist and linguist. The latter made one of the earliest expeditions to Africa for the Smithsonian Institution, and recorded the vocal sounds of apes and chimpanzees on instruments especially constructed by Thomas A. Edison. The elder Garner also brought the first gorilla to Washington, it is said.

The son was an alumnus of William and Mary College and for a time was secretary to the New Amsterdam Casualty Co., Baltimore. He later conducted gold mining operations in Alaska and oil drilling in Texas.

While serving in the Treasury Department he was in close contact with the Coast Guard during the post World War I rum-running days and a stanch supporter of its work. When efforts were made to merge the Coast Guard with the Navy he was active in opposition.

Mr. Garner in his younger days was a prize rifle shot and a big-game hunter. He also was well known in chess circles here. He was a former Baltimore and Maryland chess champion and an honorary life member of the Washington Chess Divan.

Virginia Shy Stickers for Auto Testing

Richmond, Va., Sept. 24 (AP).—A snag in Virginia's third postwar motor vehicle inspection appeared today when State police disclosed that only 20,000 of 875,000 inspection stickers had been delivered for the inspection.

Governor Tuck has proclaimed the inspection for October 1 to November 15.

Col. C. W. Woodson, superintendent of State police, whose department administers the program, said the inspection will get under way October 1 "if the stickers get here."

He said the stickers were ordered from the State division of purchase and printing July 8, with a delivery date of September 1.

He explained that approximately one month is required to package and deliver the stickers to official stations in Virginia.

Robert W. Anderson, buyer for the division of purchase and printing, said a contract for the stickers had been awarded to Everett Waddey Co., of Richmond, July 16. He added the nature of the certificates require that they be printed in New York, and that the contractor had had difficulties in getting the work out.

Jules S. Bache Art May Come To Washington

The art works of the late Jules S. Bache will go to the Metropolitan Museum of Art if a condition is met, otherwise to the National Gallery of Art here, it was disclosed yesterday in New York.

In his will, Bache, New York investment broker, who died March 24, 1944, stipulated that the works of art of the Bache Foundation should go to the Metropolitan only if they are exhibited as the J. S. Bache Collection.

An estate tax appraisal filed yesterday showed Bache left a net estate valued at about $3,500,000.

Unfair to Shorties!

Calories Must Be Fewer for Small Girls

By Ida Jean Kain

While it doesn't seem fair, one girl's calories allowance for curves is another girl's avoirdupois. Take two models: one girl 5'2", weighing a plump 138 pounds; and another girl 5'6¾", weighing a slim 138 pounds. What age? Age doesn't really figure, but we'll have them at the interesting age of 35, when weight threatens. Since our models weigh the same, are they entitled to the same number of calories, provided their activity matches? Alas, no . . .

Our short, plump girl is toting about 20 excess pounds of fatty tissue, and fatty tissue does not burn calories. It takes practically no part in the activity of the body cells. It's lifeless weight. Figuring from there, it's easy to see that the more of your total weight that is "dead weight" the less food (calories) you require, and the less you can eat without piling on pounds.

Requirements Are Higher

Our taller girl, even though she weighs the same, has more active tissue, for active tissue is based on body surface, area in proportion to weight. Naturally with more of the weight in active tissue, less is in fatty tissue, and her calorie requirements are higher—since active tissue burns calories. It's a simple as that—a tall, thin girl uses more calories than a shorter, plumper girl of the same weight.

Our models get the same amount of activity—that is they are moderately active—so they use about 16 calories per pound of normal body weight. The tall girl then would use 138 x 16—2208 calories each day. Our short girl, who should weigh not more than 118 pounds, must figure her calories on her normal weight: 118 x 16—1888 calories.

That's all true, but—our short woman is a born cook and loves to eat. Naturally she feels entitled to as many calories as the next woman who weighs the same as she does . . . so she eats about 2200 calories a day, which after all is the number the average woman doing sedentary work is entitled to have. So when she consumes roughtly 312 calories a day over the top of her requirements, it's plain to see what happens—she gains, at the rate of slightly more than a half pound a week. And when this goes on, week in and week out, how the pounds roll on!

Using the same calorie arithmetic, in reverse, let's put our short stocky gal on an 1100 calorie diet. This is 788 calories a day below the number used, which in a week's time amounts of 5516 calories under her requirements. Since 1 pound of body fat contains 4321 calories—usually figured at 4000 calories but we'll be specific this time, since every calorie counts with the short gals—our dieter on an 1100 calorie diet will lose about 1¼ pounds a week. Nice going. Then, too, 1100 calories allow for adequate nutrition.

Low Heels Give Comfortable Lift

A sensational style development has been the change in attitude toward flats and low-heeled footwear, once fashion outcasts and now favorites with everyone. Whether you're young or old, flats and low heels are for you.

The current crop of low-heeled casuals reflects the vogue of higher-riding patterns and openwork lightness. Some models show a symmetric openwork on the vamp, with straps that enhance ankle interest. One T-strap sandal shows a moccasin front and open back, with prominent stitching on the strong supporting leather sole. Another appears with closed toe and open heel in bright colored combinations of suede and smooth finishes, the clean-edged leather sole lending a trim note along with walking comfort.

Making Sandwiches in Advance

Sandwiches can be made several hours in advance—even overnight—and kept fresh by placing them in the humidrawer or crisping pan of the refrigerator. It isn't even necessary to wrap them, say home economists, if they are kept in the humidrawer or crisping pan.

Ask Anne
About Removing Tea, Coffee Spots

How can I clean tea and coffee spots from a handsome linen (cream color) luncheon cloth?
L. W. D.

Fresh stains made by tea and coffee can usually be removed from washable materials by pouring boiling water on the stain from a height of 2 or 3 feet, then washing the spots in warm soapy water. For older, more stubborn stains, sprinkle powdered sodium perborate on the dampened spot. Let stand no longer than half an hour. (You don't want to bleach out cream tone and make a white spot on the cloth.) Rinse well with water.

Can you or your readers give me a recipe for banana nut cake? F. S. M.

I have a banana nut bread recipe but not one for the cake. How about it, readers?

I have found the recipe below for Russian tea to be very excellent:

RUSSIAN TEA

Juice of 6 oranges
Juice of 6 lemons
4 cups sugar
2 tablespoons cloves, tied in bag
Tea
Candied cherries, orange, and lemon peel

Make a syrup of the sugar with a little water and cook with spices added until a good spicy syrup results. Make 20 cups of hot fresh tea. Add syrup and juices when ready to serve. Drop in candied cherries, orange and lemon pell last as garnish. Delicious served with fruit cake.

Many thanks, G. G., for sending in this recipe.

Can you tell me how to wash or treat dresses with black and white patterned material (one cotton, one silk) to bring back the white color? By dry cleaning and by washing in good soap, the white part of the pattern has become dingy grey. The dresses are very good yet and I should like to learn a way to whiten the white part of them. L. M.

There is a chance that if you will use a little household bleach in the water in which you wash the cotton dress, the discolored white areas would be made white again without affecting the color. You will do a more thorough job if you wash it in the washing machine. Use 1 cup of bleach (no more) for the machine full of suds. If this doesn't whiten it the first time, possibly repeating the treatment at successive washings will.

As for the silk dress, perhaps washing it with a little sodium perborate added to the water will whiten the light areas. Use lukewarm water, mild soap and four tablespoons sodium perborate (obtainable at most drug stores) to each quart of soapy water. Wash thoroughly and rinse several times in clear water. If you are not sure whether the dress is washable, snip off a piece of hem, measure it and wash it. If it fades at all or shrinks, do not attempt washing. If you find it is not washable, dyeing the dress black seems the remaining solution to make it usable.

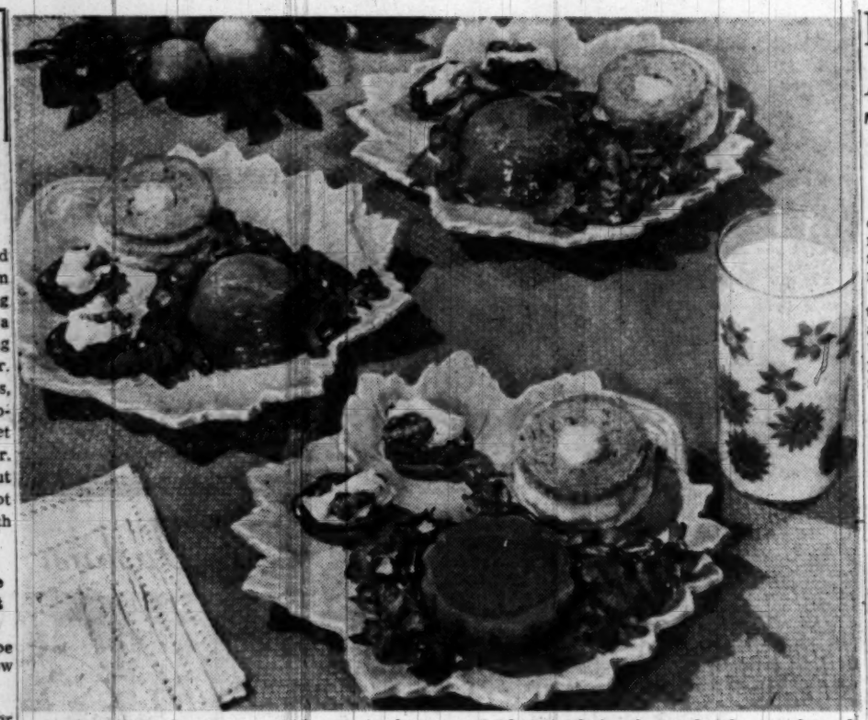
What is the best way to wrap and lay away a very lovely wedding gown. It is made of heavy ivory satin, yoke of marquisette with pearl and sequin trimming. I would like to preserve it for my daughter. R. J. S.

Wrap the dress in dark blue or black tissue paper in such a way that, if possible, there is a fold of paper between each fold of the material. To guard against silver fish, which eat rayons, sprinkle the tissue paper with fresh pryethrum powder or a good silver fish powder. Place the dress in a box with a tight fitting lid and store where it will not be exposed to moisture or extremes of temperature.

I am very sympathetic to N. C. B.'s plight with the wrinkly suit, as I had to discard a new dress because of this difficulty. This prompts me to make the following suggestions as a possibility of redeeming the suit:

It may be that it isn't properly lined. A firm, heavy lining with well-fitted pads, canvas interlining in the lapels, fronts and cuffs would help. Also, if it is the "seat" of the skirt that takes the most punishment, placing a lining in the back of the skirt from seam to seam will eliminate some of the wrinkling. Use rayon taffeta for this. E. W.

It was most thoughtful of you to send in this suggestion for N. C. B.



A BUSY mother prepared these refreshing luncheon plates with little effort by using some of baby's canned foods. She mixed strained peaches with peanut butter and a bit of salt for the sandwich spread, used chopped carrots and apricots in the jellied salad. Watercress and whole prunes stuffed with cream cheese and nuts complete the plate

Baby Food Makes Tasty Adult Fare

By Lucia Brown

TAKING CANDY from a baby may be the height of cruelty, but corralling some of the infant's canned goods to whip up a quick delicious lunch for grownups is good sense.

After all, most canned baby foods are simply fine fruits and vegetables, well-pared and chopped, or strained. Using them cuts out a lot of work—two or three steps, at least—in making such things as soup, salad, tarts, and sandwich filling on short notice.

Today, we have a few recipes that may come in handy in an emergency. Let's start with Russian Bortsch, to show that a sophisticated soup can be quickly made with a toddler's specialty.

RUSSIAN BORTSCH

½ cup (one 4½-oz. container) strained beets
2 tablespoons lemon juice
1 tablespoon sugar
1/3 cup sour cream

Combine strained beets, lemon juice, and sugar. Add sour cream. Chill and serve. This recipe makes 2 bouillon cupfuls. Garnish each serving with a spoonful of sour cream, topped with a dash of paprika.

CARROT AND APRICOT SALAD

2 teaspoons plain gelatin
2 tablespoons cold water
½ cup (one 4½ oz. container) strained carrots
½ cup (one 4½ oz. container) apricots with farina

Soften the gelatin in cold water. Heat the carrots. Add the soaked gelatin; stir well until dissolved. Stir in the apricots with farina. Pour into molds which have been rinsed in cold water. Chill until firm. This recipe makes 3 small molds.

PEACH FLUFF TARTS

½ cup (one 4½ oz. container) custard pudding
3 tablespoons lemon juice
2 tablespoons confectioner's sugar
2 egg whites, stiffly beaten
½ cup (one 4½ oz. container) chopped peaches
6 graham cracker tart shells, baked

Beat custard with egg beater until smooth. Add lemon juice. Beat egg whites until stiff but not dry. Fold in sugar gradually. Fold into custard mixture and gradually fold in peaches. Turn into tart shells and chill 1-2 hours in refrigerator. Tops of tarts may be decorated with maraschino cherries. (Use your favorite graham cracker crust recipe for the tart shells.)

SOMETHING good for grown-ups, made with baby foods, is the peach fluff tart. They're decorated in the center with gay swirls of maraschino cherry slices. Canned custard pudding and chopped peaches were used in making them

Two Fixtures Better Than One

Shaving and makeup need not be a hit-and-miss proposition at even the thriftiest degree of bathroom lighting. In a study of bathroom lighting conducted by Miss Myrtle Fahsbender, director of home lighting for a large manufacturer, it was found that a pair of brackets—one at each side of the bathroom mirror—mounted 5 feet 2 inches from the floor, afford greater "seeability" than a single over-mirror fixture. This holds true whether matching brackets are modestly priced incandescent fixtures or a de luxe fluorescent installation.

Vegetables Bruise Easily

Don't handle vegetables any more than necessary, and always with care. Vegetables bruise easily and that, explain home economists, causes rapid deterioration of certain vitamins.

Introduce Child At Early Age To Dental Care

By Myrtle Meyer Eldred

Dentists show a real concern over the failure of parents to recognize the importance of the first permanent teeth and their need to preserve them.

After the baby has acquired those first 20 baby teeth, there is a parental tendency to forget about them. They feel that it will be years before he has more teeth and so why worry about them.

But, at 6 years of age, four permanent molars slip into the mouth. These are the keystone teeth of the permanent arch and should last the child for a lifetime. They should be inspected frequently and if there are spots of decay they should be repaired promptly. These are not baby teeth which will fall out.

Fillings Are Needed

And as for the filling of temporary teeth which will be lost, every dentist confirms the necessity to do this. The filling will be a soft one, but it will preserve the tooth until it is ready to come out, will avoid dangerous abscesses and keep the permanent tooth, which is springing up behind it, healthy.

It's a fine idea to take the child to the dentist before there is any repair work to be done. Get him used to going there, having his teeth looked over and cleaned. He will find this a pleasant duty, and there will be no fears aroused about what may happen to him there.

Parents are responsible for implanting fears which may remain with the child for life when she says, "Oh, I have to take Tommy to the dentist, he has a cavity in his tooth!" as if this were some major calamity.

Fear Understandable

Then when the child sits in the mammoth chair, looks at the awesome array of dental instruments, hears the buzz-buzz of the machine and feels the acute sensation of its grinding in his mouth, it is little wonder that he cries and struggles and demands to be let go.

Let him know beforehand that filling a tooth will make it "tickle," but that everyone has his teeth cleaned and repaired each half year, and he'll go through the experience without fear.

Eggs for Supper

Use eggs for a nutritious and economical supper dish. Chop a medium-sized onion and a green pepper and saute them in a little butter or margarine. Turn the vegetables into a greased baking dish and break a dozen eggs over the mixture. Sprinkle the eggs with salt and pepper and place the dress in a shallow pan of water in a moderate oven for about 15 minutes, or until the eggs are set.

But this is what happens At Bargain Sales!

Hurry, Petunia—take care of that bump! You can prevent a dark, ugly bruise if you'll mix a little starch with water and apply it to the bump . . . or rub some butter on it.

Hecht Spends Million on 3 New Projects

By S. Oliver Goodman

Details of a new million-dollar expansion and improvement program for the Hecht Co. here were revealed yesterday by Charles B. Dulcan, vice president and general manager.

Dulcan

Dulcan said the building is being remodeled to provide an additional 16,000 square feet of floor space.

Also, Hecht's has taken over the seven-story building at 613 G st. nw., vacated last year by the Government, and is in the midst of extensive alterations and improvements. This building will provide more warehouse space for soft goods and also will house four office divisions, a hospital room and a cafeteria for employes.

The New York ave. warehouse, Dulcan added, is being enlarged by construction of a matching five-story unit containing 125,000 square feet. This new wing will be used for warehousing of heavy goods such as furniture and appliances.

Completion of all construction work and improvements is expected by November 15, Dulcan said.

Buy workmen for some time have been tearing out the interior of a four-story building at 612 F st. nw., adjacent to the main store.

Uneasy Payment Plan Keeps McWurst Busy

Oh, pity my friend named McWurst,
Whose life with installments is cursed.
His credit is curbed,
And he's quite disturbed
When asked for a down payment first.

IT'S UNANIMOUS

A survey at George Washington University results in the estimate that "100 per cent of the girls flirt."

The percentage among men is believed to run somewhat higher.

ADD SIGNS

C. Warren Loveless of 4416 Harrison st. nw. reports that a store in Emporium, Pa., sports a sign which says:

"Coal and Beer."

That's quite a combination. Maybe the signpainter had one too many and actually meant to paint: Coaled Beer.

GIVE-AWAYS

"Two cute female puppies; mama is a pedigreed bull terrier, but papa was a traveling man." (Shepherd 7839).

"Quintuplet kittens, 6 weeks old." (Michigan 8264).

"Five cute housebroken kittens, 6 weeks old." (North 1923).

"Three kittens, 9 weeks old." (Temple 8680, before 9 or after 6).

"Mother cat and two tiger-striped kittens." (Chestnut 5081 evenings, or all day Saturday and Sunday).

"Four 6-week-old kittens; accustomed to a big brother and a big dog." (Oliver 5767).

"Six-month-old female cat; fine disposition." (Owens 7786).

"Affectionate male puppy, half English setter, half pointer." (Hillside 5561, Saturday, between 2 and 6:30 p. m.).

MISCELLANY

District "hotels" with facilities for less than 30 guests will have to stop calling themselves "hotels," as a result of new regulations. However, hotels with facilities for hundreds of guests, but no vacancies, will continue to function as before . . . Reminds me of the night I asked the movie usher, "Do you have two seats in the middle of the house?" His reply was, "Mister, we've got lots of seats in the middle of the house, but there's somebody sitting in every one of them" . . . Potomac Craftsmen's first meeting of the year will be held in Room 43 of the National Museum at 1:30 this afternoon. The group started as a weaver's guild, but now hopes to branch out into other handcrafts. Mrs. Grace Hebbard of 1714 Lanier pl nw. (NOrth 8995) can give you more information . . . Tonight at 9, the Masada Young Zionists hold an Eriv Yomtov dance at the Willard, to raise money for DP relief overseas (tickets at the door, $1.20) . . . Mrs. Bryan H. Smith, jr., of 3034 S. Buchanan st., Arlington, Va., muses: "We all know that the birds go south for the winter, and bears hibernate. But what happens to the Good Humor Men?" . . . Robert Rockwell of 4104 53d ave., Hyattsville, Md., thinks we ought to have a week devoted to getting all the clocks in town synchronized . . . It wouldn't do any good, though, because most of them would be off at least 15 minutes by the first night.

ADD SIMILES

As intense as a politician's quadrennial interest in his constituents.

MAIL BAG

Dear Bill:

Can you find room for this? The District of Columbia adult education schools are sponsoring two food classes at McKinley Tech High School. The elementary cooking class meets at 7:30 on Monday nights and the advanced class meets at the same hour, on Wednesday nights. We have room for more students in both classes.

Further information may be obtained in Room 338 at the school on either of these nights, or by calling me at Union 4196.

I'm the teacher, and I'll have you know I'm no theoretical cook-book cooker. I have a husband and an 18-month-old daughter to feed regularly.

And I read your column every morning, between making toast for my husband and feeding my daughter the last of her cereal.

Mrs. J. W Thomas
6809 Rhode Island ave.
College Park, Md.

Dear Teacher:

When your daughter is old enough to switch from corn flakes to plain corn, I hope she reads the column too. Bill.

PERSONAL NOTES

Elmer F. Blanchard, 5615 Oakmont ave., Bethesda, Md.: I know just how you feel, pal. I never heard of such words, either."

FLIGHTY ITEM

Sissy Burklin of 509 Rose pl., Falls Church, Va., is a switchboard operator for Trans-World Airline.

The other day Sissy got a call from a woman who said she wanted to make a reservation.

"For a domestic flight?" asked Sissy. The caller's answer was prompt.

"Oh, yes - - - domestic," she said. "My husband is going, too."

THE TRUTH HURTS

I cracked a joke at dinner last night, and drew a laugh. Embarrassed by this unusual turn of events, I added (not too brightly), "I got a million of them." The reply was devastating:

"At the rate you pay for gags, you can afford a million of them."

OVERHEARD

"They used to laugh when I said I lost my head; now they help me look for it."

Leonard Lyons . . .

NEW YORK—At a meeting of Western power officials, Anthony Eden told of a conference he had with a French diplomat, to whom he expressed concern over the frequent changes in the French government. "What good would an agreement with France be, if the next day a new government takes over?" Eden suggested . . . "It's much better to have seven governments with one policy, like in France," the French told him, "than one government with seven policies, like in Britain."

Commodore Illingworth, skipper of the Queen Mary, was strolling around the deck and heard a woman call to him, "Oh, Steward." The skipper tried to ignore it, but the lady continued to call "Oh, Steward." The commodore walked slowly to her chair, and the lady gave him her tea tray. The commodore bowed, walked slowly over to the side of the ship, dropped the tea tray into the ocean, brushed his hands and continued his stroll.

Bob Porterfield, founder of the Barter Theater in Abingdon, Va., originally sold all his tickets in exchange for meat, vegetables and other vittles. "The Barter Theater has become half-barter," he reports. "Because of the high cost of vittlees, half our receipts now are in ordinary cash."

Gen. E. F Jeffe, vice president of Consolidated Edison, will accept the chairmanship of the Red Cross Drive . . . Diana Sheean, ex-wife of Vincent Sheean, is in N. Y. to arrange for the publication of two novels she's written . . . Max Lanier, the ex-Cardinal pitcher, will make a bus-tour of America with the other ballplayers who jumped to the Mexican League. Margaret Sullavan and Joe Cotten may appear in the new Herman Mankiewicz play . . . Sid Caesar, who once won a baby contest in Asbury Park and who went there to judge the "Mrs. America" contest, returned with a contest-idea for a musical. He hopes to get it produced next season . . . The British no longer permit its subjects to take dogs to America, because too many travelers were selling the animals here in order to get dollars.

Dame Lillian Braithwaite, the 77-year-old British actress who died this month, was once visited backstage by Field Marshal Montgomery and she asked him about shortages in the desert. "We have a shortage of spirits," said Montgomery. "The stuff you put in tanks—not the stuff you drink" . . . "I am quite aware of the difference," replied Dame Lillian. "I have drunk them both."

IT'S UNANIMOUS

A survey at George Washington University results in the estimate that "100 per cent of the girls flirt."

The percentage among men is believed to run somewhat higher.

ADD SIGNS

C. Warren Loveless of 4416 Harrison st. nw. reports that a store in Emporium, Pa., sports a sign which says:

"Coal and Beer."

GIVE-AWAYS

MISCELLANY

District "hotels" with facilities for less than 30 guests will have to stop calling themselves "hotels," as a result of new regulations. However, hotels with facilities for hundreds of guests, but no vacancies, will continue to function as before . . . Reminds me of the night I asked the movie usher, "Do you have two seats in the middle of the house?" His reply was, "Mister, we've got lots of seats in the middle of the house, but there's somebody sitting in every one of them" . . . Potomac Craftsmen's first meeting of the year will be held in Room 43 of the National Museum at 1:30 this afternoon. The group started as a weaver's guild, but now hopes to branch out into other handcrafts. Mrs. Grace Hebbard of 1714 Lanier pl nw. (NOrth 8995) can give you more information . . . Tonight at 9, the Masada Young Zionists hold an Eriv Yomtov dance at the Willard, to raise money for DP relief overseas (tickets at the door, $1.20) . . . Mrs. Bryan H. Smith, jr., of 3034 S. Buchanan st., Arlington, Va., muses: "We all know that the birds go south for the winter, and bears hibernate. But what happens to the Good Humor Men?" . . . Robert Rockwell of 4104 53d ave., Hyattsville, Md., thinks we ought to have a week devoted to getting all the clocks in town synchronized . . . It wouldn't do any good, though, because most of them would be off at least 15 minutes by the first night.

MAIL BAG

Dear Bill:

Can you find room for this? The District of Columbia adult education schools are sponsoring two food classes at McKinley Tech High School. The elementary cooking class meets at 7:30 on Monday nights and the advanced class meets at the same hour, on Wednesday nights. We have room for more students in both classes.

Further information may be obtained in Room 338 at the school on either of these nights, or by calling me at Union 4196.

I'm the teacher, and I'll have you know I'm no theoretical cook-book cooker. I have a husband and an 18-month-old daughter to feed regularly.

And I read your column every morning, between making toast for my husband and feeding my daughter the last of her cereal.

Mrs. J. W Thomas
6809 Rhode Island ave.
College Park, Md.

Dear Teacher:

When your daughter is old enough to switch from corn flakes to plain corn, I hope she reads the column too. Bill.

PERSONAL NOTES

Elmer F. Blanchard, 3613 Oakmont ave., Bethesda, Md.: I know just how you feel, pal. I never heard of such words, either.

FLIGHTY ITEM

Sissy Burklin of 309 Rose pl., Falls Church, Va., is a switchboard operator for Trans-World Airline.

The other day Sissy got a call from a woman who said she wanted to make a reservation.

"For a domestic flight?" asked Sissy. The caller's answer was prompt.

"Oh, yes - - - domestic," she said. "My husband is going, too."

THE TRUTH HURTS

I cracked a joke at dinner last night, and drew a laugh. Embarrassed by this unusual turn of events, I added (not too brightly), "I got a million of them." The reply was devastating:

"At the rate you pay for gags, you can afford a million of them."

OVERHEARD

"They used to laugh when I said I lost my head; now they help me look for it."

NEW YORK—At a meeting of Western power officials, Anthony Eden told of a conference he had with a French diplomat, to whom he expressed concern over the frequent changes in the French government. "What good would an agreement with France be, if the next day a new government takes over?" Eden suggested . . . "It's much better to have seven governments with one policy, like in France," the French told him, "than one government with seven policies, like in Britain."

Commodore Illingworth, skipper of the Queen Mary, was strolling around the deck and heard a woman call to him, "Oh, Steward." The skipper tried to ignore it, but the lady continued to call "Oh, Steward." The commodore walked slowly to her chair, and the lady gave him her tea tray. The commodore bowed, walked slowly over to the side of the ship, dropped the tea tray into the ocean, brushed his hands and continued his stroll.

Bob Porterfield, founder of the Barter Theater in Abingdon, Va., originally sold all his tickets in exchange for meat, vegetables and other vittles. "The Barter Theater has become half-barter," he reports. "Because of the high cost of vittlees, half our receipts now are in ordinary cash."

Margaret Sullavan and Joe Cotten may appear in the new Herman Mankiewicz play . . . Sid Caesar, who once won a baby contest in Asbury Park and who went there to judge the "Mrs. America" contest, returned with a contest-idea for a musical. He hopes to get it produced next season . . . The British no longer permit its subjects to take dogs to America, because too many travelers were selling the animals here in order to get dollars.

Dame Lillian Braithwaite, the 77-year-old British actress who died this month, was once visited backstage by Field Marshal Montgomery and she asked him about shortages in the desert. "We have a shortage of spirits," said Montgomery. "The stuff you put in tanks—not the stuff you drink" . . . "I am quite aware of the difference," replied Dame Lillian. "I have drunk them both."

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Colonies Costing Truman Votes

By Drew Pearson

It will probably cost him half a million votes in such Italian-American centers as New York, Boston and Jersey City, but President Truman continues rigid and immovable regarding the return of North African colonies to Italy. He hasn't budged an inch despite the toughest kind of pressure.

Pearson

Hardest pressure came the other day from Publisher Generoso Pope of the Italian-American newspaper Il Progresso, hitherto a strong Democrat, but now flirting with Dewey. Invited to the White House with Senators McGrath of Rhode Island and O'Mahoney of Wyoming, Pope proceeded to put the President on the hot seat.

McGrath, chairman of the Democratic National Committee, opened the session by telling the President that Publisher Pope was going to support him. Without concurring in this, Pope handed the President a memo regarding the Italian colonies and said he would like to have his views on the subject.

Truman replied that he couldn't make any commitment, since the Italian colonies were up to the United Nations.

"I'm not going to give you any of that Dewey bull," the President added, referring to Governor Dewey's statement to an Italian group that the colonies should be returned to Italy.

Truman went on to point out that the United States had shown its true friendship to the Italian people by contributing one billion dollars a year to them.

"Yes," countered Pope, "but how can we keep that up? We simply can't do it. We've got to help the Italians to help themselves. And there isn't room in all Italy for all the Italian people. They have to have some place in North Africa for their overflow."

Base in North Africa

Senator O'Mahoney intervened to point out that Britain's colonies were no asset to her—in fact were a drain on the British Empire.

"She's now supporting them," the Wyoming Senator said.

"But that's not true of Italy," countered Pope. "Italians have migrated to her colonies and they have been a tremendous help to the Italian people."

The Italo-American publisher also quoted a statement made by Anthony Eden, when British Foreign Minister in 1944, to the effect that the Italian colonies would never be returned to Italy.

"Are we following British policy, Mr. President?" Pope asked.

"No, we are not," was the reply. "I am going to leave this to General Marshall and the United Nations to decide."

That about ended the interview. Mr. Truman did not make a convert, and Pope's influential newspaper now appears to be definitely in Dewey's corner. The Italian vote can swing New York City one way or the other.

Note—Truman did not say so, but probably one reason he is standing pat regarding Italian colonies is that the United States has signed an agreement with Britain and France to establish a B-29 base in Libya which will control the Mediterranean. Also, the British have already sent to Libya much of their military equipment from Palestine and India in Libya. The State Department, therefore, is willing to return Italian Somaliland and Eritrea to Italy, but not Libya, which Mussolini always considered the chief jewel of the Italian crown.

Wait Till Elections

Hitherto, the GOP has considered the Un-American Activities Committee one of its best propaganda mediums against the Democrats. But, believe it or not, a Republican recently went to the committee and asked them to hold up a report they were planning to publish.

The Republican is Roy James, candidate for Congress from Palmerton, Pa., and the report he didn't want published was regarding the Institute of Pacific Relation, of which he is a member. The Un-American Activities Committee, probing the institute, claims that it is dominated by Frederick Field, wealthy New York Communist leader.

Voters Get Wise

The voters are gradually catching up with some of the Congressmen who worked for the lobbyists rather than the public during the Eighteenth Congress.

One man they have got wise to is that great friend of the real-estate lobby, Representative John J. Riley of South Carolina, Democrat. Riley came to Washington with his votes already lined up for the real estate lobby, and super-lobbyist Morton Bodfish, knowing this, pulled wires to put him on the powerful Banking and Currency Committee.

Another Congressman now in trouble because he played ball with the lobbies is GOP Representative John Sanborn of Idaho.

Sanborn sat through two years of Congress without so much as opening his mouth—except to vote—and then he voted with the big lobbies.

Sanborn even went so far as to insert a speech in the Congressional Record written for him by lobbyist John McBride. Sanborn didn't have the nerve to deliver the speech, just put it in the Congressional Record, so McBride could get it printed and circulated. The speech was an anti-British, anti-liberal diatribe on silver.

Now, Idaho's gift-to-the-lobbyists is being opposed by 27-year-old Asael Lyman, who, during the crucial Battle of The Bulge, parachuted behind the enemy's lines.

My heart is filled with memories . . . Of hours long ago . . . When there were lovely autumn leaves . . . To mingle with the snow . . . When every wind was welcome and . . . The rain was nothing more . . . Than just a tribute to the tide . . . That took away the shore . . . My heart is filled with memories . . . Of moments young and bold . . . When all the wonders of the world . . . Were mine to have and hold . . . When faith and hope and courage strong . . . Were part of every day . . . And disappointments were the things . . . I used to throw away . . . My everlasting memories . . . Of all that happened then . . . Are like a magic land where I . . . May live my life again.
